U. S. Voice On Elected City Council Is Advocated

Auchincloss Would Have Congress and President Each Pick Voting Member

(Pictures on Page 2)

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) said yesterday there was merit to having Federal representatives on Washington's proposed elected city council.

Auchincloss, cosponsor of the District home rule and reorganization bill, suggested that Congress and the President each assign one representative to sit with the elected council members. They would vote, but could not preside.

"If a measure passed the council with those two voting no, it would be a warning to Congress and the President that something was wrong with it," said Auchincloss. "I think there's merit in the suggestion. It might strengthen and not interfere with home rule."

Second Change Suggested

Auchincloss presented the idea in the third day of hearings on the home rule proposal. It was the second major change he has suggested. The other would make Congress pass affirmatively on legislation proposed by the council, instead of keeping control of city laws by a veto power.

Auchincloss' committee heard strong indorsements of the home rule bill from William A. Roberts, Washington attorney and former District People's Counsel, and from Mrs. Kathryn H. Stone, vice president of the National League of Women Voters.

Two other witnesses hit hard at the home rule plan. They were C. Melvin Sharpe, chairman of the committee of 100 on the Federal City, and Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Committee and a member of Sharpe's committee.

W. L. Ellis, assistant to Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren, challenged the plan in the home-rule bill for calculating the Federal payment to the District as a tax on Federal property here.

Warns of "Precedent"

Ellis warned that the formula might set a precedent that would be seized on to support a call for similar privileges to tax Federal property in every State and city of the country.

He said if there were local taxes here on the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument, the Capitol and the like, the Federal Government might be called on to pay a tax to New York on the Statute of Liberty, to Virginia for the Arlington National Cemetery, and to other States for national parks.

Under the bill the Federal payment would be boosted from the

Weatherman Batting .500 This Month

Washington's Weatherman has had a .500 batting average so far this month—with 25 days left to go.

Schmidt

Both times that he has struck out, so far, have been on snow. He said it would snow Sunday, and it didn't. Yesterday, he said it wouldn't, and you know what happened.

The Washington Post will keep a box score on the Man for the rest of this month. Here's how he's done so far:

February 1: Prediction of moderate snow, ending in clear weather. The day was clear. The expected snow blanketed Southern States, but stopped about 40 miles from here. Let's call it a near miss.

February 2: Mostly sunny, milder in the afternoon. It was, with the first aspects of the thaw.

February 3—Some cloudiness, becoming colder in the afternoon and night. Right again. The sun came out once in a while and there was a high of 41 degrees.

February 4—Cloudy, mild, followed by occasional light rain. What happened was snow, sleet, rain and slush.

February 5—The prediction is cloudy, with freezing temperatures, and rain ending in early morning. Let's see what happens.

In charge of the Washington Forecast District is Reinhart C. Schmidt, RFD 2, Alexandria, Va. He has a staff of forecasters that normally numbers about four.

Scores Are Injured In Falls on Ice; Thousands Are Late

Fickle weather threw everything at Washington yesterday with snow, sleet and rain in less than six hours.

Early morning snow covered partly iced paving, tied up rush-hour traffic, sent scores to hospitals with fall injuries, and crumpled auto fenders by the dozen.

The suburbs in Virginia and Maryland suffered similarly and commuters had ample reason for late appearances or none at all.

By late morning, the snow, which actually had measured but 1-inch in Washington, was being removed by a cold, pelting rain. An hour later, came sleet.

The end of light snow or sleet was seen for early today in the Weather Bureau's forecast. The prediction is for cloudy, with temperatures at or slightly above freezing today.

Fear that dusk would bring freezing temperatures to put a glaze on slushy streets kept District Sanitation Department and Capital Transit crews on the alert.

Capital Transit was running on schedule until 8 a. m., when motor traffic congestion developed into "the worst we've ever seen," a company official said.

For two hours schedules were shattered. In scattered instances, streetcar traffic was delayed as much as an hour and many persons waited long periods or grabbed what taxis were available.

Always a good conversational topic, yesterday's weather was no exception.

Electric Clocks Lag, Coast Workers Late

California commuters were late for work too.

Because the prolonged drought forced the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to reduce its frequencies due to the power shortage, electric clocks ran slower. Thousands of workers missed their morning trains.

36 Nonresident Students Ordered To Leave Schools

School officers yesterday reversed a previous stand and ordered 36 nonresident students who claim they are exempt from paying tuition expelled from school.

Thirty-eight additional pupils who also have not paid their bills but who have filed suit claiming exemption will not be dropped.

Adelbert W. Heinmiller, head of the school business office, said schools were advised by Corporation Counsel Vernon West and District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton to expel the 36.

The students claim they do not have to pay because they signed up to attend classes before July 25, effective date of the 1949 District Appropriations Act which ended free schooling for nonresidents.

An additional 98 students who have no claim to free education in the District already have been dropped and the status of 300 who claim exemption for other reasons is still in doubt, Heinmiller said.

Cleared on 2 Charges

Williams Guilty on 8 Counts In Md. Housing Fraud Case

George H. Williams, 38-year-old real estate man, last night was found guilty in defrauding veterans in a home-building porject in near-by Maryland.

A District Court jury deliberated a little more than three hours to convict him on seven counts of sending bad checks through interstate commerce and on one count of mail fraud.

The maximum sentence on the convictions totals $71,000 fine and/or 75 years in prison.

He was charged with seven counts of violation of the National Stolen Property Act and on three counts of mail fraud. The jury freed him on two mail fraud counts.

The jury received the case after an hour-long charge by Justice Alexander Holtzoff; came back twice for further instructions before reporting a verdict at 9:50 a. m.

Williams' bond of $5000 was continued and date for sentencing was set for Friday, February 20.

He was prosecuted by Assistant U. S. Attorney Cecil Heflin and defended by Robert W. McCullough.

Nation Now Faces Milk Shortage

Output to Drop 10% Below Last 2 Years, Owing to Dearth Of Feed, Experts Say

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The United States is facing a shortage of milk and dairy supplies this spring greater even than the already anticipated shortage of meat.

Department of Agriculture experts yesterday estimated that this year's production of milk and dairy products will be at least 10 per cent below the last two years, due to the shortage of feed grains.

The impending shortage of meat (estimated at 146 pounds of meat per capita contrasted with 156 pounds last year) amounts to about 7 per cent.

The grains necessary for both meat and milk production are the same as those used for the manufacture of beverage alcohol. The impending shortage of milk was revealed yesterday as Department of Agriculture meat and milk experts prepared for a hearing today by a subcommittee of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report into the use of grain for whisky-making by the Nation's distillers.

Feed Grain Shortage

Because of the shortage of feed grains, the number of dairy cattle has declined seriously. In 1945 the total was close to 28 million. The total on January 1, to be announced February 18, is expected to be little more than 25 million head.

In 1946 and 1947 the decline in number of cows "kept for milk" was partly compensated for by an increase in milk per animal. In 1945 the annual per cow production of milk was 4797 pounds. In 1946 the average production per cow increased to 4891 pounds, and in 1947 to almost 5000 pounds.

However, the production of milk per cow is closely related to the amount of feed grain available. Early last year, a plentiful supply of feed grain kept milk production at a high level. But the short corn crop reduced the grain supply and sent the average milk production into a tailspin. In December of the average production of milk declined 4 per cent. This decline was the most marked of a series of declines that have been reported since September.

10 Per Cent Off

Milk and dairy specialists predict that between now and June, when pastures become available, the supplies of milk and dairy products will be at least 10 per cent below the last three years.

The situation is such that a Government milk specialist remarked yesterday: "The country has to choose between whisky and milk as well as between whisky and bread."

The importance of conserving grain—in other words of diverting all grain possible from nonessential uses to imperative uses—was

Attlee Urges Freezing of Pay, Profits

Commons Warned Alternative Means Serious Setback To Reconstruction

London, Feb. 4 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee called today for the freezing of profits and wages to combat spiraling prices.

He urged the freeze on a voluntary basis and under the honor system, but with it went a threat to use wartime powers of price control if inflation goes unchecked.

The appeal was contained in a White Paper read by Attlee in The Commons.

His appeal came as the chancellor of the exchequer reported purchasing power of the pound had declined to 38 per cent of its 1914 value.

Attlee put it this way:

"The alternatives are either a general agreement by the people to act together upon sound and public spirited lines, or a serious and prolonged setback in our economic reconstruction, accompanied by a persistent low standard of living."

He said it was essential there should be "no further general increase in the level of personal incomes without at least a corresponding increase in the volume of production.

He declared there was no justification for any rise in income from profits, rent or similar sources and wage increases should be asked for and agreed upon only in exceptional cases.

He pledged that except for taxation the government would not interfere with individual incomes.

Turkey Recalls Envoy to Moscow On Land Demand

It was a "tit-for-tat" answer to Russia's refusal to return her ambassador to Ankara.

The Russian government recalled its ambassador, Sergei A. Vinogradov, in 1945 and is represented by a charge d'affairs.

The Turkish press and political sources have said Russia was seeking certain territorial concessions in Turkish areas. Vinogradov's recall presumably was caused by Turkey's refusal of Russian demands.

"Turkey has had her fill of this snub and this is her answer," one diplomat said.

Stock and Commodity Prices Drop Sharply on U. S. Markets

See story of Kaiser-Frazer stock sale, and J. A. Livingston's discussion of it. Page B-8

By The Associated Press

Commodity, stock and bond prices dropped sharply and unexpectedly in the Nation's markets yesterday.

Most experts said frankly they didn't know whether it was just a temporary setback or a prick in the postwar price balloon.

Nor could they say whether the present high cost of groceries and other items in the family budget might go down as a result.

Wheat futures dropped 10 cents a bushel—as much as they can in one day—at Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

Stocks fell $1 to $5 a share in a 1,200,000-share turnover at New York, the widest break since last May. Railroads led a broad decline in the bond market.

Cotton broke more than $6 a bale at one time but made some recovery. Final prices at New York ranged from $3.55 a bale lower to 35 cents higher.

It was much the same story in lard, cottonseed oil, crude rubber and most other commodities. The Associated Press commodity index reflected the sharpest break since September, 1947.

Cattle prices remained firm, however.

Market men and economists generally noted that there has been no sudden change in two "basic facts" affecting the price structure.

That is, European requirements under the Marshall program are reckoned about the same as they have been all along. If these had been revised downward, a drop in prices undoubtedly would have followed.

Also, industrial output continues at the recent high level—a fact that ordinarily would mean steady prices.

In Washington, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson offered several possible causes for the skid in commodity prices.

One, he said, is that prices have been too high and perhaps a realization of this has "begun to take hold of the markets."

Another is that many speculators have left the market as a result of the recent investigations and publication of traders' names.

A third is that the world wheat supply is better than it seemed likely to be a few months ago—and the more wheat there is, the lower its price tends to be.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder touched on the boom-bust question earlier. He said the Government would proceed "judiciously" in paring the national debt because of the possible effect on business and industry.

If the Govenmrent doesn't tread lightly, Snyder indicated at a news conference, banks might be forced to refuse new loans or call old ones. Either would be a symptom of "recession."

Vandenberg Sees Aid Voted By April 1

Senator Planning To Finish Hearings On Program Today

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg predicted yesterday that Congress would approve the European Recovery Program by April 1, when existing relief funds expire.

His assurance came after Secretary Marshall had told a press conference that failure to meet the April 1 deadline would be a great embarrassment. The Secretary explained that food and other materials in the pipeline to Europe would stop flowing if further help were not authorized by that time.

As soon as Vandenberg learned of the Secretary's worry, he told reporters that "I think it ought to be through by April 1, with an RFC clause." The Administration's draft of an enabling bill provides for a 500-million-dollar advance by the RFC, so the program can get under way without waiting for the actual appropriations.

Hearings Near End

As if to prove that the Senate, at least, was keeping to the timetable, Vandenberg planned to wind up four weeks of public hearings by his Foreign Relations Committee this morning. On Monday he will meet in executive session with his committee colleagues to start drafting a bill.

The congressional struggle over ERP will thus move into a new phase. Unless there are unforeseen obstacles within the committee, a "Vandenberg bill" is expected to emerge about February 23, with floor debate in the Senate planned for the first week in March.

Overwhelming support for the broad purposes of ERP has come from organizations and individuals during the long committee hearings. There has been little opposition to the idea first expressed in Secretary Marshall's Harvard speech last June—that the nations of western Europe must combine for self-help, and that the United States must help them get back on their feet.

Present Situation Outlined

Most of the opposition has centered on the cost of American help, on the methods of administering it, and on incidental issues like the proposal to transfer 500 American merchant ships to Europe.

At the end of four weeks this was the approximate position yesterday on Capitol Hill:

1. Vandenberg has not made a "deal" with Republican Senators, on or off the committee, to cut the cost. He has promised to try to

More People Produce Less, U. N. Reports

World Population Gains 200 Million In 10-Year Period

Lake Success, Long Island, Feb. 4 (NYHT).—The United States holds nearly all the economic chips in a world that is producing less than it did ten years ago for a population that has since increased by 200,000,000 the United Nations said today.

In a massive survey of global economy at the end of 1947, the U. N. pictured a world critically short of food and coal, plagued by industrial shortages and inflation, and lacking dollars to finance imports vital to recovery.

The U. N. described the growth of the United States as the world's major producer and banker, and warned the American position carries great responsibility toward world economy.

Reports Omits Russia

The report repeated fears the high level of United States production may be resting on a shaky foundation, and warned that a possible United States depression may have "devastating deflationary effects on the economies of other parts of the world."

The U. N. report covered in detail all of the world in the period 1945-1947—with one notable exception, Russia.

Most figures exclude Soviet totals, U. N. officials explained because Russia volunteered little economic news.

Most of the world has run up a huge deficit but the United States has amassed a surplus of more than 16 billion dollars on its accounts with other countries since the middle of 1945 and is accumulating even more, U. N. figures disclosed. The U. N. advised that anti-inflation measures "may require governmental action of a kind that in some countries has heretofore not been regarded as appropriate during peacetime."

Possible Steps Outlined

The U. N. mentioned cutting government spending, increased taxes and, if necessary, direct control of investment and rationing of essential consumer goods as anti-inflationary.

The answer to the dollar shortage, the survey discosed, is "larger overseas purchase of goods and services by the United States." Exports from the United States amounted to 14 per cent of world exports in 1938, but formed one-third of the world total during the first half of last year, the report showed.

The U. N. called the food situation, "as critical as at any time since the end of the Second World War." Production for 1946-47 was below the world total for 1945, and 7 per cent below prewar levels.

2.5 Billion Budget Cut Is Approved Tentatively

Subcommittee Puts Ceiling on Spending Reflecting Cutback In Economy Goals

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A 20-man House-Senate subcommittee yesterday approved a 37.2-billion-dollar ceiling on spending in the next fiscal year—a cut of 2½ billion dollars in President Truman's budget.

The tentative spending limit, which proponents described as "nothing more than an estimate," reflected an eleventh-hour cutback in GOP economy goals.

Election year pressures, which already have caused Congress to commit itself to some half billion dollars in unbudgeted outlays for veterans and retired civil service personnel, accounted in part for the suddenly dulled economy ax.

Aid Abroad Cited

In addition, Senate Appropriations Chairman Styles Bridges and his House opposite, John Taber (R., N. Y.), blamed the lowered goal on reports that President Truman will ask an added one billion dollars in supplemental foreign aid appropriations.

Said Bridges: "It is impossible to plan ahead when from day-to-day the Administration throws into the hopper requests for hundreds of millions of dollars."

The proposed 37.2 billion spending ceiling, coupled with a recommended 2.6 payment on the national debt, will receive a final going over in the 20-man subcommittee today before it goes to a final vote tomorrow in the full 102-man Legislative Budget Committee.

Other Developments

There were these other developments as the proposed budget ceiling cleared the way for a slightly diluted Senate version of the House-passed 6½-billion-dollar Knutson bill tax reductions:

1. Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley (Ky.) said the chances of a tax cut becoming law "are 50-50, depending on the method used." Barkley received reporters after his Senate Democratic Policy Committee decided it wanted to know more about ERP and other spending commitments before taking a position on tax cuts. Senate Democratic leaders were clearly moving in to prevent a party bolt to general tax reduction.

2. The House passed the session's first appropriation measure—a $991,518,551 independent offices bill, cut only $56,280,313 (about 5 per cent) under the President's estimates. Democrats charged the GOP will never achieve even a 2½-billion budget cut if the remaining big bills are not reduced more.

The subcommittee declined to break down the slash into domestic and foreign items, nor was any mention made of a specific cut in the Marshall Plan.

Taber Taunted

The group figured 1949 fiscal year revenues at 47.3 billion, an increase of 2.8 billion in what the President said the Government would receive from current taxes. GOP leaders said the result would be a 10.1-billion surplus, with plenty of room for tax cuts and debt reduction. Mr. Truman had estimated a surplus of only 4.8 billion, recommending this entire amount be applied against the debt.

As the subcommittee convened, Bridges, who wanted to cut the budget only two billion, and Taber, who had urged much deeper cuts, quickly agreed on a three-billion "compromise." At this point, it was learned, Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) argued the cut was still out of reach and moved to reduce it to 2½ billion dollars. Taber surprisingly went along.

Representative Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) taunted Taber, who sponsored last year's unsuccessful

But Who Called Whom What?

U. S. Aide's Fine Rescinded On Traffic Case Appeal Threat

Municipal Court Judge Nadine Gallagher tempered justice with $5 worth of mercy yesterday in a case involving a Government official and much sulphurous dialogue.

She found Harold F. Ambrose, 39, administrative assistant to the Postmaster General, innocent of speeding and passing a loading platform on the wrong side.

But she did convict him of disorderly conduct in the Third Precinct station house early Tuesday morning after his arrest, and fined him $5.

When he announced he would appeal, Assistant Corporation Counsel George E. Lynch informed the judge that if she freed Ambrose on his personal bond instead of fining him there could be no appeal.

Judge Gallagher reconsidered. Would Mr. Ambrose mind if she rescinded the fine. He didn't mind.

Ambrose said he had filed a complaint with Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett against two policemen who arrested him. He said they used "lewd, obscene and abusive language" in addressing his wife, Mrs. Mary Ambrose, 29.

Looking pained, Pvts. Norman L. Richardson and Mahlon E. Pitts told the court it was Ambrose's wife who used the strong language.

They said they stopped Ambrose's car, doing 40, at New Hampshire ave. and I st. nw., Tuesday. They said Mrs. Ambrose exclaimed:

"Well look . . . if it isn't the g—— d—— Metropolitan Police force. What the hell did we do—commit a murder in Rock Creek Park?"

They said Ambrose told them: "Don't pay any attention to my wife—she's been drinking."

They said Ambrose stepped from the car and he, too, became abusive when they told him he couldn't proceed unless he produced his driver's permit and registration card. He couldn't find them.

The Washington Post

MR. AND MRS. AMBROSE

Mrs. Ambrose, who was not charged, said one policeman told her to "shut your g—— d—— mouth." And, she added, he called her "a horrible name—such a horrible name I don't want to say it."

The policemen also testified that while they were questioning Ambrose, his wife slid into the driver's seat and drove off. They said they put Ambrose in their scout car and started off in pursuit. They said they reached speeds of 70 miles an hour. They said Mrs. Ambrose escaped over Memorial Bridge into Virginia. The Ambroses live at 4701 S. 31st st., Arlington.

Mrs. Ambrose, mother of five children, said she drove off at the instruction of her husband because he did not want her to be subjected to further abusive language.

Third Precinct police testified Ambrose used profanity at the station house before he was let go on $25 collateral.

Ambrose pointed out that while his car is a green Buick, the official police report described the car involved as a black Buick. Judge Gallagher said there was some doubt in her mind that police had stopped the right car. Because of this, she said, she was dismissing the charges of speeding and passing.

Icy Sidewalk Strains Relations

Russians Seize 2 GIs in Vienna For Laughing as Officer Falls

By Seymour Freidin

Vienna, Feb. 4 (NYHT).—Strained Russian-American relations drifted even further here when two American soldiers who laughed when a Soviet officer in civilian clothes slipped and fell on an icy sidewalk were arrested and kept in custody for four hours to teach them a lesson.

The incident, made known today, occurred last weekend. Five GIs were standing near the Grand Hotel when the Soviet officer landed with a thump in comedy fashion. The Americans laughed uproariously.

His feelings hurt, the man roared something in Russian to a Soviet sentry. The Russian soldier rushed forward, leveled his gun at the Americans and in broken German said they had made fun of a Soviet officer.

The sentry and another guard attempted to seize all five GIs but three scooted away. After American protests, the two GIs were released.

Subsequently, Soviet headquarters officially complained that the attitude of American soldiers toward Russian officers has been "rude and incorrect."

Mrs. Doyle Favors Election of Board

President of Education Body Takes Issue With Report Opposing Home Rule Measure

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, said yesterday that she favors an elected school board as part of a home-rule plan.

Th eschool head took exception to a report prepared by the board's committee on legislation which objected to the section of the Auchincloss home-rule bill providnig for election of school board members.

Mrs. Doyle told the board she will present her own views as well as those of the committee when she testifies Saturday at congressional hearings on the bill.

Two other members of the nine-man board, Mrs. Velma G. Williams ad George E. C. Hayes, said they agreed with Mrs. Doyle and saw no objection to an elected board.

The report of the commiteee, prepared by Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning, opposed the elected school board provision, declaring it would involve the schools in politics. At present board members are appointed by District Court justices.

Mrs. Doyle said she favored suffrage for the District for more than 20 years and although she preferred national representation will support home rule.

She said she was much disturbed over and will vigorously oppose a feature of the bill that would permit the board to hold its meetings in private.

"Public schools belong to the public and the public should know what goes on at board meetings," Mrs. Doyle said.

She said she also will testify against certain technical phases of the bill which present problems in school administration.

The board at its regular semi-monthly meeting yesterday:

Turned down a request of Robert A. Whisonant, Negro, of 1418 W st. nw., February graduate of the Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, to attend the white Central High School. The board said it was required by law to maintain segregated schools.

Retired four teachers and filled five vacancies in the Negro schools.

Retired were:

Miss Esther Foster, 4012 20th st. ne., English teacher at McKinley High School, after 36 years' service.

Miss Rose Hellinger, 3316 N st. nw., fifth-grade teacher at Hyde Elementary School.

Mrs. Mary F. Selden, 140 Randolph pl. nw., first-aid assistant at Armstrong High School.

Mrs. Marie Malvan, 3024 Sherman ave. nw., teacher at Bell Elementary School.

Appointed were:

Charles S. Lofton, 323 Elm st. nw., assistant director of the Negro Veterans High School, as principal of Dunbar High School.

Albert N. D. Brooks, 1256 Kearney pl. ne., teacher of social studies at Shaw Junior High School, to assistant principal of Banneker Junior High School.

Miss A. Beatrice Cooper, 942 S st. nw., home economics teacher at Garnet-Patterson, to assistant principal of Randall Junior High School.

Arthur D. Jewell, 766 Newton pl. nw., physics teacher at Armstrong High School, to assistant principal of Armstrong.

Mrs. Sarah P. Newton, 1116 Columbia rd. nw., teacher at Morgan Elementary School, to temporary principal of the new Richardson Elementary School.

The board said it favored a cost-of-living pay increase for school teachers if such an increase was granted to Federal and District Government employes.

Senate to Vote Feb. 27 On St. Lawrence Project

The Senate agreed yesterday to vote February 27 on legislation authorizing the controversial St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

present 12 million to more than 13 million dollars a year. But instead of the present fixed sum, it would become a varying amount, equal in any year to what would be raised if property tax of 87½ per cent of the levy on private property were applied to Federal property in the District.

The home rule hearing will continue at 9:30 a. m. today in the Caucus Room of the Old House Office Building. The home rule bill calls for an elected city council to replace Washington's three appointed Commissioners as head of the District government.

The council would appoint a manager to take charge of 12 major city departments. An elected board of education would be in charge of schools and libraries. Congress or the President could veto legislation proposed by the council.

Sharpe, as first witness, said his committee was against the move to "impose" home rule here, and declared the "principal act of justice" would be to give District residents a vote in presidential elections, and representation in Congress.

He said the Federal Government should pay its full share of District expenses, but that a local elected council should not have a hand in spending Federal funds.

"No adequate Federal city could ever result from the action of an elected local agency, responsible to its constituency for keeping down taxes, and with no direct stake in the development of a monumental city," said Sharpe.

He said the present District Government had given better than average service to the citizens but could do with some "streamlining."

He proposed that the city be run by a council partly appointed by the President and partly elected, with a single administrator appointed by the President. Instead of 12 major departments, he said there should be four, with schools, libraries and recreation run by separate boards as now.

He also opposed the bill's proposals to transfer parks here from Federal to District control, to merge the Park and Metropolitan Police, to put the District in control of the city water supply, and some others.

Roberts called plan of the committee of 100 for the District government "a monstrosity."

"Its basic philosophy is an acceptance of all that we deplore and detest in the communistic dictatorships of Russia or the fascist dictatorships of Hitler and Mussolini," said Roberts.

"The plan asserts the belief that appointive officials who cannot be replaced or effectively criticized by their subjects are superior to elective officials who must be selected and who can be replaced by the citizens."

Roberts, indorsing the home rule plan, told the joint hearing committee he believed there was no question that it would be constitutional. He said the "streamlining" features were "excellent."

Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) asked Roberts whether the present heads of the District government could be elected under home rule.

"They couldn't even be nominated," Roberts said. On another question, he said he thought there was no doubt that Washington's present government was mainly controlled by the Washington Board of Trade. Board officials would not comment.

At another point, Roberts said he would not now take a job in the District government, but "I'd try for an elected position; you could be proud to serve the city in that capacity."

In his main testimony, General Grant presented his agency's recommendations for changes in the home rule proposals affecting it. The report approved NCPPC exclusion from the District government, but said the bill should provide authority for it to get Federal funds. It called for letting the agency keep its land-buying job in the District. It opposed transfer of water supply to District control, and advised other changes in the bill.

Later Grant urged the idea of having the President appoint the city's chief executive and made clear that Sharpe's report generally represented his own views.

Representative John J. Allen, jr. (R., Calif.), took issue with the idea that Washington's chief executive should be a high Federal official. He said with an elected council and manager appointed by the council, there would be a direct line of authority from the people down through the various steps of government. He suggested that having a Federally appointed manager would so sever the line of authority that the home rule principle would be "effectively destroyed."

Allen then asked General Grant what would happen if the manager refused to carry out acts of the council.

Grant replied that the Joint Congressional District Committee proposed in the bill "might talk to him, and the President might give him guidance, and if that were not successful he could be removed or impeached."

Mrs. Stone testified that the League of Women Voters was "enthusiastically" for the bill. She said it was the best solution yet advanced for giving the District home rule while safeguarding the national interest here.

Meanwhile, the House approved a resolution to give the home rule subcommittee $15,000 for continuing its work.

Browne Suit Dismissal Asked

The District yesterday asked dismissal of the "equal opportunities" injunction suit filed by the Browne Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association.

The injunction seeks to prevent the Board from assigning to elementary schools Negro students of junior high school status. The P-TA action came after Browne school students were assigned to the Blow and Webb schools because of overcrowding.

In one of two affidavits filed in support of the District Government's motion to dismiss, Garnet C. Wilkinson, superintendent of the Negro school division declared:

"It has been concluded by various officials including myself, that the advantages to be gained in temporary use of the Webb and Blow schools far outweigh any other consideration."

The second affidavit was that of School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning. He showed that in 1947, 55.73 per cent of all school appropriations went for white children who comprised (according to the 1940 census) 66 per cent of the school population.

Talks Begin On Union of West Europe

Brussels, Belgium, Feb. 4 (AP).—Negotiations on a five-power union of western Europe proposed by British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin began here today. There were indications serious obstacles would have to be overcome to conclude a pact.

Hector McNeil, British Minister of State, flew to Brussels to explain details.

The pact would bind Luxemburg, Belgium and the Netherlands (the Benelux Customs Union) to France and Britain.

British Foreign Office spokesmen in London explained today the proposed union was designed to create economic conditions for a "cohesive, prosperous area" in western Europe and was not "in" preparation of war."

He said, however, that a "military alliance" was envisaged as part of the pact.

The British Foreign Office spokesman's statement was made in response to quaries concerning the statement of Oesten Unden, Swedish Foreign Minister, before Parliament in Stockholm today. Unden said "the overwhelming majority of the Swedish people do not wish to join any bloc. Our country must have liberty to choose neutrality."

Communists Use Navy Visits to Assail De Gasperi

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

American warships in the Mediterranean may avoid visits to Italian ports the next few weeks—on Italian advice.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi, diplomatic sources here said yesterday, has told American Ambassador James C. Dunn that this might be wise in view of political conditions in Italy.

Communists, fighting De Gasperi's government, have denounced the presence of American warships.

Informants said the United States could be expected to cooperate with De Gasperi's wishes.

The State Department accused the Communist government of Romania of preparing "to wipe out the last vestige of democratic opposition."

A note delivered in Bucharest Monday, the department said, charged the Romanian government with violating the peace treaty.

Secretary Marshall, in response to inquiries at a news conference, said he had received a report that about 150 or 200 Communists were in parties of Jews seeking immigration into Palestine recently.

Marshall was asked whether he saw any evidence that the Russians had recently become less "intransigent." He said he had not.

find a formula for cutting the program without crippling it, but he has not yet found one. He would like to avert a split and a floor battle within his party. His prestige towers so high on both sides of the Capitol that he probably will succeed without hurting a program in which he believes heart and soul.

2. The long and sterile wrangle about administering the program can be regarded as out of the way. The plan proposed by the Brookings Institution, at Vandenberg's request, meets most of his own wishes, generally satisfies the State Department, and will satisfy many of the most powerful Republican critics of the original Administration proposal. The rival plan sponsored by Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) is fast dropping outof sight, although the House Foreign Affairs Committee plans to hear witnesses in support of it for two weeks beginning February 15.

3. The House committee is dawdling its way through ill-organized and ineffective hearings. At the moment the committee contains almost as many viewpoints as members. The tactics of Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) appear to be no wait until Vandenberg's bill comes from the Senate committee, and then let this bill provide the direction and the drive which have been lacking on the House side so far.

Bill a Crucial Point

The emergence of a "Vandenberg bill" will be a crucial event in the struggle over ERP. For it will be a Republican bill, no matter how sincerely Vandenberg may try to present it as a bipartisan measure. It will carry the name and the backing of the unchallenged Republican leader in the field of foreign policy, and it will be framed so that any resemblance to an Admnistration measure will be "purely coincidental."

Until now the whole program has been tagged as the "Marshall Plan," and some Republicans have been uncomfortable about it as the production of a Democratic Administration. The tag should disappear as soon as Vandenberg's committee reports its bill.

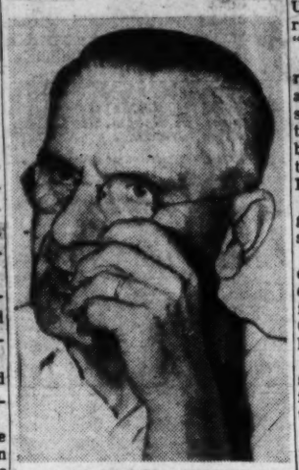
Business Viewpoint Expressed

The Senate committee heard the businessman's viewpoint expressed yesterday by Earl O. Shreve, president of the Chamber of Commerce o the United States. Shreve suggested that "hard-headed business experience should be enlisted to make certain that whatever is done is based on actual needs and not on sentimentality."

He stressed the importance of "definite understandings" to see that the European nations live up to their commitments. He said the United States was "not interested in imposing its political or social system on any other country," but urged that all loans be administered and controlled by American citizens.

Mystery Escape

Kuhn Flees Prison Camp At Dachau



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
FRITZ KUHN,

Munich, Germany, Feb. 4 (AP).—Fritz Kuhn, deported former leader of the German-American Bund, escaped Tuesday under mysterious circumstances from the Dachau internment camp.

Police searched southern Germany for Kuhn, who was being held by Bavarian denazification authorities for possible trial as a Nazi.

No one seemed to know how he got out of the German-operated prison camp. Prison inmates were the first to report his disappearance.

Kuhn, who once thundered praise of Adolf Hitler at Bund rallies in Madison Square Garden, was sentenced to jail in 1939 for misappropriation of Bund funds.

In 1943 he was deprived of his citizenship. He was ordered deported to Germany in 1945 as a dangerous alien enemy.

Military government authorities arrested him upon his arrival in Germany, but he was released in April, 1946. Last July he was jailed by the Germans.

Briton Blasts 'Imperialist' Soviet in U. N.

Lake Success, Feb. 4 (U.P.)—Britain branded Russia as an "expanding, imperialist power" in the United Nations today, and Russia replied, the British charge was "extremely hostile."

Christopher P. Mayhew, British representative in the Economic and Social Council, accused Russia of exploiting eastern Europe through commercial combines and by preventing economic aid from the western powers. He depended Britain's colonial policy.

A. A. Arutinian, the Soviet delegate, called the charge a "monstrous falsehood."

"If life is so sweet in the British colonies," Arutinian barked, "why do the colonial peoples struggle for freedom? Why did a man like (Mohandas K.) Gandhi devote his life to such a struggle."

Mayhew replied, " "British non-self governing territories are open for all to see. We have nothing to hide, but that is not true of the Soviet Union."

Of Russian standards of living, Mayhew said:

"I have no doubt that in many cases they are substantially below those existing in many of the non-self governing territories of the British Commonwealth. Exactly how far below is, of course, a Soviet secret. The secret of Russian propaganda lies in keeping Russia secret."

Germans End Strike, Threaten New Action

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 4 (AP). Western Germany's biggest strike since pre-Nazi days ended at midnight, but union leaders threatened even more drastic action unless German officials improve the food ration.

Two to three million strikers returned to work after the 24-hour "hunger" walkout.

Clay Sees Reich Aid For Europe

Paris, Feb. 4 (NYHT).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay said today Germany in 1948 would be able to contribute to the recovery of Europe.

The American military governor also said the United States was prepared to lean over backward to accept French conditions for participation in a tri-zonal arrangement. But even on a bi-zonal basis, he said, German, would be able to help in reconstruction of Europe.

Replying to French complaints, he said Anglo-American objectives were purely economic and financial.

Nazi-Soviet Expose Hit

London, Feb. 4 (NYHT).—Foreign Secretary Bevin today criticized the United States State Department's recent publication of documents January 21 showing Nazi-Soviet relations between 1939 and 1941. He indicated they did not tell the whole story.

Bevin told Commons he was considering publication of a similar collection of documents, but refuses to be rushed.

Former Prime Minister Churchill had pressed him to make public the documents but Bevin said he was not sure American publication was "the wisest way of dealing with this problem." He said the American documents were "out of context."

Bevin indicated the American publication had surprised him.

"Apart from what happened in 1939 and 1941," he added, "I have to study what is likely to happen from 1947 to 1948."

Bulgars Form One-Party State

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 3 (Delayed) (AP).—Bulgaria became virtually a one-party state tonight under the iron guidance of its Communist Premier, Georgi Dimitrov.

About 200,000 Bulgars heralded the change by parading past a reviewing stand where Dimitrov stood, flanked by a Russian general. They shouted themselves hoarse acclaiming the 65-year-old chief of state.

The transition was accomplished by a reorganization of the Fatherland Front, which the Communists dominate, from a political coalition to a political party embracing all Bulgarian political parties and virtually all mass organizations and even individuals with no political allegiance.

Included were the following:

Closing of all private religious schools and taking over by the state of all public education.

Socialization of industry and creation of state and cooperative farms.

A foreign policy based on indestructible friendship with the Soviet Union.

The opening of state, municipal, and national stores, bakeries, restaurants and the creation of state monopolies in tobacco, alcohol, liquid fuel, and salt.

Theoretically, other political parties will be able to exist in Bulgaria, but statutes adopted today provide all decisions adopted by the Fatherland Front are binding on all political parties and members.

Dimitrov watched as 1000 delegates voted this program through with machine-like precision. Not a single dissenting vote was heard in two days.

Radical Hat Gives Males A New Look
New York, Feb. 3 —There's a new style trend in men's hats.
It's all wrapped up in a single hat—the "Scoop"—which 50 of the Nation's hatmakers will introduce in stores throughout the country Friday, the Hat Research Foundation said today.
The new hat, which stresses the "narrower look," marks the first time in history that the entire men's headwear industry has joined to back the future of a single design.
A snap brim felt model, it has a 2¼ inch brim. It snaps down in front, curls up in back, and is said to be 30 per cent narrower than conventional designs.
Bert Bacharack, director of the foundation, called it "the first radical style change since the derby gave way to the snap brim felt of 30 years ago."

Scoop
The first radical change in hat styles in thirty years
It could happen to men's hats. It has happened to men's hats! It's the Narrower Look in the snap brim felt. It's as new as tomorrow's paper . . . it's as different from today's hats as the streamliner is from the iron horse. It's the Narrower Look with the 2¼-inch snap brim. The Scoop is the hat which puts the stamp of approval on today's trend toward narrower brims for all ages. Naturally, you'll find The Scoop, by Knox, at Raleigh. Hindu Extremists Outlawed by India

New Delhi, Feb. 4 (AP).—The government outlawed the RSSS tonight and began one of India's greatest manhunts for conspirators in the assassination of Mohandas Gandhi.

(RSSS stands for Rashtriya Swayam Sevak Sangh, national volunteer corps.)

Police said a mass roundup of prominent RSSS and Mahasabha members had begun. They estimated 700 or 800 would be arrested throughout the country. Estimates of the number already seized ranged from 300 to 500. Thirty-three were arrested in Delhi alone before noon.

Tanks and troops in force marched through Delhi's streets as the roundup proceeded.

The RSSS advocates driving all Moslems out of India and making the country all-Hindu.

"Iron Man" Sardar Villabhai Patel, home minister, announcing the RSSS henceforth was illegal because of violence and terrorism.

Police identified Narayan Vinayak Godse, held at Gandhi's assassin, as a member of Mahasabha. Press reports said he also was a member of the RSSS. Police said the plot was hatched in Bombay.

Hindu Maharajah Is Center of Debate

Lake Success, Feb. 4 (AP).—Security Council debate on the India-Pakistan conflict today centered on the Hindu Maharajah of Kashmir.

The semiretired ruler, Sir Hari Singh, acceded to India late last year subject to a plebiscite.

Jose Arce, Argentine delegate, said the Maharajah is an absolute sovereign, but the people of Kashmir might decide to remain an independent state.

Warren R. Austin of the United States said with the accession of Kashmir to India, the Maharajah's sovereignty went over to India.

Reds Push Drive South of Mukden

Peiping, Feb. 4 (AP).—Chinese Communist blows threatened today to topple a big government base south of Mukden before fresh Nationalist troops sent to Manchuria can go into action.

The base is Chinhsien, 140 miles southwest of Mukden on the railway to Peiping.

Press dispatches said strong Communist attacks had carried to within three miles of Chinhsien

Inflation Control Hopes Flicker Low

Prospects for Major Legislation Now Appears Confined to Rent Extension

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Inflation legislation appeared yesterday to be confined, at least for many weeks, to some form of rent control extension.

Hearings on inflation controls before the Senate Banking Committee are due to end today or tomorrow.

Though that group may not get around to voting on bills until another ten days have passed, it appeared probable that it would defeat by a sizable majority Administration-backed proposals for price ceilings, mandatory allocations and other major controls.

Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.), a strong supporter of the Administration measures, admitted yesterday that most of the program was doomed.

A subcommittee has already voted down a proposal by Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) for "stand-by" meat-rationing power. It is likely that the full committee will sustain that negative action.

This leaves, then, only a measure now being drafted by another subcommittee on rent control extension. Present powers over rents expire at the end of this month.

According to the subcommittee chairman, Senator Cain (R., Wash.), the bill may come to the Senate floor for its action on February 18. He expects completion of its drafting tomorrow. No committee action on it seems possible next week, owing to the general congressional exodus for the Jackson and Lincoln days' speech-making. But by February 17, Cain hopes for full committee consideration of the bill.

As the bill appears to be shaping up, it would extend rent controls for another year or 14 months. It probably will not grant any across-the-board blanket rent increase, but will give greater liberty to landlords to raise rents on proof of hardships or added costs.

Still a matter of argument, it appeared, was whether to "recontrol" those rents that have already been raised 15 per cent under voluntary contracts. Unless other action is taken, those rents would be completely uncontrolled as of the end of this year.

Sentiment is strong to include in the bill some blanket decontrol of units renting at rates above a specific figure, such as $150 or $250 a month.

In yesterday's battle of witnesses before the Banking Committee, the brunt of the argument in favor of extensive controls was carried by Emil Rieve, president of the CIO textile workers and chairman of the CIO Full Employment Committee.

In general, he supported the 10-point control program originally advanced by President Truman, but he added to it a proposal for a temporary over-all price freeze. He said none of the bills pending before the committee went far enough.

Our own experience and that of Scandinavian and other countries "clearly shows" that a well-administered price control act would keep prices down, he said. But in the meantime, he declared, working-class families are forced to dip into savings and cash war bonds to make both ends meet.

What amounted to a rebuttal was presented by Dr. Emerson P. Schmidt, economic research director of the Chamber of Commerce.

Hans A. Eggerss, president of Continental Can Company, contended that supplies of tin were ample, and that controls over tin should be allowed to expire on February 29.

Three spokesmen for various branches of the copper industry argued that copper supplies were sufficient for all primary needs, and no price or allocation controls were warranted for that metal.

Voluntary Rationing Planned for Nation

Representatives of 18 consumer, producer and distributor groups will meet today with Secretary of Agriculture Anderson to map details of the Nation-wide program.

Charles F. Brannan, assistant Secretary of Agriculture, will head the new food saving campaign. Originally started by the Citizens Food Committee last fall, it has been carried on until now under the direct leadership of the Cabinet Food Committee.

Fuel Oil Pinch Here Grows, Krug Aid Asked

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A plea to Interior Secretary Krug for five million gallons of fuel oil to relieve the District's "very serious" shortage was made yesterday as emergency oil allotments here were cut in half.

Deliveries from the District's oil stockpile were cut from 100 to 50 gallons by order of Fuel Coordinator J. Thomas Kennedy.

The five million gallons of oil is needed to supply the Petrol Corp. through February, the District Commissioners told Krug. Petrol furnishes 20 per cent of metropolitan Washington's fuel oil.

Ninety-five per cent of the hardship cases reported to the District Fuel Oil Coordinator are caused by Petrol's shortages, the Commissioners said, and other suppliers cannot absorb these needs.

No More From Navy

An official of the Interior Department's gas and oil division said the District's request would be placed before the East Coast Advisory Committee of the oil industry, named Tuesday night.

Any hope of an additional oil loan from the Navy, similar to the 735,000 gallons already loaned to the District, apparently ended with a Navy Department comment yesterday that areas which already received loans will get no further supplies.

The possibility of a more drastic method of distributing existing stocks of oil was reportedy under consideration here yesterday.

Deliveries from the District stockpile, composed of oil set aside by suppliers and dealers, already is made on a limited priority basis, with first delivery to homes with children or where persons are ill.

85,000 Gallons In Pool

Commissioner Guy Mason said some more stringent priority system may be needed but that is up to Coordinator Kennedy.

Kennedy said there is now about 85,000 gallons of oil in the emergency pool, including 49,500 gallons promised by Merchants and Manufacturers Association dealers. As of yesterday morning, he said, he had 15,000 gallons of equally scarce kerosene on hand.

Although two fuel oil barges came up the Potomac River yesterday, oilmen said the supply is entirely on a "day-to-day" basis, dependent upon weather and river conditions.

. . . LIGHT ON THE PALESTINE ARMS ISSUE

(From an editorial which appeared in the New York HERALD-TRIBUNE on January 20th, 1948)

Arms for Palestine

It is "indefensible," as the newly-formed Committee to Arm the Jewish State declares, for the United States to put its whole influence behind the creation of a Jewish state in Palestine and then impose an embargo on the export of the arms which are more and more plainly indispensable to such a state's survival. The notion that there is something immoral about providing arms in a situation which one has deliberately created with the full knowledge that arms would be necessary is redolent of that mawkishness which seems too often to confuse every international issue. The first and simplest answer to the sudden question of arms for Palestine is to lift the embargo at once. The least which the United States can offer to the Jewish Agency and to Haganah is free access to the available supplies or weapons for self-defense.

This is the first and obvious answer. It is not the full answer. The questions of security and of enforcement were obviously central to the United Nations' decision for a partition of Palestine; yet these were precisely the questions which were shirked by all the great powers. They cannot be shirked much longer. The legal foundations for the partition of Palestine have been left on swampy ground. Legally, partition has been "recommended" by the General Assembly as a measure for meeting a situation, in the language of the Charter, "likely to impair the general welfare of friendly relations among nations." The Arab states are fomenting a warlike rebellion against this recommendation. They can truthfully assert that the Assembly has no binding power; on the other hand, they are themselves bound by the general obligation on all U. N. members to settle international disputes only by peaceful means and to refrain from the threat or use of force in any manner "inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations."

Administration of partition, in the transition period, was vested by the Assembly in its Palestine Commission. But the Assembly, aware of the uncertainty of the authority thus conferred, specifically requested that if a threat to peace arose during the transition period, the Security Council should act under its general power to deal with such threats. The threat has not only arisen; it is imminent. There is no reason why the United States should deny arms to the Jewish community in Palestine But there is at the same time every reason why the United States should raise the basic question of enforcement in the Security Council, at once and emphatically, and demand a clear decision on the underlying responsibilities. Without it, this country will have to give Jewish Palestine access to arms, since this country was so largely instrumental in offering Jewish Palestine a freedom which every one knew would be dangerous. But since it is the U. N. Assembly, under the egis of the Security Council, which has decreed and is immediately responsible for partition, the United States both may and must ask a decision on enforcement from the Council.

Storm Mishaps Put 100 in Hospitals

Falls and traffic accidents on streets made treacherous by the snowfall sent more than 100 persons to District Hospitals yesterday.

Police received reports of 95 traffic accidents and 37 falls during the eight-hour period from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

A check of nine District hospitals showed that more than 80 persons were treated for injuries suffered in falls. The check disclosed that, of the fall victims, 20 were admitted to District hospitals and one to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, Md.

Despite the high number of traffic accidents—many of them minor—only one person was injured seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Lieut. William Liverman, police veteran of 23 years and head of the Accident Investigation Unit, said the number of accidents was one of the highest he has ever known for an eight-hour period in the District. He said, too, that the traffic snarl was undoubtedly the worst this winter.

Skidding and stalling of autos on slippery streetcar tracks and grades and hills were the two primary causes of the accidents and tieups, Liverman said. He said the worst period was between 7 and 10 a. m.

During the morning, police broadcast warnings to motorists not to drive unless absolutely necessary, and if they did, to use chains.

The police and fire emergency ambulance service was flooded with calls. Between 8 and 11:30 a. m., 23 ambulance calls were received. Normally, about two or three calls would have been received.

Usually, there would have been six ambulances on call—two from the Health Department, two from the Fire Department and one each from Emergency and Casualty hospitals. Because of the emergency, a reserve Fire Department ambulance and an extra one from Casualty Hospital were pressed into service.

Police scout cars were used to transport injured persons to hospitals on several occasions when no ambulance was available.

Casualty Hospital treated 10 victims of falls. Seven of them were admitted. Those admitted with broken bones were:
Christine Holloman, 38, 1139 5th st. ne.
Mrs. Violetta Mangum, 53, 1620 28 pl. se.
Calvin Brady, 21, 20 Rhode Island ave. nw.
William M. Lee, 48, 4425 Kane pl. se.
Virginia Marshall, 43, 1219 Stevens rd. se.
John S. McKenna, 42, 1 18th st. se.
Demaris Williams, 25, 322 Shepherd st. nw.

Harry Obree, 50, 401 Boyd ave., Takoma Park, Md.
Mrs. Larry Anderson, 45, 1916 Calvert st. nw.
Helen Bryan, 54, Maine Hall, Arlington Farms, Va.
Mrs. Frieda Roberts, 44, 6400 31st pl. nw.

John Malier, 52, 3800 Porter st. nw.
Mrs. Minnie Gregory, 56, of 4225 45th st. nw.

Of eight treated at Garfield Hospital, three were admitted: Malcolm G. Hankins, 58, 3315 Legation st. nw.; Mary E. Kelley, 62, 6213 14th st. nw.; Mabel Barkley, 50, 242 Tuckerman st. nw.

George Washington University Hospital admitted Mrs. Della Riley, 53, 6020 13th pl. nw.

Providence Hospital treated 11 and admitted Miss Alvina Musil, 57, 518 9th st. nw.; Mrs. Edna Walmsley, 58, 26 Old Glebe rd., Arlington, Va.

Helen Jere[illegible], 28, 649 Lexington pl. ne., suffered a back injury in a fall at Wisconsin ave. and Grant rd. nw. and was taken to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, by the Chevy Chase rescue squad ambulance.

Three other hospitals treated victims of falls but admitted none. Freedmen's treated seven, Sibley two, and Gallinger six.

In traffic accidents, the only person injured badly enough to require admission to a hospital was Eddie Lee Jefferson, 37, of 309 1st st. ne. He was struck by a streetcar while shoveling snow from tracks in the 400 block of Independence ave. sw. at 11:15 a. m. Casualty Hospital said his condition was not serious.

Police said the streetcar was operated by James H. Speight, 61, of 1302 Michigan ave., Alexandria, Va.

Two persons were injured at 9:30 a. m. when a skidding W. M. & A. bus struck a lamppost on Constitution ave. nw. between New Jersey ave. and 1st st.

The injured were Richard L. Robey, 42, the driver, of 1310 50th ave. se., and a passenger, Oletta Ricketts, 31, of 1820 Fort Davis st. se. Both were treated at Casualty Hospital for back injuries.

Snow, Sleet Plague City

example of the "bumbling" of the present District government.

Representative Edward J. Devitt (R., Minn.) told the House he was for home rule in the District, but first an adequate appropriation was needed for snow removal equipment.

It took him 90 minutes to get to the Capitol yesterday morning, he complained.

District Sanitary Division Superintendent William Xanten had a ready answer to both, particularly Devitt. Said he:

"We just don't have the money." Snow removal as quickly as that required yesterday morning "isn't done in any city in the world. It can't be done."

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett was among those stuck by snow and traffic. Barrett was trapped at Park pl. and Michigan ave. nw.

Areas as close as Quantico had but small snow flurries, quickly turning to rain, while the white blanket settled over Washington.

The temperature in Washington when the snow began at 5:55 a. m. was 30 degrees.

The Weather Bureau telephones were handling at least 60 calls an hour and slightly over the normal 40,000 to 50,000 calls on the dial query—WE 1212. During the last few months, the WE 1212 number averaged over 70,000 per day.

Intercity bus travel, save from the West, was only slightly disrupted until the buses began trying to solve Washington's early-morning traffic tangle. Railroad operation was normal and airlines were operating into National Airport on schedule, even at the height of the snowfall.

More cold, but not the extremes of 10 days ago, spread over the Midwest and the upper reaches of New England. Nadeau's Saw Mill in Lyndon, Vt., and the Squa Pan railroad station in Aroostook County, Me., reported unofficial lows of 54 degrees below zero. The coldest official report was from Presque Isle, Me., with 27 degrees below. Burlington, Vt., had 20 and Concord, N. H., 8 degrees below.

Boston and Providence, R. I., reported 6 below.

Wind-driven snow harassed New York City, with 8 inches predicted.

Snow was particularly heavy in Ohio, northern Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska had light snow and freezing rain.

Contrapuntal Comedy

Ethel and Hoagy Leaven 'Genius'

By Richard L. Coe

KEITH'S "NIGHT SONG" is chockful of Genius, a commodity with which this reporter is acquainted only at second-hand.

Genius seems to be one of those virtues which it is simpler to possess than to write about or picture. The movies, of course, burn candles before the altar of Genius with childlike abandon, and if anything stirs the mechanics of the film-makers more than Genius it is Genius hampered with some such impedimenta as blindness, deafness or whooping cough.

The movies, too, frequently confuse Fame with Genius. Whenever one comes across Genius in the movies one is told that "everyone must know about this," that the possessor of this inspired gift must become, at all costs, "Famous." With Fame, of course, come Riches and Applause and a reluctant goodby to such simple pleasures as spaghetti and balcony seats.

"Night Song" observes this notion with gargantuan respect, to the point of being, most of the time, a crashing bore. Dana Andrews plays a blind pianist whose Genius is immediately recognized in a small night club by a mink-swathed patroness of the arts, Merle Oberon. He will, of course, have nothing to do with her because she is a rich female and he a poor, blind male.

This stubbornness prompts Miss Oberon to masquerade as a poor, blind girl herself, but through her alter ego she sets up a prize for a piano concerto which, as the blind girl, she induces him to enter. Naturally he wins, and with the money buys an operation which restores his sight. When he meets the rich, healthy Merle he falls in love with her and has to battle with his conscience about the blind girl he's left behind in California. An ordinary blind man, of course, would immediately recognize Merle's voice, but evidently the hearing of Genius, even if it be in a musician, is not tuned to the obvious.

"NIGHT SONG," RKO release produced by Harriet Parsons. Screenplay by Frank Fenton and Dick Irving Hyland from a story by Highland. Directed by John Cromwell. Music by Leith Stevens. Special song by Hoagy Carmichael, Fred Spielman and Janice Torre. At Keith's.

THE CAST

Barrymore-Carmichael Team

The composition Leith Stevens has written for him is conceivably a work of Genius, for in the film it is played by the New York Philharmonic Symphony conducted by Eugene Ormandy, with Artur Rubinstein as soloist. To these ears it sounded loud, lush and derivative. But then, Ormandy, Rubinstein and the orchestra must have been handsomely paid for the polished respect they show for it.

All this gloom is relieved considerably by an unlikely new comedy team, Ethel Barrymore and Hoagy Carmichael. Queen B. plays Miss Oberon's wise, bemused aunt, King C. is Andrews' long-time pal. Their scenes have much life in them, their contrasting styles fitting neatly together.

One good thing that might come out of "Night Song" is a costarring vehicle for Barrymore and Carmichael. Hoagy's also got a new song at the piano, "Who Killed 'Er" (much more refreshing than the concerto), and for that alone he should get stellar rating. Yes, it sounds odd, but Miss Barrymore and Carmichael make a nifty team.

Howard U. Offers 'All My Sons' First Time in D.C.

Last season's New York Drama Critic's Circle prize play, "All My Sons," which is not expected to be presented here professionally, is being given its first Washington performance by the Howard Players of Howard University.

The performance is a fine and workmanlike one. Dr. Anne Cooke, the university's director of drama, and Owen Dodson of the staff have produced the drama with real skill, generally overcoming the technical deficiencies of the small Spaulding Hall. Their offering will be repeated nightly at 8:30 in the campus theater through Saturday evening.

Arthur Miller's drama concerns an industrialist of the Midwest whose factory turned out some wartime cylinder heads which he knew to be imperfect. He has passed the blame on to his weak partner, but one of his sons, a pilot, guessed his father's guilt and committed suicide. The younger son, reluctant to believe his father's guilt, ultimately hammers home the facts of his brother's death to teach his parent that those who died were "all his sons."

James W. Butcher, jr., of the teaching staff, is first-rate as the father, creating that sympathy which is so important to the role. Though she is far too young to be the mother, Zaida Coles does a particularly fine job in the climactic third act. Louis Stanley Paige, as the intense, troubled son, makes much of the part, and Hilmar Jensen, jr., has a facile style in a less important role of a neighbor. Carol Foster and Robert Twiggs, jr., are effective as the jailed partner's children.

Based on this production alone, Howard University's players must rank as one of the Capital's most persuasive amateur acting groups.

Danilova Asks Miss Truman To 'Spark' Hall

Alexandra Danilova, the great lady of ballet, yesterday suggested that "something concrete might be done" about Washington's lack of a suitable concert-ballet-opera stage if Margaret Truman would lend her vitality to such a project.

The President's daughter, unfortunately, had left for New Orleans before she could be reached for comment on the dancer's suggestion. She is not expected back at the White House for another week or 10 days.

"Everyone," mused the celebrated ballerina, "talks and talks about the need for a decent home in this capital of the most powerful Nation on earth for opera and ballet. Yet no one ever does anything about it.

"By 'do anything' I mean," she went on, "start a fund for such a project. The hall can't be built right away, but the fund could start with five dollars in the bank. Surely there are wealthy people here who would be interested and I know the professional musicians and dancers would be glad to give benefit performances for such a fund."

Miss Danilova, whose work keeps her from long residence in any country, soon will be a full-fledged U. S. citizen, an event to which she is looking forward with touching pride. She made it clear she doesn't want to seem like "some oreigner" complaining about America.

"But dancing in Constitution Hall is truly difficult," she smiled. There's not enough room, the lights necessarily concentrated, blind one and it's impossible to see the conductor. I must compliment the National Symphony, for it played with great spirit and "Gaite Parisienne" the other night was great fun. But dancing in Washington isn't the pleasure it should be.

Miss Danilova, who will be dancing one of her classics tonight at Constitution Hall—"Swan Lake"—interpolated her remarks about the D. A. R. hall with praise for the increased concert facilities in other cities throughout the country, but her recurring question only echoed what other singers and dancers have asked before her: "What's wrong with the most important capital city of them all?"—R.L.C.

Subcommittee Cuts Truman's 1949 Budget by 2.5 Billions

six-billion-dollar House cut, for yielding so easily. Cannon then demanded a vote on the three-billion "compromise" but didn't get it. Later when the 2.6-billion-dollar debt payment figure came up for a vote, Cannon moved to increase the recommended payment on the debt to five billion. His motion was defeated by a party-line vote.

Commenting on the proposed 2½-billion cut in spending, Taber told reporters:

"This doesn't prevent those of us who would like to see more cuts from trying to exceed this figure. Frankly, I think Senator Bridges and I both would like to see that figure exceeded as much as possible."

Bridges said the group decided to comply with the congressional reorganization law, requiring legislative budget recommendations by February 15, even though it wasn't possible to reach "an exact, or scientific or realistic figure at this time."

He told reporters it was Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) who advised the group the President attend to submit one billion additional in foreign aid estimates. George said later the information came to him from a reliable source. He said he understood that amount would be asked to aid China and for occupation costs in Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea. He said part of the amount undoubtedly already is included in the budget.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall later told a news conference further military aid to Turkey and Greece is being considered. He indicated the Greek-Turkish recommendations will be submitted to Congress shortly, along with recommendations for aid to China and other countries not included in the Marshall Plan.

While the budget makers figured ceilings, the House-passed tax cut rected quietly on a Finance Committee shelf. It probably won't reach the Senate, in modified form, until Congress agrees definitely on a Marshall Plan figure.

Senate Democratic leaders, who shortly will call a full Democratic caucus on both tax cutting and ERP, meanwhile conferred for two hours on Democratic tax strategy.

Minority Leader Barkley hinted Senate Democrats will prepare their own tax revision plan, but declined to discuss details at this stage. Asked if he thought two thirds of the Senate (a veto-overriding majority) favored tax reduction he said that depended on the "method." He said there is a "general feeling" the 6.5 billion dollar Knutson cuts couldn't clear the Senate.

Pulitzer Award Under Attack

New York, Feb. 4 (U.P.).—Carl W. Ackerman, dean of Columbia University School of Journalism, today rejected a suggestion by a Columbia professor that the Pulitzer committee rescind the prize it awarded last spring to Frederick Woltman of the New York World Telegram for his expose of Communist front organizations.

Prof. Clyde R. Miller protested the award as "incompatible with the tradition of liberalism and integrity common to the old New York World of Joseph Pulitzer and to Columbia University," and urged it be rescinded. He ascribed "deliberate distortion of facts" and "malicious propaganda" to Woltman.

SOS Arouses Hopes for Air Survivors

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP).—Rescue agencies and hundreds of "hams" listened tonight for possible renewal of faint SOS messages which brought hope that survivors of the missing British airliner, Star Tiger, may be adrift on the Atlantic.

The Star Tiger disappeared with 29 persons on board last Thursday while approaching Bermuda.

Messages ending with the word "Tiger" were picked up on a continuous wave length from Florida to Newfoundland and inland as far as Chicago during the early morning hours.

The Coast Guard reported CAA stations at three points had picked up the full name "Star Tiger."

The FCC ordered mobile radio units set up to obtain a definite bearing on the sender.

The hoax angle was not overlooked. The messages were sent on voice equipment at 3105 kilocycles, standard length for plane-to-ground frequency. The ending was done by someone who apparently did not know the international code.

One bearing made by an Army station placed the signal somewhere north of the Leeward Islands in the Atlantic. Two bearings are necessary and three are desired. (The northermost leeward island is several hundred miles east of Puerta Rico.)

Forrestal Merges ATC, Naval Air Transport Service

Secretary of Defense Forrestal yesterday announced the consolidation of the Air Transport Command and Naval Air Transport Service into a single "military air transport service," as forecast by The Washington Post.

"MATS," as the new service is known, will be under jurisdiction of the Air Force. Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, USAF, will take command on March 1, when released from his present job as American representative to the International Civil Aviation Organization. Rear Admiral John P. Whitney will report immediately as deputy commander.

The Navy will continue to operate some air transport of sole naval interest and mantain part of the planes, crews and facilities of "MATS." An advisory board of representatives of the Army, Navy and Air Force will pass on complaints and disputes among the services.

Reporter Control

The Army has acted with commendable promptness to clear up a damaging misunderstanding regarding accreditation of press correspondents in Japan. A "reporter control" restriction invoked the other day by General MacArthur purportedly barred from accreditation in Japan any reporter who intended to cover assignments elsewhere in Asia. The reason given was lack of housing facilities. This order was interpreted, not without justification, as containing overtones of censorship on criticism of American occupation policy, a subject on which General MacArthur is known to be sensitive.

This implication made it all the more important for the Army to explain and expound, which it has now done. The regulations will have no effect on temporary accreditation granted to roving reporters who intend to visit Japan in connection with tours of the Far East generally. Moreover, the Army has modified the MacArthur ruling to permit correspondents permanently accredited to MacArthur's headquarters to leave Japan for up to 30 days in each six-month period.

What limitation has been approved has to do primarily with the matter of housing for American families in Japan. Housing is requisitioned for families of reporters permanently assigned to Japan, and such families have use of Army commissaries and post exchanges. In order to obtain living quarters on this basis, reporters must signify their intention to remain in Japan for at least a year. The order is directed against abuse of this privilege by persons who bring their families to Japan to avoid high housing costs, say, in Shanghai or Manila, and then on the pretext of permanency proceed to spend most of their time outside Japan. Though it may seem a tempest in a teapot, we think the Army is entirely within reason in denying facilities to such persons while there is an extreme housing shortage in Japan and the Army must provide food for families involved.

Radio Politics

The principal effect of the Federal Communications Commission's proposed ruling barring censorship of political speeches by radio stations, even though such speeches may be libelous, is to enlarge on a hitherto unclear provision of the Federal Communications Act. As the agency charged with interpreting the Federal Communications Act, the FCC holds that this act was meant by Congress to supersede those laws of libel which might result in suits against radio stations for the content of political broadcasts. The commission recognizes the personal liability of candidates making political broadcasts, but on the question of censorship by radio stations to exclude libel it notes: "The commission does not believe it was the intent of Congress to give the licensees any such power or responsibility with respect to political broadcasts."

Manifestly the invocation of censorship of political broadcasts is open to great abuse. For the nature of political campaigns is such that many statements by both sides are actionable; and if a radio station seeks to remove any possibility of suit, then political broadcasts may be reduced to meaningless generalities. As the commission argues:

> If the criterion for such censorship is to be merely whether the questionable item might possibly subject the station to suit, a category which as we have seen can be expanded to include almost every conceivable charge against the opposition, the opportunity for favoritism and discrimination would be omnipresent.

However, the commission's finding that "the station . . . is also relieved by operation of Federal law from any responsibility for libelous material" is not likely in itself, in our opinion, to reassure radio stations whose money is involved. Indeed, the commission's decision may be viewed by some as an invasion of the prerogatives of management, since radio stations hitherto have been free to exercise judgment as to the good taste of their programs, and may now feel under pressure to withhold such a judgment in respect of political broadcasts.

It is plain, we think, that there now exists a contradiction between libel laws and the Federal Communications Act which the FCC decision cannot resolve. Indeed, since broadcasters are in effect told to ignore libel laws, the problem, if anything, becomes even more controversial. There are two ways out of the dilemma. One is for the validity of the commission's interpretation to be tested in the Supreme Court. The other, and to our mind preferable, way is for Congress specifically to legislate absolution of radio stations from libel responsibility for political broadcasts.

Is It Constitutional?

"My conclusion," said Walter F. Fowler, District budget officer, in testifying on the Auchincloss-Ball home-rule bill, "is that so little power is granted to the council as to make the whole idea of home rule a mockery." On the same day, Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West had told the committee that the bill would give the proposed District council so much power that it would be unconstitutional. Those contrary views would seem to cancel each other out.

Still, we doubt that the conflict between Mr. Fowler and Mr. West is as great as the conflict of Mr. Fowler with himself. He fervently declared that "the condition of political servitude imposed on residents of the District violates every principle of justice" and then excoriated the home-rule bill because it would not achieve the Utopia of national representation along with local self-government. That attitude of "all or none"—which, in the context of 70 years of history, has come to mean none—seems to us so self-contradictory as to be incomprehensible.

Careful attention ought be given, however, to the objections raised by Corporation Counsel West. He makes a strong argument against the constitutionality of the device by which the District council would enact local legislation to become effective if not disapproved by the House, the Senate or the President. His argument applies, of course, only to "legislation" as distinct from municipal ordinances. "It is well settled," Mr. West agrees, "that Congress may grant to the government of the District of Columbia authority to exercise municipal powers." And ordinary municipal powers include the power to borrow money and to levy local taxes within limits prescribed by legislation and to spend the funds thus raised. In other words, the authority of Congress to grant the District a very broad measure of home rule is not questioned.

What Mr. West is striking at is the additional grant of authority, under the bill, for the proposed council to pass legislation similar to that enacted by the State legislatures. Numerous authorities believe that Congress may, under the Constitution, allow the council to act as its agent in this respect, if the veto power is retained in both the House and Senate. Congress authorized the President to reorganize the Federal Government under a similar check. We do not think that the delegation of legislative powers to a District government would set a precedent for shifting the entire policy-making function from Congress to the President, as Mr. West suggests. The delegation in this case would be limited both as to area and as to general purpose and either house of Congress could immediately assert its control.

Some members of the joint committee conducting the hearings have indicated that they might favor positive action by Congress before local legislation of this type could become effective. That would, of course, be a handicap on the local government. But it would be infinitely better than the unrepresentative, hodge-podge local government that we have now. Mr. West's argument does not strike at the basic validity of the home-rule bill.

Hidden Assets

The plan indorsed by the National Advisory Council for helping foreign countries to locate assets belonging to their nationals concealed in this country does not imply approval of proposals to make forced liquidation of foreign-owned American assets a condition of receiving aid from us. On the contrary, Secretary Snyder, who is president of the Advisory Council, reiterates his objections to such proposals. He points out that to force European countries to exhaust their gold and dollar balances would merely aggravate the existing instability of their monetary systems. Moreover, most of the participating countries have already reduced such balances down to or below the safety level. Compulsory liquidation of European investments likewise would deprive participating countries of dollar earnings from such investments, with the result that their balance of payments situation would go from bad to worse.

In helping foreign countries to locate hidden American assets belonging to their nationals the Treasury is not putting pressure on foreign governments to convert those assets to their own use. It is simply responding to repeated appeals from those governments for assistance in identifying the holdings of their citizens that have hitherto been concealed. The use made of the information supplied by us is their affair. Furthermore, the plan does not affect the great mass of free foreign-owned assets about which the governments concerned already have adequate information. Since most countries require their nationals to declare their foreign holdings, concealment of the identity of non-enemy foreign owners of American assets indicates that the owners are acting in violation of the laws of their own countries. The Treasury has, therefore, agreed to a procedure designed to force owners of blocked assets—that is, assets held by the Foreign Funds Control of the Treasury—to disclose their names.

A large part of the formerly blocked assets belonging to individuals in neutral countries and once occupied areas have already been released in accordance with the certification procedure required by the Government. But the Treasury still holds a "fairly substantial amount" of blocked assets belonging to individual citizens of various countries or held for their benefit by Swiss intermediaries. Disclosure of ownership of these blocked assets is to be forced by serving notice that three months hence all remaining blocked assets will be transferred to the Alien Property Custodian. Thereafter the names of owners will be given to the countries concerned and assets will be released only if subsequent investigation shows that those assets are really owned by residents of such countries. Assets held by third parties (for example, French assets in Swiss accounts), if not certified before the deadline date, will be taken over by the United States Government. And failure to obtain certification will be regarded as presumptive evidence that the assets are enemy-owned, since their owners choose to forfeit them rather than disclose their identities. The largest amount of concealed private blocked assets held directly and indirectly in a form that would permit of their being used to meet overseas payments or supplement official reserves are French-owned. Estimates of such French holdings range from 300 million dollars to 450 million dollars.

Objections have been raised to the plan, and they are plausible. The plan, it is said, commits us to a policy of helping foreign countries to enforce their own exchange laws, that it puts us in the position of supporting partial confiscation of private property by countries engaged in compelling their nationals to surrender their American dollar assets for payment in local currencies at rates that do not provide fair compensation. Nevertheless, we are faced with conditions that justify unusual measures. American taxpayers are being asked to make large contributions to European recovery. Consequently it seems only fair to assist the efforts of foreign governments to obtain control of dollars concealed by their own people in defiance of the laws of their several countries—dollars that would, to a limited extent, relieve the burden imposed on the American people. The plan finally devised will at least propitiate, though it will not satisfy, critics who insist that all American assets belonging to the nationals of Marshall Plan countries should be surrendered by their owners for the use of their governments as a means of cutting the cost to American taxpayers of the European relief program.

Probing The AEC

The bill introduced by Senator Knowland requiring FBI investigation of Atomic Energy Commission members might be dismissed as merely silly if it were not so patent and offensive a reflection of the hysteria which attended confirmation of David E. Lilienthal and his colleagues less than a year ago. Presidential nominees have perhaps never been so closely scrutinized or so cruelly cross-examined as were these men in the course of the hearings before the Senate members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy. Their loyalty, which could have been questioned in the first instance only by such minds as Senator McKellar's, was proved beyond peradventure. But now, in the expectation that they will be renominated by the President when their short initial terms expire next August, Senator Knowland wants the FBI to probe their pasts anew—as though their distinguished records of public service were to be considered of no account.

This bill is, of course, an affront not only to the commission members but to the President as well and, in addition, as Senator McMahon pointed out, an unwarranted interference with the executive appointing power. Its most sinister aspect, however, is its elevation of the FBI to an authority which no police agency should enjoy in a society supposed to be free. If the FBI should produce what it deems to be derogatory information about one of the commissioners, it is scarcely to be supposed that it would reveal the source of its information to mere members of the Senate any more than it would do so to members of the Loyalty Review Board. Its simple disparagement would thus be made tantamount to disqualification—even of men nominated by the President of the United States.

If the security of the country really requires FBI investigation—which, in the circumstances, is to say approval—of persons chosen to direct the development of atomic energy, then plainly it requires FBI investigation of the person chosen to direct the Army or the country's foreign policy—indeed, of every member of the Cabinet and of the President himself. And, when you come to think of it, can the country afford to take for granted the loyalty of the men appointed to the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, including even Senator Knowland? But when the FBI has at last investigated and cleared these Senators, the country's security will still not be complete. For who, then, is to investigate and establish the loyalty of the investigators?

ASK WITH REASON

It is man's testament, to war with life,
To suck love like a fruit and spit it out;
To take for sleeping, death, the dormant wife
Surrendering sorrow with a muffled shout.
It is man's pleasure and his chosen pain—
The suffering singing leading down the dark
Atomic streetway where the living, slain,
Sleep on untallied, immovable and stark
As printed white upon a pageless place.
It is man's testament, his destiny
To kill and be killed with a sly-eyed grace.
It is his habit and his horror, we
Forgive him and ourselves, though ask with reason,
Why trade self-terror for a self-sought treason?

Gandhi's Impetus

Gandhi died while trying to prevent genocide, the heinous crime of destruction of religious, racial and national groups, in India. India was officially accused by Pakistan of genocide at the present session of the Security Council.

The Assembly of the United Nations in December, 1946, unanimously adopted a resolution calling for a treaty for prevention and punishment of genocide. Work on the treaty has been lamentably slow. There have been more than a million victims of genocide since adoption of the genocide resolution in December, 1946.

Gandhi's tragic death should be the inspiration for immediate adoption of the final treaty on genocide by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations which opened at Lake Success February 2.

Antiquated Welfare

According to The Washington Post of January 27, salary due to the late Director of Public Welfare, Ray L. Huff, is being held pending a review of errors that have been made through the years in the money given to some few of the people receiving help from the Board of Public Welfare. This deplorable withholding of salary earned by the director during his life points to the crying need to modernize our welfare legislation in the District of Columbia.

It is difficult to see how we can hope to attract an able director to the Board of Public Welfare nor able staff members to assist him as long as we have such antiquated legislation on the books. The staff of the Board of Public Welfare in their various capacities issue thousands of checks each year to families in need of financial help. There will be occasional errors; they may be small ones such as an error of a few cents in adding a column of figures, or larger errors such as those involved in giving financial help where a family is not entitled to receive it. Any sensible person knows that errors are inevitable in a large operation of any kind.

The idea that a director of public welfare or any members of his staff should be personally financially responsible for such errors is absurd. It would be just as sensible to hold the Commissioners or the collector of taxes responsible for any errors in tax collection. The Commissioners now have before them legislation which would modernize our welfare program and among other things abolish this antiquated provision. It is to be hoped that they will act promptly in pressing for action from the Congress on this legislation.

History Predicament

When I read your January 31 story, "D. C.. History Teaching Hit and Defended," I was reminded of the remark of a friend who said, "I once asked a teacher of history in a Washington high school if he taught only the letter of the law in the Constitution or the letter together with the practice of the law in American life. The poor man didn't even know what I meant."

The predicament of that history teacher, I believe, is also the predicament of most of our school officials, members of the Board of Education, and Congressmen and citizens who attempt to formulate the policies of our schools.

How many high school students can explain the discrepancies between the letter of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution and the application of that amendment as shown in, for example, the recent action by the University of Oklahoma? Or the discrepancies between the Fifteenth Amendment and the exclusion by Southern States of Negroes from voting? How many understand the part which smoke-filled hotel rooms play in our presidential nominating conventions, the practice of gerrymandering or the role of interest groups in American politics? Little indeed was taught of such matters when I attended public high school in Washington (only a few years ago), though we spent considerable time studying the Constitution itself.

No country succeeds in scrupulously living up to the letter of its laws, human nature being what it is, but government which is just will not be forwarded merely by teaching only the documents upon which government is based, or patriotism and flag-waving alone.

Travel Expense

I have just seen The Washington Post for January 19, in which Jerry Kluttz gives a "tax tip" that the Bureau of Internal Revenue will approve deductions of $3 per day as "job expense" of Government officials while traveling on official business. This is likely to mislead many readers. The bureau will allow deduction of reasonable expenses, but only if supported by itemized statements. Surely the bureau will not and should not approve deductions of $3 per day unsupported by itemized accounts merely because traveling expenses have risen, nor is it pertinent that the official allowance is widely regarded as insufficient.

Baltic DPs

The reasons why I, and most of the DPs from the Baltic states as well as from Poland and other countries, do not wish to return home now are all the same.

No honest person accustomed to respect, freedom and the rights of man can go to a country where violence and slavery are reigning. We know by experience that hell which the propaganda from behind the iron curtain tries to describe as "paradise."

I cannot go to this "paradise," because in 1941 before the coming of the Germans, I was on the list of persons destined to be arrested and sent to a concentration camp on the simple ground that I was an educated person. The penal law makes it possible to sentence to death everyone who, in the opinion of the civilized world would be an innocent and loyal citizen.

When the Baltic states, with a part of Poland, were occupied by the Communists, each of the Baltic nations (before the German occupation) lost tens of thousands of persons who were arrested at night, tortured or sent to Siberia.

In 1944 the Communists threatened by wireless and proclamations to kill all who had been set forcibly to work subsequently by the German Labor Office.

The Baltic nations did not desire war nor have they ever declared war on any of their neighbors. Peace-loving people unable to defend their neutrality were assaulted, their independence destroyed and their lands made scenes of war. These small nations there in the shade of a mighty "protector" have now a "liberty and happiness" never seen before. Then have starvation, forced work without any end, deportations and violent death—all "voluntarily" and with prescribed "enthusiasm."

We do not want to go back now because we do not want to fight against Americans and Englishmen who have treated us well and helped us and whose love of freedom we highly esteem.

Strain Of European Aid

I favor aiding and assisting the hungry people of Europe, but this can certainly be done with a few hundred millions, instead of a few billions each year for several years as contemplated by the Marshall Plan.

"Every working day during the past year the United States Government has bought and shipped 600 carloads of grain to Europe. At 100 cars to a freight train, which is unusually long, that is 6 trainloads of grain a day—every day! More than 2000 other carloads—or 20 freight trains of 100 cars each—have been loaded every day for a year with cotton, coal, food, steel and machinery. Included are refinery equipment, locomotives, etc., useful in war, for Soviet Russia." This is according to Release No. 938 of the Committee for Constitutional Government. This committee has a habit of having the correct facts.

According to the Constitutional Government Committee, we are exporting one third of our wheat. During the past several months the Government has purchased 80 million more bushels of wheat and flour for export than we shipped abroad in 10 years—from 1933 to 1942! Of course, all this causes a rise in price, and, therefore, our people are taxed to pay for all these huge exports at an increase in price, and then compelled to pay an increase in price for their own necessities.

It is stated that 75 million dollars of goods were found in a decaying condition on the docks at a French port. It is also stated that truckload after truckload of these provisions were distributed under the name of Soviet Russia.

What became of the $3,750,000,000 which we gave to England? What good did it accomplish? Arthur Bryant, writing in the Illustrated London News, says ". . . only a part of the great sum which the Americans generously loaned (a gift) to Britain has actually benefited the people of this (England) country . . ."

The worst thing that can happen to any nation is bankruptcy. Bankruptcy is the father of communism and dictatorship. It is time for us to take heed and put our own house in order, or our Republic will go the way of all the ancient republics.

We have squandered and wasted entirely too much already. We have reached the limit. Whatever we contribute in the future should be with great care and caution and carefully guarded, both as to amount and as to distribution.

The interest alone on 17 billion dollars at 3 per cent is approximately 500 million dollars per annum for eternity, a total loss, including the principal. According to statistics, in the fiscal year 1946, Federal, State and local government cost the citizens $56,873,000,000. Of this amount, Federal receipts accounted for $44,223,000,000, or nearly 78 per cent. The amount of Federal tax per capita in George Washington's time was $1.02. Under Hoover, $23.28. For the fiscal year ended in 1944 the per capita tax was $335.73. The average citizen labors three or four months of each year to support government.

Let us prepare to protect our people and our country, and, in the meantime, if Soviet Russia, or any other country, has a system of government, or any part of a system, superior to our own, let us listen and learn of it and not seek to suppress it, either by law or by a system of discrimination or intimidation, as that is a manifestation of a lack of confidence in our own system.

Outmoding The Mode

By Malvina Lindsay

Joneses' New Pace

FROM NOW on we're all going to have to run faster and faster to keep up with the nimble Joneses family.

It won't be enough to have a television set delivered a half hour after that of the Joneses arrives—ours must have knobs not in vogue six weeks ago.

The "new look" revolution in women's styles quickened this current mad race against obsolescence. If the fashion industry could improve business by stepping up style changes, it was figured, why couldn't everyone else with anything to sell turn the trick?

Hence all men are herewith warned to rush to the nearest haberdashery and get the hat that is going to outdate all the headgear in their wardrobes—the narrow-brimmed "Scoop" that the men's hat industry is launching this week. Nor is that all. Every man who wants to look "virile, relaxed, poised"—the newest look in masculinity—is expected also in a matter of weeks, if not days, to be striding around in a 10-gallon Western. A national advertising agency is spending around 100,000 dollars to put this new look on men's heads. Object, to relieve tension, incidentally combat hatlessness.

REMEMBER back in the 1920s when every family trooped to the store behind the Joneses to buy a radio? Now it is radios. Within the next month or so radio manufacturers will make us feel inferior and pre-atomic unless everyone in the household including the baby is dialing his individual set. "A radio of one's own" may be a political campaign slogan.

Also we'd better keep an eye on our vacuum cleaners and deep freeze units. In these as in radios supply has caught up with demand. New looks may soon make our models obsolete. And it looks if women might have to get busy letting hems down further. Last year's outfits whose hems have finally been dragged down to 14½ inches above the floor are fooling no one. Even the new dresses at 12 or 13 inches don't look as new as they did. Paris designers sponsoring the newer "new look" in their showings this month insist dresses must drop to 7, at most 10 inches from the floor.

The first "new look" is said to have outdated about 50 million dresses. No telling how many the second one will provide for ragged Europeans or patrons of rummage sales.

What's more we'll have to be on our toes if we don't get caught the first warmish day this month wearing those new dark hose with which we have stocked up. Nude's the newer look. Beiges and light pastels will be worn by those same Joneses who recently beat everyone to the draw in going all out for black.

NOR WILL women go old-hat while men wear Westerns and "Scoops." The millinery industry is looking for a radical new look to boost hat sales 50 per cent, bring them up to 120 million a year. To help the cause the Jones women are counted on to bloom out in at least three hats a season—ante-spring, spring and neo-spring.

In our frantic pursuit of the hat of the week, the razor blade of the month, the book of the minute, we may sigh for that leisurely February of 1845 when Godey's Magazine and Lady's Book announced: "We have no fashions in this No., and the reason is simply there is no change from January."

But even the Old Guard Republicans can't take us back to that. Our industrial economy is constantly strengthening what economists call "the theory of purposeful obsolescence." Prof. Paul M. Gregory of the University of North Carolina, writing on this in the Southern Economic Journal, analyzes our present marathon with the Joneses. Style changes, he says, are no longer manufacturers' response to gradual changes in consumers' tastes, whether in clothing, automobiles, books, tires, but represent planned obsolescence to make room for new models.

In other words, we now get revolution instead of evolution in the pace of the Joneses. And the snooty, economically entrenched members of that dictatorial herd known as "They" are even further to the left than Socialists—modishly speaking. They are Reds!

'Palestine Contrasts'

Most Americans, I believe, will find the suggestion in your editorial, "Palestine Contrasts," of January 24, shocking and cynical in its implications. What you suggest is that the United States arm a vocal and well-publicized and well-financed minority to take over the property of the established majority in Palestine.

This proposal is precisely the program which Hitler used over, and over, the principle of the "liberation" of a minority.

Aside from the lack of right of the United Nations to give away the land of a free people, and the injustice of the whole proceeding by the United Nations, the most tragic aspect of the whole business is that if one American soldier is killed in Palestine in an attempt to force the Arab peoples out of their own land, the result will be a tremendous wave of anti-Semitism in the United States which will undo the work in race relations which has been so arduously pursued for many years.

Newspapers which advocate the arming of the Haganah will have much to answer for if the entire Middle East breaks into flames as a result of such reckless proposals being taken seriously.

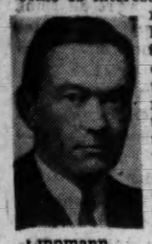
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Are The Americas Forgotten?



Lippmann

THERE IS a widespread feeling among our neighbors in this hemisphere that we have become so interested in European recovery that we have forgotten them. The truth of the matter is that they have not been forgotten; the protection of their vital interests is an integral and a principal part of the Marshall plan.

If they do not realize that, then they have been, though not forgotten, in some measure neglected. The immense significance of the Marshall Plan to the Western Hemisphere could readily have been explained and demonstrated to their representatives here and by our representatives in the capitals of Latin America. If that has not been done, it must be due to the fact that Mr. Marshall, Mr. Lovett and Mr. Armour are three men, and not, unfortunately, at least 10 men.

THE BASIC figures of the program show that in the first 15 months, 2.6 billion dollars are called for in order to pay for exports to western Europe from Canada and the Latin-American countries. This is a very sizable part of the whole program, so large a part indeed that Mr. Hoover would like to cut it out. But it is an essential factor in the program. It is essential to the recovery of Europe. It is essential to the recovery of the whole Western Hemisphere.

For Europe must have grain and timber from Canada, grain from Argentina, fats and oils from Brazil, sugar from Cuba, nitrates from Chile. But Europe now lacks the dollars to pay for these commodities. Europe lacks also the manufactured goods which the Latin-American countries need so badly and would like a receive in return for their exports. As things are now Latin America cannot get goods from Europe, and it cannot get dollars from Europe to buy what it needs in the United States.

THEREFORE, the Western Hemisphere countries urgently need two things: they need dollars for what they can send only to Europe and Europe can obtain only from them; and they need the revival of the European export industries in order that they may be able to obtain the capital goods they must have if they are to develop and raise their standard of life.

The Marshall Plan is designed to do both of these things: to provide them immediately with the most necessary dollars and in the course of the next four years with the means of obtaining capital goods from Europe.

THERE ARE Pan-American isolationists both here and in the other American republics who say: "Why not forget Europe, and instead concentrate on financing directly trade and capital investment between the United States and Latin America?"

The answer to this is that any such policy would destroy the economic independence of Latin America, and inevitably as the consequence much of its political independence.

For if Latin America, which is entering upon a great and promising period of industrial development, were to depend entirely or almost entirely on capital goods made in the United States, how would it pay for them? The United States cannot buy all the agricultural surpluses and all the raw materials of the hemisphere. It cannot use them all. Therefore, the only way the industrial development of Latin America could be financed would be by concessessions in the old-fashioned colonial and imperial style.

No American, north, south or central, Spanish-speaking, Portuguese-speaking or English-speaking, wants that to happen. Yet that would have to happen if, instead of restoring the triangular trade between Europe, the United States, and Latin America, we went in for Pan-American isolationism and sought to make the bulk of the trade run north and south.

THE TRUTH is that without the Marshall Plan the foundations of the inter-American system would be undermined. The glory of that system is that so many nations, unequal in size, power and wealth, can live together but independently within it. The system is unique in the history of nations. That it came to be at all, and that it works, is due no doubt in the last analysis to the fact that all the American republics are deeply anti-imperialist because all have won their independence by successful rebellion against imperial powers.

But that they have remained independent, that the larger ones have not overwhelmed the smaller, is due in great part to the fact that the economic and the cultural connections of each republic are not confined within the hemisphere but reach across the oceans to Europe and to the outer world. The spirit of independence feeds upon these connections. If they were broken irretrievably, if they cannot be restored, as we hope to restore them by the execution of the Marshall Plan, we should soon find that the inter-American system itself would languish. It would become a closed system, and in that crowded, narrowed and unequal condition, there would be lost that spirit of independence which is its energy and its reason.

Democrats of South Carolina Cancel Jackson Day Dinners

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

South Carolina Democrats have cancelled plans for the usual money-raising Jackson Day dinners this year, it was disclosed yesterday as Southern protests against President Truman's civil rights proposals filled the air—and the Congressional Record.

At the same time Arkansas' Gov. Ben Laney announced, according to the United Press, that the money raised by the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Little Rock wil be withheld from the National Democratic Party. At $15 a plate, the dinner is expected to raise $10,000.

While the Democrats fumed, the Republicans gloated.

A GOP-controlled House Judiciary subcommittee wound up public hearings on an anti-lynch bill and urged quick action to bring the measure to the floor next week.

The well disciplined Republican majority in the House has the votes to toss the measure over to the Senate in short order.

Senate Filibuster Expected

But there, as Republicans know— to the unspoken satisfaction of some—the Democrats from Dixieland can be safely counted upon to filibuster the legislation to death.

Democrats spluttered about secession—a new party—even Republican votes. Echoes of the shots fired at Fort Sumter were heard around the Capitol but they were just that—echoes.

Representative Sam Hobbs (D., Ala.) roundly assailed the anti-lynching bill as one which would only promote lynching. It's a shame, he said, that so many measures of this kind—14 in all—were introduced during this session because most of them are sponsored for "purely political reasons."

Reece Fans Fire

Republican national committee chairman Carroll Reece got out some bellows to fan the fire.

He called the Democrats "an aggregation of splinter parties with discordant and mutually antagonistic aims and purposes."

Much as the Republicans rejoiced in the opportunity to gloat, neither they nor the Democrats took party secession threats seriously.

Even the irate gentlemen from South Carolina were confiding glumly that when the time comes —next November 11— "We'll go along, of course."

Representative James W. Trimble (D., Ark.) described the whole as "just a little shin kicking within the family." He said he wanted to be sure it stayed at the shin-kicking stage and didn't get too serious.

It was W. P. Baskin, State Democratic chairman, who announced that South Carolina Democrats were going to pass up the Jackson Day dinner project this year. Normally the dinners would be held on February 19.

Jackson's Union Toast Recalled by Uproar

It was just about 118 years ago that Andrew Jackson, "Old Hickory" to the common man of his day, told off South Carolina, which now refuses to honor Jackson Day.

South Carolinians at a Washington dinner on April 13, 1830, were murmuring secession because of the 1828 tariff law, which they considered unfair to the South.

The fiery Jackson drew himself to his full height and proposed a toast, "Our Federal Union: it must be preserved." His vice president, the South's golden-voiced John C. Calhoun, asked the guests to drink to a toast, "Liberty: dearer than the union." Two years later Jackson sent two warships to Charleston, S. C., with instructions to collect duties by force.

P. S. Jackson eventually won the fight.

U. S. Woman Fails To Appear for Hungary Trial

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 4 (AP).—Miss Elizabeth Proiszl-Pallos, United States citizen and formerly a District resident, failed to appear today at her trial for espionage and other crimes. She is expected to testify tomorrow.

Four of 13 codefendants were acquitted today.

Mrs. Frigyes Pisky, wife of a suspect who escaped, testified that Jack Guinn, Associated Press correspondent, introduced two of his colleagues to her "accomplices." She said they were John MacCormac of the New York Times and Seymour Freidin of the New York Herald Tribune.

(Guinn left Hungary last November when the Communist-dominated government agreed he must go or face charges of "espionage and smuggling out of criminals.")

Mrs. Pisky withdrew testimony in which she was alleged to have stated her husband gave government information to Americans. She said today the political police "threatened to beat me to death or transfer me to the Russians."

Washington Calling

Boom-Bust Tax Cut

Childs

NOW THAT the Republicans in the House have had their fun with an old-fashioned boom-and-bust tax-cut bill, the Senate will get down to the serious business of drafting a measure that can be passed over the President's veto. The cut finally approved is likely to be less than half of the $6,500,000,000 which Representative Harold Knutson, in the role of heedless Santa Claus, dangled before the voters.

In the Senate more cautious Republicans are discussing a cut of 2½ or 3 billions. This is a frank recognition that most of the big talk about slashing the Truman budget is just political talk in a political year.

There seems little doubt but that a measure will be framed which can be passed over the President's veto. One thing it will contain for certain is the community-property provision enabling husbands and wives to divide one income and thereby pay at a lower tax rate. Since 12 States now have laws permitting such a division of income, it is only fair that the same provision should apply to all married taxpayers.

The final bill will also contain increased exemptions for individual taxpayers and some relief for corporations. In short, it will be a political compromise aimed at appeasing the largest number of voters while doing the minimum of damage insofar as national and international responsibilities are concerned.

This is the intention, at any rate, of those Republicans who are acutely aware of the spectacle in the House. Such blithe spirits as Knutson may feel that 6½ billions is a good vote-catcher. But even this is doubtful.

THE OTHER day, Speaker Joe Martin made a speech that didn't sound like the shrewd, able politician from Massachusetts. He solemnly warned of a plot to sabotage Congress and undermine the faith of the people in representative government.

Obviously Speaker Martin failed to realize how close to home he was hitting. The real saboteurs are the irresponsibles in Congress. Faith is destroyed by those who indulge in nose-thumbing political gestures, willing to take a chance that someone will save them from the full consequences of their irresponsibility.

Knutson is an interesting example. Giving his home as a summer resort in Minnesota and vacationing each year in Florida, he may just possibly be a little out of touch with the problems of ordinary citizens in this period of inflation.

From a reader comes a comment on President Truman's proposal to increase the personal exemption of each individual by $40. This has been laughed at as a cheap bait of the Knutson variety. But the following grass-roots point of view is different:

"I would like to take exception to your expressed viewpoint that a tax cut would be inflationary. At least in my own case I do not see how it could contribute to inflation.

"If the tax cut were confined to those suffering from malnutrition because they can't buy enough foodstuffs to allow them a proper diet, in a case of this nature how could it contribute to inflation? In our case we get enough to eat, even though it has reached the point where we are having to draw on our small savings that we were able to make during the war years. These savings were made possible by long hours, but not at the prevailing high wartime wages.

"I made 80 cents per hour during part of the war and 94 cents per hour the latter part of the war. I get $1.12 now, which, for 45 hours and 20 minutes per week, gives me a net take-home amount of $51.96 to support myself, wife and two children.

"If we were given the benefit of Mr. Truman's plan of $40 per person off, I don't see how we could buy any more and thus add to the scarcity problem. But his relief plan would, I believe, make it possible for us to get by on what I am earning and thus stop the drain on our savings, which we desire to hold as a buffer against emergencies, medical expenses, hospital bills, etc."

Chairman Knutson, now on his Florida vacation, might be surprised at how many families these days are having to dip into their savings. It is a fairly common experience of those who are trying to maintain something like the standards of the past. But whether the Knutson across-the-board tax cut would give them any real relief is quite another matter. It would inject another $6,500,000,000 into the already swollen money stream.

British Fight Arabs In Syrian Uniforms

Jerusalem, Feb. 4 (AP).—Arabs in Syrian army uniforms battled a British army unit tonight in northern Palestine, an army statement said. One Arab was killed and six captured.

[The United Press said Britain started its withdrawal from Palestine yesterday when 300 British members of the Palestine police were ordered to Egypt, to sail for England Sunday.]

The death toll from Holy Land violence since the November 29 U. N. partition decision mounted to 1051.

The army said the Arabs blazed away at a truckload of Sixth Airborne Division troops.

The Arabs were believed to be Syrian-trained volunteers of the "People's Army for Palestine."

A Damascus dispatch quoted an officer of the People's Army as saying that 600 Arab fighters crossed into Palestine last night over the River Jordan.

A source close to Fawzi Bey al Kaukji, People's Army commander, said 7000 Syrian-trained men were now in Palestine.

Iraq Rejects British Treaty

Baghdad, Iraq, Feb. 4 (U.P.).—Iraq's new cabinet tonight flatly rejected the Anglo-Iraq mutual defense treaty signed January 15 because it did not "realize Iraq national aspirations."

Premier Mohammed El-Sadr said the vote was unanimous.

The treaty was signed in Portsmouth, England, by British Foreign Secretary Bevin and former Iraq Premier Saleh Jabr.

Feeling against it ran so high Jabr was forced to flee the country after two weeks of rioting.

emphasized by Chairman Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) of the joint subcommittee. Flanders yesterday limited witnesses to the one subject of grain conservation at hearings opening today.

Flanders notified the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Anti-Saloon League, and other dry organizations that they could not be heard. His announced reason was to remove any implication that the hearing was to be a forum for a wet-dry argument.

Cold statistics, gathered at the Department of Agriculture, reveal that the American people must prepare to eat a lot less from now on than the sumptuous fare they have become accustomed to.

For several years the Nation has been "living beyond its means." In 1945 there were almost 86 million head of cattle in the country. The census, to be announced on February 18, will show this has dwindled to little more than 76 million. The reason for the decline is the high price of feed grains—the type used by distillers.

In 1945 there were about 28 million head of dairy cows in the country. On January 1 the number had dropped to about 25 million.

The number of hogs which in 1945 and 1946 numbered about 60 million head, has shrunk to 55 million.

Sheep and lambs are at the lowest numbers since the Civil War. The records were started in 1867—today the 36 million head are below any recorded figure.

Every pound of grain taken from supplies available for livestock feeding, cuts down the meat and milk supplies.

A serious feature is that it will take years to rebuild breeding herds so that production can meet demand. Livestock specialists at the department say that it will take three to four years to rebuild beef cattle herds to necessary size; five to six years to build up sheep and lamb flocks, and even longer to rebuild dairy herds.

Upsetting the program for temporary allocations of the grain supply by the Agriculture Department was the increased use of grain last year by the Nation's distillers. In its midyear Outlook Report in 1947 the department estimated that 30 million bushels of grain would be used during the year for whisky manufacture.

At that time—in June, July and August—the industry was using slightly above three million bushels a month.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

1st U. S. Ski Medal Won by Housewife

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

LET'S FACE IT, men, these are lush times for a heavyweight who can fight, in contrast to Jackie Cranford, the reluctant Washington youth who picked up $10,000 in Madison Square Garden last week and missed out on a $150,000 package.

POVICH

The startling fact is that such an apostle of nonviolence as Cranford could attain a status in the heavyweight division only two bouts removed from a Joe Louis fight before it was discovered he wasn't much fighter.

All Cranford had to do to be accepted as the No. 1 contender for Louis' title was to lick a pudgy, artless Italian heavyweight named Gino Buonvino, which he didn't do at Madison Square Garden the other night, and then beat such as Joe Baksi, which is conceded to be no great trick.

Thus Cranford could have worked himself up to as much as a $150,000 cut of a title fight gate against either Louis or Joe Walcott. In the event he did manage to meet up with either one, he wouldn't have much fun, but he'd make a lot of money.

IT'S AN ERA when a heavyweight can go up fast. Walcott bolted out of obscurity, beat a lot of nondescripts, and was accepted as a challenger for Louis. There isn't another logical contender even for an aging, slowed-up Louis. Baksi hasn't had a fight since July and is fat with leisure. Anyway, when last seen he was getting licked by the Swede, Olle Tandberg, who has since been licked by a light heavyweight, Joey Maxim.

Buonvino, the conqueror of Cranford by a wide margin in 10 rounds, scarcely improved his own chances of a title fight because (1) he didn't beat much and (2) he was unimpressive except for a willingness to keep fighting. He hasn't lost any of his nine fights in this country, but he hasn't beaten anybody of note, either. Moreover, he can't punch much.

There are signs of activity, though, in the division. The heavyweights, such as they are, are coming out of hiding in the wake of Walcott's expose of Louis as a fading champ. The big fellows who were formerly in discreet hiding, are now beating their breasts and aching for the chance to fight a slowed-up Joe Louis, who was floored three times by an even older Walcott.

WHEN JOE LOUIS went off to the wars five years ago, after emptying the heavyweight scene of challengers, he subscribed to the popular notion that the man who would eventually take his crown was then a teen-ager who would come out of service at the age of about 22, and quickly establish himself as a contender. It was the general theory that the service would produce a war-hardened successor to Louis.

No theory ever collapsed so completely. Most of the top men in all of the weight divisions are of pre-war vintage. When Louis did meet a man who could give him a close fight it was no youngster, but 34-year-old Jersey Joe Walcott. The service has produced nothing in the way of heavyweight contenders, unlike the last war when Gene Tunney, Bob Martin and Jack Roper emerged as top fighting men.

In his fight with Walcott, the father of six children, Louis fought like the older man of the pair. He was slow on his feet, slow with his hitting, and befuddled by the ring tactics of Walcott, the old campaigner. Louis was properly disgusted with himself after the fight, and there will be plentiful support for Walcott in their next battle.

LOUIS THIS month set an all-time record for heavyweight champions when, in his tenth year, he surpassed the length of John L. Sullivan's control of the title. By his high examples of conduct and character, he demonstrated that a colored heavyweight champion could be popular and twice gave colored men a shot at his title.

At the beginning, it was a surprise to Louis that he was being given a chance to go places as a colored heavyweight. Like other colored fighters, he was fighting chiefly among his own race back in 1934 when Promoter Mike Jacobs evinced a sudden interest in him. Jacobs sought out Louis' manager, John Roxborough, in Detroit, and asked for exclusive rights to promote Louis.

"I want your man to fight for me, and I want him to win every fight in the first round if he can," Jacobs told Roxborough. "You mean," said Roxborough, "that my colored boy doesn't have to take it easy and carry these other fellows to make it look good?" Jacobs meant exactly that, and Louis never fought a title fight for any other promoter.

Caps Beat Out Bullets By 77 to 72

The Washington Capitol s defeated the Baltimore Bullets, 77-72, at Uline Arena last night to move into a tie with the St. Louis Bombers for first place in the Basketball Association of America's Western Division.

Trailing by two points as the fourth quarter began, the Caps forged into the lead on two straight baskets by Bones McKinney and held their advantage the rest of the way.

Bullets Rally

The Caps led by 11 points at one stage in the first quarter but couldn't stand prosperity and trailed, 42-35, as the half ended.

Washington, employing a fast break, almost ran the Bullets off the court in the opening stanza, but the Baltimoreans began sprinting in the second period and Washington couldn't keep up. Paul Hoffman and Kleggie Hermsen, ran up 24 points in the second quarter while the Caps were limited to 12.

Washington's play off the offensive board was way off in the second quarter and the Bullets took advantage to run up their lead.

Johnny Norlander pushed Washington into the lead in the opening stanza, scoring nine points. All four of his baskets were made on followups when Washington controlled the boards.

Fight Breaks Out

Tempers, at a fever pitch all during the first half, broke out anew shortly after intermission and Johnny Norlander, Fred Scolari and Baltimore's Mike Bloom became involved in a fight which threatened to start a full-scale riot on the court. Referee Pat Kennedy finally restored order after awarding a double foul.

The Caps led five times in the third period, but Baltimore, with Hoffman hitting again, owned the lead, 58-56, as the last quarter opened.

American U. Wins, 67 to 37

Using 6-foot 8-inch Ronnie Garshag to great advantage under the backboards, American University's Eagles easily defeated Randolph-Macon College, 67-37, last night at the A.U. gym.

By winning their fifth against one loss in Mason-Dixon Conference play, the Eagles took over undisputed possession of third place.

The Eagles soared to an 8-0 lead during the first 3 minutes and were never in danger afterward. Center Pete Negley pitched in A.U. six field goals during the first half, and the Eagles walked off the court with a halftime lead of 37-18. The second-stringers then moved in for the Eagles and Tex Griffin scored 13 points to take scoring laurels.

Colonials Lose To Seton Hall

Newark, N. J., Feb. 4.—Seton Hall staged a 16-point rally in the last nine minutes to defeat George Washington, 60-53, here tonight.

George Washington led, 27-23, at halftime. However, the Hallman whittled away and overtook the Colonials at 44-43 with nine minutes to go.

Bill Cantwell, Art Cerra and Maynard Haithcoock led G. W. pointmakers with nine points apiece.

Mt. Vernon Wins

Mount Vernon High of Alexandria was off to a 15-8 lead in the first quarter and then coasted to beat Falmouth, Va., 48-43, last night at Mount Vernon. Buddy Odenwalder was high scorer for the Mounts with 15 points.

THE BABE TRIES SKIING—Deserting her golf clubs temporarily, Babe Didrikson Zaharias, tries out a pair of skis for the first time in her life at Newton, Mass., yesterday. The Babe was doing o.k. until she actually started skiing and then met the inevitable end to all beginners' first attempts, as shown shown on the left. After deciding that golf is a better sport and using her alpenstocks (ski poles) for a driver, the Babe takes a practice stroke at her favorite pastime

Mrs. Fraser Places 2nd In Olympic Alpine Run

By Ted Smits

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 4 (AP).—A pretty western housewife, her pigtails flying, plummeted down a zig-zag Alpine snow course today to accomplish something no American ever had done before her—win a medal in an Olympic skiing event against Europe's masters.

Mrs. Gretchen Fraser, the 28-year-old Vancouver, Wash., star, was the toast of the American camp tonight as the mercury dropped, the ice froze over again and it became certain that it would not be necessary, after all, to abandon the games in mid-career.

Mrs. Fraser, a modest 115-pounder, scored her unprecedented personal triumph by placing second in the women's Alpine combined ski test, in which she was edged out of first place by Trude Beiser of Austria by the nearly invisible margin of 37 one-hundredths of a point.

Figure skating and Cresta sledding were postponed today because of the unseasonable thaw, but toward evening the temperature dropped and the information bureau announced that all ice events would be held tomorrow.

Chance For Pair

The United States in fact, has a chance for two titles tomorrow. The men's figure skating crown seems a certainty for Dick Button of Englewood, N. J. Dick led the field by a wide margin at the end of the compulsory part of the competition on Monday, and only free style remains—at which he is without peer.

The cresta run, put off from today, may well go to Jack Heaton of New Haven, Conn., winner of the event in 1928. He was only two tenths of a second behind the leader at the end of the first three heats yesterday. Three more remain to be run.

For a time gloom enveloped the figure skaters. It looked as though Olympic championships in their division might have to be called off because of the thaw, thereby robbing Button and Barbara Ann Scott of Canada of almost certain victories.

Coasted To Victory

Henri Oreiller, the brilliant Frenchman who was the first double individual winner with a triumph in the Alpine combined skiing today, had already won the downhill race, which counted as an individual event as well as part of the men's Alpine combined, and all he needed to do today was to ski with caution.

As a result, his countryman, James Cauttet, made the best times, 68.7 and 66.2 for a total of 2:14.9. Oreiller's times were 72.3 and 70 seconds flat.

Down We Go

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 4 (AP).—French skiing triumphs pushed the United States back into seventh place in the unofficial team standings of the fifth Winter Olympics today.

Sweden still leads after the sixth day's competition. The standings, figured on a 10-5-4-3-2-1-point basis for the first six winners, follow:

Sweden 60, Norway 48¼, Switzerland 45, Finland 38, Austria 36, France 27, United States 20¼, Italy 11, Holland 6, Belgium 3, Hungary 3, Britain 2, Canada ¼.

Sanse Is Good for Hoyas; He Sparks Hot Relay Team

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Georgetown quietly has assembled a winning mile relay team that will be seeking its third victory in four outings in the Boston A. A. meet Saturday.

After placing second in the Evening Star meet here, the Hoya quartet romped home first in the K. of C. meet in Boston and in New York's Millrose Games.

Ed Sause, anchor man, ran a brilliant lap in last Saturday's Millrose victory. The Bayonne, N. J., junior was in fourth place when he took the baton, trailing the leader by a good 25 yards. At the finish, though, it was Sause going away.

Sause Was Schoolboy Flash

Trailing the Hoyas were Penn State, Holy Cross, Boston College and Colgate. Winning time was 3:30.2. That was two tenths of a second slower than the K. of C. mile in which Georgetown defeated Tufts, Maine and Miami.

The other three relay members, in order in which they run, are Alex Rourke, New York City; Mortimer Kane, Lynbrook, L. I., and George Michaelides, also from Bayonne. Rourke is the son of a former Hoya track man.

Sause, 22-year-old Air Corps veteran, was a standout schoolboy performer in Jersey. In fact, he was one of only two high school boys ever invited to run in the New York A. C. meet. And he finished third behind Georgetown's Short and Jim Herbert, N. Y. U. ace.

In 1943, Sause was clocked in 48 flat for the quarter mile in the National Juniors. The three previous years he won the New Jersey '440' scholastic championship with his best effort in 1942 when he completed the gruelling distance in 49.8.

Funny thing is that Sause had to do some convincing before he started running. Originally out for the broad jump, he asked his high school coach to let him compete in a 100-yard dash. Reluctantly, the coach consented. Sause won and he's been running—and winning—ever since.

Georgetown's Coach Hap Hardell was enthused over his latest relay effort. Hardell feels that Sause has shaken off the effects of three years in the Army and is ready to fulfill his schoolboy promice.

Last year, after only a week's practice, Sause returned to action by winning the District AAU 100-yard dash in 10 flat and the 220 in 22.8.

Now, he's in shape for the quarter mile grind. It means the Hoyas' mile relay future is bright.

150 Greet the Babe

Miami, Fla. Feb. 4 (AP).—Babe Ruth arrived here at 3:45 p. m. today by train for a vacation. Babe was greeted by some 150 persons who cheered him as he stepped down from his train. Trains in the station tooted their whistles.

Ten Passing Marks Set by Otto Graham

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—When more and better forward passing marks are set in the All-America Football Conference, the Cleveland Browns and Otto Graham will set them.

Official 1947 figures released today show that the AAC champions set four team records for passing while Graham, their star quarterback, put 10 new ones into the books.

Graham, who tied for the 1946 title with Glenn Dobbs, hit on 103 out of 269 for a record 2753 yards and a record 25 touchdowns. His 60.6 per cent on the target also is an AAC mark, and his 4.1 per cent intercepted was the best last year.

Huskies Keep Cherberg

Seattle, Feb. 4 (AP).—Johnny Cherberg, backfield mentor for two seasons, will remain at the University of Washington as frosh coach under the new head man, Howie Odell.

The announcement of Cherberg's appointment came shortly after Athletic Director Harvey Cassill reported Marvin (Preacher) Franklin of Yale had asked to be released from the asignment. Odell chose Franklin, his end coach at Yale, as freshman chief only a week ago.

Walker, Phils 'Differ'

Philadelphia, Feb. 4 (AP).—Harry (The Hat) Walker, the 1947 National League batting champion, walked out of the Philadelphia Phillies' office today without signing a 1948 contract bue he insisted "I am not a holdout."

Fever Hits Earnings

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 4 (U.P.). The New England swamp fever epidemic last summer slashed earnings of Narragansett Park horse race track to less than a third of the previous year, the track estimated today.

The Narragansett Racing Association, Inc., said it expected net income for the year ending next March 31 to be $402,500 as compared with $1,268,099 in the previous 12 months.

Barkeeps in Jam

Newark, N. J., Feb. 4 (AP).—Two of New Jersey's leading sports figures, now turned barkeeps, ran afoul of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control regulations today.

Tony Galento, onetime heavyweight title contender and now a wrestling entertainer in his spare time, pleaded no defense to a charge of possessing two improperly labeled bottles of liquor in his Orange tavern. Bill Urbanski, former Boston Braves shortstop, had his company's liquor license suspended for 10 days on a charge of permitting bookmaking and gambling in his Perth Amboy tavern.

Hursey Boxes Kapilow, His Old Ring Pal

Smuggy Hursey and Danny Kapilow renew acquaintances again February 23 at Uline Arena when they headline the Liberty Athletic Club's first winter fight production.

This will be the fourth time they have fought for the championship of each other with the score standing at one victory apiece and a draw.

Kapilow, the New York middleweight, won an eight-rounder in 1946; Hursey scored a 41-second knockout last June and they battled to a stalemate in August.

Neither Has Been Active

Neither has been very active since their last meeting. In his only outing, Washington's Hursey got a severe pasting by Tommy Bell in September and hasn't been heard from since.

Kapilow, devoting most of his time to his New York dress manufacturing business, returned to the ring twice. He won a decision from an obscure opponent in December, and in his second outing, Tuesday evening, dropped the nod to Joe Falco, a run-of-the-mill club fighter.

Prices Scaled Down

Hursey captured the fancy of Washington fight fans last year when he defeated Billy Arnold, Bee Bee Washington, Aaron Perry and Kapilow in succession. He was being touted for a title shot, but started going downhill in the second Kapilow bout and hit bottom in his stand against Bell.

Kapilow has always been a favorite with local fight fans. For this reason, perhaps, Promoters Goldie Ahearn and Al Weill are bringing him back.

Fight No. 4 won't be as expensive as the first in the Hursey-Kapilow series. The house will be scaled at $7 tops against the $10 ringside charge for the first three.

Murray, Haynes Box At Turner's Monday

Lee Q. Murray of Norfolk, Conn., rated in the recent issue of Ring Magazine as the fourth ranking contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown, and Johnny Haynes of Los Angeles, were signed yesterday to headline next Monday night's boxing show at Turner's Arena.

The bout will be 10 rounds, and will mark Murray's first local showing since he whipped Yancey Henry back in 1945.

Beau Jack to Battle Young; Graham Hurt

Searle, Barrow Lead Navy to Win Over Duke

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4 (AP).—Navy's basketball team pulled away from Duke at the end of the first half and went along to win its fifth game of the season today, 56-46.

The first half was marked by frequent rallies on the part of one team and then the other. Late in the period, however, Jack Robbins' free throw put Navy ahead 24-23, and then Bob Searle closed out the half with two quick field goals to give Navy a 28-23 advantage.

The Middies maintained a lead of at least five points from that point.

Searle, with 22 points on 10 field goals and two foul conversions, was the high scorer of the afternoon. He and John Barrow, Navy guard who did not practice all week because of a sore foot, were all over the court, and their shot making staved off potential Duke rallies time and again.

Barrow contributed 16 points to Navy's cause.

Duke's Ben Collins, using a one-handed pivot shot to good advantage, made five field goals, which with a conversion, gave him 11 points.

Duke's big rally came during the first half. Trailing 22-12 at the 11 minute mark, Carl Sapp and Collins hit the cords regularly to bring the visitors into a 23-23 tie. At that time, Robbins made his free throw.

The victory gave Navy a five and three record on season's play. It was the seventh defeat against eight wins for Duke.

'Snow Use'

St. Anthony's and Sherwood High Schools finally decided "snow use" yesterday and cancelled for good their 1948 basketball game. They were slated to play at Sherwood January 14, but snow, and the game was postponed to yesterday. When it snowed yesterday, the schools decided to call it off for good.

D. C. Armory Compromise Is Reached

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

The fightin' and feudin' over District Armory control appeared finally ended yesterday after District and National Guard officials agreed to control by a three-member board and operation by a paid manager.

Details of the agreement were written into a compromise bill, designed to substitute for three separate control measures pending before the House District Judiciary Subcommittee, James R. Kirkland, counsel for the Senate District Committee, revealed.

The bill, Kirkland said, would:

1. Set up an armory board consisting of the president of the Board of Commissioners, the commanding general of the District National Guard, the chairman of the House District Committee, or persons authorized to represent them.

2. Give it authority to lease the building when not needed for military purposes.

3. Permit it to hire a manager, set his pay, and give him authority to sign contracts for armory use.

4. Let the National Guard keep income received from sale of refreshments at armory. Give to the District proceeds from sports events, meetings and other non-military uses.

5. Put armory rents received to date by the National Guard into a revolving fund administered by the joint board.

6. Authorize the joint board to obtain equipment and facilities for use in the armory.

7. Provide "preferential" rates for schools, colleges, universities, and Federal and District agencies wishing to use the armory.

McKee and Gray Accept 'Skin Terms

Numbers 22 and 23 in the Washington Redskins' contract signing derby for 1948 are End Paul McKee and Guard Bill Gray, it was announced yesterday. Both are second-year men.

McKee, a 6-ft.-3, 214-pounder, played in 11 of the 'Skins games last year, catching 16 passes. He reached his peak against the Chicago Cardinals when he caught seven tosses, two for touchdowns. The former Syracuse selection on the All-Eastern team makes his home at Beaver Falls, Pa.

Gray, an All-Coast center at Southern California during the war, is 206 pounds and is 5-ft.-11. Before and after the war he performed at Oregon State, now making his home at Portland, Ore.

Evolution of Football Fan

The Sports Bug Will Bite You If You Don't Watch Out

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

TIME WAS AT our family gatherings when sports were never brought up as a subject of discussion.

Haight

True, the men folks sometimes huddled in the kitchen to warm over a big fight, the Kentucky Derby or a World Series and the youngsters occasionally argued the merits of their respective school teams.

However, when all hands were together, conversation almost invariably involved rattling family skeletons, with and without flesh, if you know what I mean.

The march of time brought changes. Now it's commonplace for everybody to join in a sports debate—"T" formation vs. single wing, or hit-and-run vs. sacrifice, or boxing vs. slugging.

No longer is it odd if Aunt Agatha says, "I prefer the man in motion. Adds deception to football and helps bring the game out into the open."

No one is amazed if Cousin Mary argues, "With two men out, I'm in favor of being elementary and playing for the double play."

If mother ups with, "You oldtimers might like the center jump, but I like my basketball speeded up" or grandma avers, "He was a good hitter in the minors, but a sucker for a low outside pitch"—well, their opinions carry weight.

How come this change?

Improved sports pages have been a factor along with radio and, more recently, television—plus better facilities at ball parks, arenas, etc.

It has become fashionable to be sports-minded.

I KNOW TWO CASES of the evolution of the football fan that perhaps can be multiplied by the thousands.

Anyway, Tom and Myrtle were nudging fifty and had practically no interest in sports, except for bowling. Each rolled in a league once a week, but not since their high school days had either seen a football or baseball game.

Sunday afternoon the garage doors swung open and Tom and Myrtle went for their weekly ride, Vacation time meant days at the beach or on trips—good, solid, quiet couple.

Then the Redskins moved into town. One Sunday I had a couple of tickets I wasn't using. Would they accept them? They agreed to go out and see "the new-fangled brand of football."

The following weekend Tom bought two tickets and was going to invite one of the fellows at his office when Myrtle informed him she wanted to go to the game.

I had to smile later when I learned the Redskins had played in Pittsburgh the following Sunday and in the stands were—you guessed it, Tom and Myrtle.

Pro football got to be more and more a subject of conversation with them. They learned the numbers of the players and could tell Sammy Baugh from Dick Todd, and vice versa.

Came the big game of the season in New York. Of course, Tom and Myrtle went along as I had expected.

SUNDAY EVENING, I was puzzled when I received a telegram reading, "Meet us at Union Station with a truck!" signed—Tom and Myrtle.

I figured Tom had broken a leg, or Myrtle had at least sprained an ankle, and I admit I was a bit apprehensive as I waited for the football special to arrive.

1-5 Favorite Bests Hypnos And Saggy

By Fred Hayden

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP).—Relic, the colt generally regarded as the chief threat to Calumet Farm's Citation for the 1948 3-year-old classics, captured today's Bahamas Handicap in a common jog.

Under topweight of 126 pounds—which included the sensational jockey Ted Atkinson—the "Black Streak" owned by the Circle M Farm of the Edward S. Moores finished the seven furlongs with three lengths to spare in 1:23 1-5.

William Woodward's Hypnos was second, three-quarters of a length before Mrs. Stanley Sagner's Saggy, while Roman Road rounded out the small but high class field. All four starters are named for the $50,000 added, mile and a furlong Flamingo Stakes on February 28.

Relic went postward a heavy favorite at odds of 1 to 5. His share of the $10,000 added purse was $7550. It was his second start of the winter. War Relic's brilliant son having won the Hibiscus Stakes here on the second day of the meeting. The attendance was 14,461.

As a juvenile, Relic started five times—all at Saratoga—and captured three races, including the rich Hopeful stakes. He picked up $53,450, to which he already has added $15,825 this season. Many experts now regard him as being a thoroughly worthy foe for citation, the winter book choice for the Kentucky Derby. Relic was acquired from the late Col. E. R. Bradley's dispersal sale.

RELIC, $2.40, $2.10, out; HYPNOS, $2.90, out; SAGGY, out.

RELIC a high-class race horse. He broke good, was under stout restraint from the start, followed pace to middle of turn, then just breezed to the front and was only galloping at end. HYPNOS well up all the way, closed fast and easily gained the place. SAGGY away fast, showed speed for 6 furlongs, then tired. ROMAN ROAD never was a factor.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $3500; claiming. For 4-year-olds up. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:00½. Winner, Bobanet Stable's b. c. (4) by Peace Chance—Anticipation II by Ksar. Trained by A. Dunne. Value, $2275. Time, 1:50½.

Catana	(Combest)	116	3	4	4²	4²	4²	5	3.15

END OF STRIFE, $5.50, $3.20, $2.30; CELOPHAN II, $4.00, $2.60; ATTENDANT, $2.30.

END OF STRIFE, showing smart improvement, assumed lead going into clubhouse turn and just galloped in front all the way. CELOPHAN II followed pace and was next best. ATTENDANT ran a miserable race, being outrun to stretch, where he finished with a rush. JACKAMINE had no mishap. CATANA quit badly.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $3000; claiming. For 4-year-olds up. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:30. Off at 5:33. Winner, A. J. Lacoste's ch. m. (5) by Equestrian—Holua by Phalaros. Trained by owner. Value, $1950. Time, 1:53⅕.

Quantico Host To Virginia U.

Quantico, Va., Feb. 4.—The Quantico Marine five plays host here tonight to a University of Virginia team which is out to avenge a previous 49-46 loss to the Marines.

On the basis of comparative scores, the Leathernecks hold a slight advantage. They trounced VPI, a team which beat the Cavaliers. Both lost early season games to George Washington.

Navy Plebes Defeat Hopkins Frosh, 65-43

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4 (AP).—Led by Willie Wilson, its sensational center, the Navy Plebe basketball team defeated the Johns Hopkins freshman quintet today, 65-43.

It was the seventh straight win for the Plebes. Wilson made 13 field goals and added two foul conversions for a total of 28 points. He has averaged better than 22 points a game to date.

Riders Post 8th Victory In a Row

Billy Hibbs, Roosevelt High's 5-foot, 9-inch playmaker, tried out his shooting eye against Episcopal of Alexandria yesterday, and met with phenomenal success.

Billy tossed in 32 points, as many as the entire Episcopal team, and Roosevelt, on its own court, romped to its eighth consecutive victory, 53-32.

In 12 previous games, Hibbs' top scoring effort was 12 points. It was his fine passing that set up most of Roosevelt's scoring plays.

Henry Schacht was Episcopal's best pointmaker yesterday as he chalked up 11. Episcopal was in the game for only one quarter, trailing, 9-8, after the first eight minutes. But Roosevelt pulled away steadily after that.

The victory was the ninth in 13 games for Roosevelt, which is tied for first place with Central in the District public high series. Episcopal has lost five out of nine.

W. & M. Swimmers Lose

Williamsburg, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Taking first places honors in all but two events, Randolph-Macon's College tankmen took a 58x15 decision from the William and Mary swimming team here today.

Bullis Routed By Hoya Frosh

Big Jack Kelly flipped in 32 points as he led the unbeaten Georgetown University Freshmen to the fourteenth consecutive victory yesterday. The Hoya Frosh whipped Bullis Prep, 72-37, at the Silver Spring Armory.

The Hoyas led all the way, their quartertime margins being, 25-4, 33-13, and 51-25. Billy Cannon and Ted Kukowski, who netted 12 apiece, shared scoring honors for the Prepmen as they dropped their third game against five victories.

Cobb Captains VMI

Lexington, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Jim Cobb, 190-pound guard from Blytheville, Ark., will captain the 1948 Virginia Military Institute football team.

Grimes, Va. Ace, Signed by Rams

Los Angeles, Feb. 4 (AP).—George Grimes, University of Virginia halfback star, has signed a contract to play for the Los Angeles Rams, the National Football League announced today.

Grimes, 185-pound kicking and running specialist, mainstay of the Virginia attack in 1942-46-47, and for North Carolina as a Marine trainee in 1943, paced his team to seven victories and had an average of 7.4 yards per try in rushing.

Punting, he had an average of 42.3 yards on 56 boots, and kicked 27 out of 51 attempts for points after touchdown. A letterman in basketball and track, he was named the university's outstanding athlete last year and was the individual star for the South in its 33-6 win in the postseason North-South game.

Leo Promises He 'Won't Run From Louis'

Baltimore, Feb. 4 (AP).—Leo Matricciani of Baltimore, is giving out with what generally has proved to be famous last fighting words—"I will not run from Louis."

Matricciani's bravely spoken words came while he was getting ready for a four-round exhibition with the champ here next Monday.

Yanks Sign Moscowitz

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—The New York Yankees today signed Emil Moscowitz, 37-year-old New York righthander, as a batting practice pitcher.

Profits mean Progress

In 1947, International Harvester served more people—employes, customers, and stockholders—in greater measure than ever before. Past and present profits made this possible.

"Profit" is a word on nearly everybody's tongue these days. But not everyone seems to know that "profit" comes from a Latin word meaning "progress."

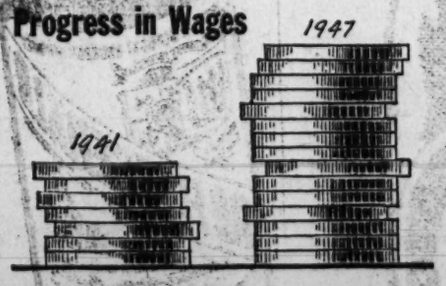
International Harvester is proud of the fact that it made a good profit in 1947. We hope to do equally well in coming years. But we are even more proud of the progress, in every direction, which past and present profits have made possible.

Progress in Job-Making

During 1947, an average of about 85,000 men and women were working for Harvester. At the end of the year, the number of people on our payrolls in the United States was more than 90,000.

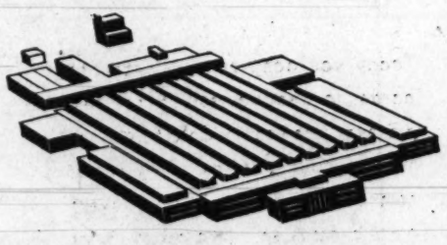
The number of employes at the end of 1941 was about 60,000. So there are 30,000 more men and women working for Harvester now than before the war. Profits today mean more jobs tomorrow!

Progress in Wages



Harvester paid total wages and salaries of 265 million dollars in 1947, as compared with 121 million dollars in 1941. This is an increase of 119 per cent and reflects both the 30,000 new jobs which have been created and an increase of 76.5% since 1941 in average straight time hourly earnings of factory employes. Progress in wages!

Progress in Production

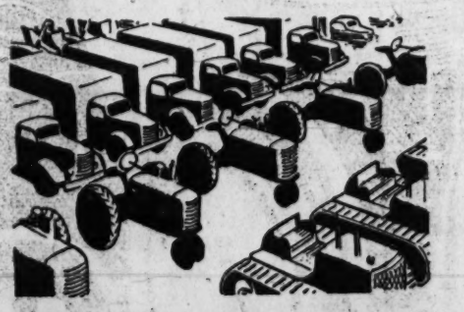


Since the war we have invested 130 million dollars in new plants and tools, and are planning to invest 85 million more, for a total of 215 million dollars.

This expansion has been financed almost entirely by the 215 million dollars which, over the last 20 years, we have retained out of profits and plowed back into the business.

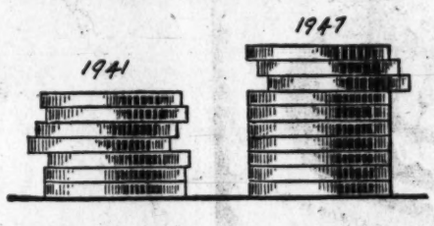
Greater production of our machines will mean greater production by our customers, who put these machines to work. And greater production is the need of all America in slowing down inflation.

Progress for Customers



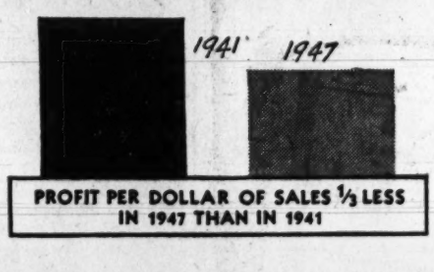
For our customers we produced 741 million dollars worth of goods and services in 1947—more than double 1941 sales. And we sold these goods in 1947 at a margin of profit which was one-third less than in 1941.

Progress for Stockholders



Today our Company is owned by approximately 42,000 people who have invested their savings in our business. In 1941, we had 34,000 stockholders. Last year we paid to stockholders about 27 million dollars in dividends for the use of their money. Dividends paid from 1947 income were 43 per cent higher than in 1941.

What Were IH Profits in 1947?



On sales of 741 million dollars, profits in 1947 were 41 million dollars. (In addition, the Company had income of 7 million dollars in dividends from subsidiaries and in miscellaneous income, making a total profit of 48 million dollars, equivalent to 9.8% on invested capital.)

Our profit on each dollar of sales was 5½ cents. As will be seen from the chart, this is a margin of profit which was one-third less than in 1941.

We believe 5½ cents per dollar of sales is a reasonable rate of profit.

We know that it is our continuing ability to earn a reasonable profit which has made it possible for International Harvester, in 1947, to serve more people—employes, customers, and stockholders—in greater measure than ever before.

Civil Service Takes Notice of Critics of Examination Policies

EXAMS: The fire of criticism has been directed at the examination policies and methods of the Civil Service Commission. The critics are members of Congress, Federal officials, and a host of rank-and-file employes.

Civil Service has now taken notice of the protests. Its most articulate spokesman, Arthur S. Flemming, the GOP member, went to a special meeting of the Federal Personnel Council to explain the commission position. Briefly, he stressed these points:

1. That the examination program is well ahead of schedule and that the 1948 goals will be exceeded;

2. That only 6 of 99 eligible registers are now "blocked" because displaced career employes are available to fill the jobs covered by the exams;

3. That the so-called DCE (displaced career employe) program is working despite the many protests, and,

4. That at least eight more eligible registers will be established about April 1.

Flemming said the commission's goal for the 1948 fiscal year was 482,000 placements. He pointed out that 222,000 placements had been made in the first 5½ months, or 54 per cent of the goal in 42 per cent of the year. He said that 170,000 permanent appointments would be made this year in jobs that are held by war service and temporary employes, and that 266,000 additional permanent appointments would be made as a result of vacancies. He said that 252,000 temporary appointments would be made pending the establishment of competitive registers.

In the District, Flemming explained, the commission had planned to make 38,450 permanent appointments in the 1948 fiscal year. Up to January 10, he said, 25,980 had been made. He predicted the commission would exceed its goal since the figures include no appointments from the clerical register. About 15,000 appointments from that register will be made here before June 30.

In the 1949 fiscal year to begin July 1, Flemming estimated that 418,000 permanent appointments would be made, 162,000 to jobs now held by war service and temporary employes and another 256,000 to fill vacancies.

Flemming also predicted that turnover would open up 483,000 Federal jobs in 1949, and that 226,000 temporary appointments pending the establishment of eligible registers would have to be made. He estimated turnover would run 3.2 per cent a month on an average employment of 1,750,000 employes in this country, or 38.4 per cent over the entire year.

By June 30, 1949, Flemming said, 80 per cent of the 1,750,000 employes would have permanent appointments. Nine per cent, he said, would be in non-Civil Service jobs, and 11 per cent in temporary positions, a condition, he said, that "approaches normal."

The Civil Service official said these would be among the registers to be set up around April 1: junior professional assistant; junior agricultural assistant, photographer, mathematician, metallurgist, pharmacist, photostat operator, and astronomer. No DCE's are available for any of these jobs.

These are the eligible registers, he said, that are not now being used because there are DCE's who have priority for the jobs:

Budget examiner, organization and methods examiner, purchasing officer and purchasing clerk, training specialist, and Grade 5 accounting and auditing assistant. The commission has 93 lists that can be used today.

However, Flemming indicated that the papers of several tests hadn't been examined because DCE's were now qualified to fill the jobs covered by them.

The official also insisted that the DCE program was working. He said that 666 appointments had been made here since each agency was assigned a quota of jobless career people to place in jobs. He foresaw a rise of at least 200 in this figure by the February 20 deadline.

But Flemming warned the personnel chiefs that the DCE program would continue after the deadline. He revealed this line of attack:

That agencies with war service nonveterans in jobs that could be filled by DCE's will be forced to fire them no matter if their quotas have been exceeded.

Where no nonveteran war service jobs are available, the commission will put the DCE's at the top of eligible registers and certify them to fill vacancies.

Flemming said the DCE problem would be "continuous" since an average of 47 new names are added to its list each week.

The agency side of the DCE story was cited earlier by an Air Forces official. This official said that AF had made offers to 169 DCE's; that only 43 accepted the jobs offered, and only 21 showed up for work.

Generally, agency officials say that war service and temporary people are becoming "restless" in their jobs because of the length of time it takes for Civil Service to examine them and to certify the successful to permanent jobs. A great many able war service and temporary employes have resigned, it's charged, because of their feeling of "insecurity."

In short, Flemming's answer to them was to be "patient," that Civil Service is doing the best it can with its limited resources.

He asked for the cooperation of Federal officials in placing DCE's and in speeding the examination process. Otherwise, he warned, all agencies would be penalized by restrictive legislation by Congress. Several congressional committees have threatened legislation along these lines.

House Votes Bill Omitting Fund to Clear D. C. Slums

$5000 Potomac Basi Item Is Only Change In Omnibus Measure Affecting District

The bill was approved by the House and sent to the Senate with but one change affecting Washington—a $5000 item was put into the bill for a Federal contribution to work of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

On the slum question, the House left unchallenged the decision of its appropriation committee to delete all of the $3,400,000 to start the District Redevelopment Land agency on a slum clearance program here, and the ..61,500 asked for slum clearance plans by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The bill carries a $19,500,000 contract authorization, and a $500,000 appropriation for the new Washington hospital center, and $241,000 for the NCPPC to buy playground land in the District.

Also included are $152,046 for planning a National Air Museum, and $24,700 for the National Capital Housing Authority.

Name for Highway

Arizona Ave. Plan Favored By 'Hill' Unit

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Arizona, the "Baby State," took one giant step forward yesterday toward attaining its rightful recognition in the Nation's Capital.

A House subcommittee approved a plan for constructing an express highway through Glover-Archbold Park to be named Arizona ave.

The subcommittee action presages eventual congressional passage of the measure, which, appropriately, will permit the forty-eighth State of the Union to become the forty-eighth State admitted into the District's complex highway system."

Purists—and Buckeye Staters—may challenge Arizona's anchor position as the last State to get its name on the map of Washington, but to no avail. There was an Ohio ave. running through the area now the site of the Federal Triangle. It was one of the Capital's gaudier—and bawdier—thoroughfares, and Ohioans were not happy about having their proud State connected with such bright (red) lights."

The great State of Washington has no street or avenue called after it in its namesake city, but—according to D. S. Brinkley, Highway Department planning engineer—there is a Washington circle, place, and drive.

The new dual-highway Arizona avenue would run from Canal rd., through Glover-Archbold Park, to Tenley Circle, at Wisconsin and Nebraska aves. nw. Once okayed by Congress and the President, and the specific plans approved by several interested Federal-local agencies, it will take three years and about $3,400,000 to complete.

Sponsors of the Arizona ave. legislation are two members of Congress from Arizona, Senator Carl Hayden and Representative John R. Murdock.

7 to Be Ordained By Archbishop in Rites Saturday

Winter ordination ceremonies being conducted at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on the Catholic University campus are to be concluded Saturday morning at 8 o'clock when Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle will ordain seven to the priesthood.

Ordinations began Tuesday night with administration of the rite of tonsure of 15 by Bishop John M. McNamara.

Yesterday, those receiving tonsure were advanced to the minor orders of porter, reader, exorcist and accolyte.

A class of 26 is to be ordained as subdeacons today at 7 a. m. by Bishop Michael J. Keyes. Tomorrow, 44 are to be ordained as deacons at 7 o'clock ceremonies.

The ceremonies Saturday morning will provide Archbishop O'Boyle with his first opportunity since becoming the ecclesiastical head of the Washington See to ordain a class to the holy priesthood.

3 Men Burned In House Fires Die in Hospital

Three men died in hospitals here yesterday after they were seriously burned in three separate fires.

Alexander Reynolds, 73, died at Freedmen's Hospital at 12:20 p. m. of burns he received in a fire at 1426 Rock Creek Ford rd. nw. A roomer in the one-story frame house, Reynolds was apparently the victim of an exploding oil heater in his room, firemen said.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Christian, other occupants of the house, said they heard Reynolds call for water about 9:45 a. m., but could not get to him because of flames in the room. Christian was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for a cut hand he suffered in trying to break into the room through a window.

Frederick Monroe, 63, died yesterday morning at Gallinger Hospital, where he had been taken with burns he received in a fire at 1148 Corcoran st. nw., Tuesday morning.

Firemen said Monroe, a convalescent rooming at the house, was found seriously burned in a chair. They said the fire appeared to have been started by a burning cigar. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ruled the death an accident.

The third victim was Thomas Steward, 53, no known address, who died at 6:15 a.m. at Gallinger Hospital.

Stewart fell from a third-story window before firemen could rescue him from a burning vacant building at 1901 L st. nw. on Monday. Doctors said he had severve burns, frostbitten feet and other injuries. Corner MacDonald certified the death as due to natural causes, a heart condition. Police theorized that Stewart had built a fire in the empty building to keep warm.

Mary Worth Model Selection From 29 Is Expected Today

The search for "Miss Government Girl," who will be featured in a sequence of the Mary Worth comic strip has been narrowed down to 29 girls who work in Federal Government offices here.

Allen Saunders, writer, and Ken Ernst, artist for the strip, announced yesterday that, working from the original 942 entries, they managed, by dint of hard work, to narrow the field to 160, then to 54, then to the 29 remaining in the contest.

The 29 girls were notified yesterday to appear today before the artist-writer judges, who expect to be able to announce the winner late today.

Saunders and Ernst emphasized that throughout the contest they have been looking not so much for beauty as for an attractive girl who would fit into their ideas for the Washington Mary Worth story.

Winner will receive a first prize of $200 from The Washington Post and a nine-day Bermuda trip, given by World-Wide Travel Service Corp. Second prize winner will receive $50 in cash, and 10 runners-up will get $5 each.

The finalists are:

Gini MacNaught, 20, 4615 21st st. ne.; Audrey Hall, 20, 4815 4th st. nw.; Thelma Ramsey, 21, 6106 9th st. nw.; Shirley Ahlstrom, 20, McCabe House, American University; Tina Hawkins, 26, 1625 16th st. nw.; Frances Ormsbee, 19, 1109 24th st. nw.

Betty Viedt, 20, 6634 Georgia ave. nw.; Peggy Polson, 24, 1101 17th st. nw.; Jane MacCombs, 21, 1207 Clifton st. nw.; Elaine Hatch, 27, Westchester apts.; Gloria Haverty, 21, 4539 South Dakota ave. ne.; Shirley Alexander, 21, 231 1st st. ne.; Elva Bowen, 21, 633 F st. sw.; Polly Beatty, 23, 4327 8th st. nw.

McClenon Heads Tax Study Group At Takoma Park

Creation of a special committee to study taxes and services provided in Takoma Park, Md., was announced yesterday by Luke J. Bennett, jr., president, Takoma Park Community League.

The committee was formed, Bennett said, to investigate complaints that Takoma Park is the highest taxed area in Montgomery County but receives fewer services than those communities paying only the county tax. The todwn taxes its property holders $1.20 per $100 assessed valuation in addition to the county tax.

Bennett said the committee would also study proposals to place the mayor on a full-time, paid basis, and pay councilmen for meetings attended. He estimated this would cost the town about $6000 a year.

The committee, asked to report back to the March meeting of the league, includes Walter H. McClenon, chairman; Millard C. Taft, Miss Vivian Simpson, Joseph Simpson, jr., Mrs. Alma Opal, John K. Williams, Clayton Bailey and Bennett.

Fire Destroys 2 Greenhouses In Silver Spring

A Silver Spring, Md. man yesterday saw his hobby and approximately $10,000 go up in smoke.

In a pre-dawn blaze, two greenhouses owned by Charles T. Williams, 58, of 1212 Noyes dr., were partially destroyed.

None of the several thousand valuable plants and flowers inside could be removed from the blazing structures, and all were ruined, Williams said.

The amateur horticulturist, who is president of the Federal Lithographing Co., 1529 7th st. nw., said flower raising had been his hobby for about 12 years.

In the houses were hundreds of easter lilies, snapdragons and stock, and about 1000 geranium plants, Williams said, pointing out that he raised them for his own and his friends' enjoyment.

Bank Case Defendants Pay $8000 in Fines

Richmond, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Kyle M. Weeks and Joseph A. Sowers today paid out $8000 in fines for their involvement in the Fredericksburg Bank case.

Weeks, Floyd County attorney and former member of the House of Delegates, turned over $5000 to Deputy District Clerk Glover N. Buck, and Sowers, cashier of the Floyd County Bank submitted his check for $3000.

Both checks, drawn on the Floyd County Bank, were certified.

The two men pleaded nolo contendere to charges of aiding and abetting in the misapplication of funds from the now defunct Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg.

Laughlin Lashes At McLaughlin

Calls Prosecutor 'Dead-End Kid' as Closing Arguments Begin; Hit in Turn

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Closing arguments in the Laughlin-Peckham abortion trial in District Court yesterday flared into a bitter verbal battle between Prosecutor Arthur McLaughlin and Defendant James J. Laughlin, himself an attorney.

McLaughlin depicted Laughlin as the seducer of a "young girl from a small town," while the defendant retaliated by dubbing the scrappy 5-feet-6-inch prosecutor as "a vest pocket edition of a Dead-End kid."

Laughlin and his codefendant Dr. Henry L. Peckham, jr., are charged with complicity in an abortion performed on Laughlin's former sweetheart, Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs, 23, "on or about March 20 and March 22, 1947."

The case will be placed in the jury's hands today after further argument by H. Mason Welch, attorney for Peckham, and Prosecutor Charles B. Murray.

"They will tell you this girl is immoral. But if she is who made her immoral?" McLaughlin asked.

"She came from a small town and met this man—this man with the silver tongue who spoke to her of marriage. But did he want marriage? Or did he want to use her for his own selfish sex desires?"

Speaking of a letter, which the defense asserted was written to Laughlin by Mrs. Hobbs and which stated the attorney was not responsible for her pregancy nor abortion, McLaughlin posed the question why Laughlin had not produced that letter before the grand jury.

"If he had such evidence why did he not show it to the police or to the grand jury before he was indicted. Why stand the embarrassment of a trial?" the prosecutor demanded.

"Mr. Laughlin claims a shakedown. If that is true why did he not report it to Mr. Fay (George Morris Fay, United States Attorney for the District) before the trial started?" McLaughlin asked.

The prosecutor attacked the testimony of two of Laughlin's daughters who had told of visiting the Episcopal Eye and Ear Hospital with their father on March 20. It was further testified they and Laughlin were driven back from the hospital by a physician because it was raining.

"But we have in evidence a report from the United States Weather Bureau that it did not rain on the night of March 20," McLaughlin shouted. "Sure Mr. Laughlin's daughters would lie for their father."

Here Laughlin interrupted to protest to Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws. "You wouldn't want that said about your daughters," Laughlin declared to the judge.

"I wouldn't have brought my daughters here," Laws replied.

Also Attacks Murray

Referring to McLaughlin as a "vest-pocket edition of a Dead-End Kid" and to Prosecutor Murray, who has been in the United States Attorney's office for 27 years, as "often a bridesmaid but never a bride," Laughlin pointed out that the Government could not produce "one expert" to say that the signatures on the disputed letters were false.

"Nor have they been able to show falsehood on the part of any witness who testified as to my whereabouts on March 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23," the defendant declared.

"By their own assertions Petrain, Ford and Stottlemyer (Government witnesses who testified as to the abortion) were accomplices. But are they being prosecuted? Were they indicted?" Laughlin asked.

Stressing previous assertions that he was the victim of persecution by police authorities and the United States Attorney, Laughlin asked: "Were I a streetcar operator or a man who drives a garbage wagon would the case have reached such proportions?"

Calls Mrs. Hobbs a "Tool"

Calling Mrs. Hobbs "a willing tool" of the prosecution, Laughlin said: "You have seen her in court—each day garbed in a different dress. She has a job at a modest salary. Where did she get the money for these clothes?"

Laughlin continued: "Things have come to a pretty pass if you cannot escape blackmail by reporting to authorities."

Explaining why he wrote Mrs. Hobbs demanding she retract assertions he had to do with the abortion, after she was alleged to have written a letter absolving him, Laughlin declared she had made further remarks concernings him after the date of the letter.

The attorney drew a laugh as he remarked of Mrs. Irma Petrain, a nurse, who testified for the Government from a stretcher: "If you had put a live mouse under that stretcher, she would have leaped up and run from the courtroom."

Lands in Snow

Woman, 28, Lives After 4-Story Fall

A 28-year-old woman from Allentown, Pa., plunged four stories from a window at the College Inn, 1825 G st. nw., early yesterday, and lived to tell about it.

The victim, Miss Margaret Fischl, landed in an areaway in the remains of Washington's last snowfall at about 2:15 a. m. Police said the snow may have saved her life.

Gallinger Hospital doctors listed her condition as "critical," but said her only injuries thus far determined were a broken arm and ankle. They said her condition was "improved" last night and that she was conscious.

Police said she apparently had slipped while reaching for some food on the window ledge. They were told, they said, that Miss Fischl, visiting relatives at the hotel, had gone into their room because she couldn't sleep and had obtained permission to use an extra bed there.

D. C. Man Sought In 2 Robberies Gets Five Years

Arrested in a Brentwood, Md., tavern by deputy sheriff, John A. Mullen, 40, of 2000 D st. ne., sought by both Maryland and Virginia police in robbery cases, was jailed in Marlboro to commence a five-year prison term for participation in the armed robbery, July 9, of $7500 in cash and jewelry from Mr. and Mrs. Spruce Baird of 2705 Arundel rd., Mount Rainier, Md.

Arlington County, Va., police yesterday placed a detainer against him, charging him with being one of a trio of bandits who tied up, tortured and robbed Mr. and Mrs. Cofer Fairfax of from $400 to $500 in their home, 817 N Lincoln st., Arlington, on January 15.

Police said Mullen was reported missing on $5000 bond after the Prince Georges County Circuit Court upheld his conviction Decem 3 for armed robbery of the Bairds. Arrested January 18 by District police at the request of Arlington County police, he was free under $2000 bond pending extradition proceedings set for February 19.

Many Are Mentioned As Apperson Successor

Richmond, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—At least a dozen names figured today in speculation as to a successor to fill the unexpired term of Attorney General Harvey B. Apperson, who died unexpectedly Monday.

The General Assembly will elect his successor to fill the remainder of the term which ends in January, 1950.

Mentioned prominently as possible successors were: Walter E. Rogers, assistant attorney general; John Q. Rhodes, State unemployment compensation commissioner; John B. Spiers, former delegate from Radford; Stuart B. Campbell, former delegate from Wythe; former State Senators William D. Medley of Arlington and C. O'Conor Goolrick of Fredericksburg; Wilbur C. Hall of Leesburg, also a former member of the House of Delegates; G. Gardner Tyler, jr., Assistant Attorney General attached to the division of motor vehicles, and John Galleher, Richmond and Leesburg attorney.

Area News in Brief

Diggers Uncover Conduit of Logs

An unexpected find 4 feet below the earth's surface yesterday startled excavating crews digging in for nothing more spectacular than earth.

Workmen forging a trench for the Potomac Electric Power Co., at 8th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., came up with an antique water main—constructed wholly of logs

Alfred Holmes, president of the Circle Paving Co., contractors, said the conduit is in "good condition" although put in before 1820.

"The logs are speared on the end so that one log fits into the other," he said. There's a hole through the center four or five inches in diameter "but I can't figure out how it got there," he added.

Nowadays, Holmes explained, cast iron is used for similar purposes.

Voting Law Clarified

Anyone qualified to vote in last Church can vote in the town's Feb-November's election in Falls ruary 17 referendum on a proposed one-million-dollar water bond issue, Town Manager Roy F. Dunn said yesterday.

He said the ruling had come from Virginia's Assistant Attorney General Walter E. Rogers after thhe town equested claification of voting laws.

Roges also pointed out that town esidents who had paid State poll taxes by he second week of January, 1948, also are eligible if they register, Dunn said.

Trade Board Aides Named

Appointment of Charles H. Kopeland, Silver Spring, Md., advertising man, as executive secretary of the Silver Spring Board of Trade was announced last night by President Blair Lee at a regular meeting in the Indian Springs Country Club.

Kopeland

Committee chairmen also named by Lee included: finance committee, Lewis Hopfenmaier, II; civic affairs, Gregg Everngam; legislative, Einar B. Christensen; membership, C. Murray; apprentice training, William P. Goodman, and business development and Federal installation, C. Bailey Scrimgeour.

Funds 'Frozen'

Winter has not only cut down Arlington County's parking meter revenue, but has posed a coin-thawing problem as well.

Police Chief Harry Woodyard reported yesterday a week's take of $300 in nickels from the parking meters had to be thawed out on police radiators before the frozen funds could be separated and counted.

Camp Needs $15,000

Alexandria police will need $15,000 to conduct their boys' camp at Kilmarnock, Va., this summer, Lieut. George F. Everly said yesterday. The camp was opened last summer for the first time.

The Alexandria Police Association is paying off the mortgage on the camp property and depending on private contributions to operate the camp.

Treated for Frostbite

A man who told police he had been sitting on a sidewalk wall all day because he couldn't walk, was treated at Georgetown Hospital yesterday for frostbitten feet and possible gangrene.

He gave his name as Joe Holmes, 29, to police who answered a call from neighbors that the man had been sitting on the wall in the 3200 block of M sts nw., all day Tuesday. He gave an address in the 1300 block of 27th st. nw., but police said he had not lived there for two years.

Liquor Permit Renewed

Automatic renewal of a Class C liquor license for a restaurant at 319 Pennsylvania ave. se. was assured yesterday when no one appeared to protest at an Alcoholic Beverage Control Board hearing. The application was made by Gardner Spring White, proprietor.

Held on Pension Charge

A hospitalized veteran of World War I was held on $2000 bond for grand jury action yesterday on a charge of making a false claim for Government funds.

William L. Dickerson, 57, of 2115 N st. nw., a former patient at Martinsburg (W. Va.) Veterans Hospital, received a pension check for $331, agents charged, but swore out a claim that the check had been lost.

He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Chimney Fire Put Out

A chimney fire in a three-story office and apartment building at 1739 F st. nw., was quickly extinguished yesterday. The Fire Department reported no property damage or injuries was sustained.

Traffic Safety Lags

The District of Columbia failed to place among leaders in traffic safety for its population group in 1947, the National Safety Council reported yesterday.

Among cities of more than 500,000, Milwaukee led with 3.6 traffic deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles; Buffalo had 3.9, and Cleveland, 4.1.

Washington, according to police statistics, had 5.3 fatalities per 10,000 vehicles, and 7.7 per 10,000 population.

As Work Goes On

PAU Annex Brings New Krug Protest

A new protest by Interior Secretary Krug against construction of a Pan American Union annex in front of his building fell on deaf—or deafened—ears yesterday.

The only answer he got was the sound of pick and shovel on the annex site south of the Interior Department. The block where construction on the annex has begun is bounded by Constitution and Virginia aves. and 18th and 19th sts. nw.

Pan American Union officials indicated they would go ahead with construction—even if the building does stick out beyond the line of its Constitution ave. neighbors, as Krug complains.

Thus far, the union has succeeded in completing a tunnel between the annex site and its main building in the next block, between 17th and 18th sts. nw.

In a letter to PAU Director General Alberto Lleras yesterday, Krug asked that work on the project be stopped "immediately." He also asked that a conference be arranged to seek "an agreeable solution to the problem."

Interior Department engineers released a sketch of the area showing how the proposed annex could be built in the same block with the main building by moving the director general's residence out of the way.

GSI Strike Lapses Into Calm; 1200 Still on Picket Line

With approximately 1200 pickets plodding the slush around 40 Government building cafeterias in the 31-day-old strike, here is how the situation stood:

The Labor Department reported "nothing new" in Secretary Schwellenbach's efforts to find a solution, pursuant to White House orders.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) said his subcommittee would discuss with the full Labor and Education Committee the possibility of citing union leaders for contempt of Congress for refusing to say whether they are Communists.

GSI stood firm in its refusal to talk to the union, Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO), until the non-Communist affidavits are filed. The union had sought a 15-cent increase when the contract expired December 31.

First All-Woman Jury In Md. Hears Auto Case

Baltimore, Feb. 4 (AP).—Maryland's first all-woman jury heard a case today and awarded $875 to a man.

The women deliberated about an hour before returning an $875 damage verdict in favor of George M. Bauer, for injuries suffered in an automobile accident. The defendant also was a man.

Poland Gets Apology For U. S. Plane Landing

Warsaw, Feb. 4 (AP).—The Polish government today said the United States Embassy had apologized for the unauthorized landing of an American plane here two weeks ago.

Poles detained the five crewmen several hours because they had no visas or landing permit. The plane came from Berlin to pick up an injured American soldier.

The spokesman also said the United States Minister to Switzerland had "apologized orally to the Polish minister at Bern for action of American military police at Karlsruhe (Germany) in questioning and threatening a Polish diplomatic courier, Mrs. Maria Berkowicz."

Low Income Housing Needs Given Study

Representativcs of eight community organizations met yesterday to discuss what was being done to meet low-income housing needs in the District and concluded that the answer was "nothing."

Meeting in the YWCA under the auspices of the District Joint Committee on Housing, the officials gave their comments on what they would do in the hypothetical case of a family of six seeking housing. The family was evicted because of insanitary conditions in present housing or to make way for public improvements such as schools, the Rev. A. Powell Davies, chairman, said.

Mrs. Florence T. Conlin, director of the tenant and community relations section of National Capital Housing Authority: The agency has 8100 housing units—all occupied— and a waiting list of 17,000 families, some of whom have been waiting since 1941.

Col. Waldron E. Leonard, director of the District Veterans Housing Center: A three-bedroom house would be almost impossible to find. A two-bedroom one would rent about $125—a month—above the means of a moderate income earner.

Sidney Maslen, executive vice president, Washington Housing Association: We would attempt to get the family to stay in present quarters even if grossly inadequate since no other housing is available.

Charles C. Beckett, executive secretary, Washington Urban League: If the family has any kind of housing, we would have other individuals move in with them. The situation "is much more acute for the Negro."

Miss Florence A. Murray, assistant director, Catholic Charities of Washington: We "don't have the answer." Some ask in desperation that we at least help them place their children.

The meeting concluded with a plea by Mrs. Dorothea Wells, executive vice president, Citizens Council for Community Planning, for action to overcome "political apathy and inertia" here and get work underway for the building of public low-income housing.

Carleton D. Smith Named Television Manager by NBC

Smith

Smith will take over his new post next month, with offices in New York, NBC Television Director Noran E. Kersta said yesterday.

As Presidential announcer during the entire 12 years of Mr. Roosevelt's administration, Smith traveled throughout the world with the late President, and introduced him at all of his fireside chats. He was one of two radio men invited to attend Mr. Roosevelt's funeral services at the White House.

Perno Says Half Argentina's Grain Is Not Paid For

Buenos Aires, Feb. 4 (AP).—President Juan D. Peron denied last night that Argentina's grain policy takes advantage of hunger abroad.

The president defended the government's prices for wheat sold abroad. He said the return actually is reduced by half because of the nations which are unable to pay.

He said half Argentina's wheat exports are paid for through barter for coal, machinery and other supplies. The remaining half, he said, goes to countries which cannot pay. He specified France, Italy, Spain and Greece.

He added, "We cannot wait to make plans while people die of hunger. I believe, instead of talking about supplying food, it is better to supply it because it is more human and does more good for the man who is hungry and has nothing to pay."

Traffic Safety Is Topic

"Where Now in Traffic Safety?" will be discussed at the Friendship Lions Club luncheon today at the Alban Towers, Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw., by George Hammond, D. C. director of safety and education, American Automobile Association.

England, 36, a native of Hyattsville, Md., entered District government service in 1934 as secretary to the superintendent at Lorton Reformatory

O. G. Raymond Dies on Coast; Fuel Retailer

Otto George Raymond, 65, a long-time resident of Washington and active in the retail fuel industry here for many years, died Tuesday in San Diego, Calif. He had been ill for several years.

For nearly 40 years he was one of the owners and directors of John P. Agnew Co., Inc., one of the oldest retail fuel firms in Washington. Because of ill health he had spent much of his time in recent years in California, returning to Washington periodically to look after his interests here.

He retired from active participation in business about 12 years ago.

Born in Syracuse, N. Y., Mr. Raymond came to Washington as a child. He attended grade school and a business high school here and later went to St. John's College in Annapolis.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Irene C. Raymond of San Diego, and a brother, George L. Raymond, of 2901 18th st. nw.

Lincolnia Group Gets Bus Service Promise

Bus and telephone service and highway improvements were the principal topics of discussion Tuesday night at ameeting of the Greater Lincolnia Civic League in Fairfax County.

J. A. Phillips, resident State engineer for Fairfax County, described plans for extending Shirley hwy. in the Lincolnia area.

After a discussion of the need for bus service in the area, an ABW Bus Co. official said it in the near future.

was planned to supply the service

The league also went on record as opposing telephone company plans to transfer Lincolnia telephones from the Alexandria Temple exchange to the Falls Church exchange.

Man Seeks to Pay For Shoes Bought in '17

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—A Baltimore World War I veteran has sent a $3 money order to "the Mayor of New York City" to pay for a pair of shoes he obtained here 31 years ago.

Police said they received the order from Robert G. Davidson.

"This is for Willie Hahn, who operated a Hahn shoe store on the west side of 8th ave., between 141st and 142d st., in the spring of 1917," Davidson wrote.

"I got a pair of shoes for $3. He trusted me. I never paid him. If you cannot find him, let your conscience be your guide."

Mrs. Hanger, District Native, Dies in N. Y.

Lucy Galt Hanger, 68, widow of G. Wallace Hanger of Washington, died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Maude Ellis, of Jackson Heights, Long Island, N. Y.

A native of Washington, Mrs. Hanger lived here until the death of her husband 10 years ago. She was educated in Cincinnati, Ohio, and in European schools.

Mrs. Hanger was wed in 1902. Her husband served on the United States Board of Mediation from 1913 to 1920 and was assistant director of labor, United States Railroad Administration, from 1918 to 1920.

Active in the D. A. R. for many years, Mrs. Hanger was twice regent of the Capt. Molly Pitcher Chapter of Washington. She also served as vice president general of the national organization.

Surviving, in addition to Mrs. Ellis, are two other children, Wallace Galt Hanger and William Galt Hanger, both of the New York Metropolitan area. She also leaves a brother, William M. Galt of Glendale, Ohio.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension in New York City.

Dr. George W. Hunter

Claremont, Calif., Feb. 4 (AP).—Dr. George W. Hunter, 2d, 74, teacher and author, died today after a heart attack.

Dr. Hunter wrote "Lements of Biology," which John T. Scopes used as a textbook when he was arrested for teaching evolution in violation of Tennessee law. This led to the famous "Scopes Trial" of 1925.

Mrs. Martha V. Lynch

Huntington, W. Va., Feb. 4 (AP). Mrs. Martha Vinson Jerrell Lynch, 93-year-old cousin of Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, died today at her home in nearby Kenova after a brief illness.

She was the oldest living member of the Vinson family and left 119 living descendants.

A native of Independence, Mo., Mrs. Lynch was active for her age and was known to do all her own housework.

Impartial Judge Won Respect of Abraham Lincoln

Chicago, Feb. 4 (U.P.).—A judge who could not be influenced by Abraham Lincoln, the attorney, was later appointed to the United States Supreme Court by Abraham Lincoln, President, a newly found letter indicated today.

Lincoln discussed a lawsuit in a brief note found recently in New York and disclosed this week.

A line in the 1852 note said, "Peck tells me confidentially that as Davis is presiding at this term, a judgment is hardly possible in the amount asked."

Ralph G. Newman, Chicago Lincoln authority, said it showed the "obvious respect Lincoln had for a judge (David Davis) he couldn't get next to in order to obtain a favorable decision in a case."

Strike of Pilots Grounds Planes

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP).—A strike of 145 pilots grounded all planes on National Airlines 11-State system today.

The AFL Air Line Pilots Association said the walkout, which began last night, was "the inevitable climax of two years of notoriously poor pilot-management relations." They also blamed a "concern over air safety."

However, the company claimed the strike "came at an opportune time due to the walkout of clerks and mechanics" at Miami headquarters nearly two weeks ago.

The line, which was organized in St. Petersburg about 12 years ago, now serves cities from Miami to Newark, N. J., and west to Texas.

New Flag of Dominion Is Raised Over Ceylon

Colombo, Ceylon, Feb. 4 (AP).—The lion flag of the Sinhalese nation was raised today at the birth of the new Ceylon dominion after 130 years of British rule.

Ceylon, a 25,000 square mile island off the east coast of India, is the third new dominion carved from the British empire since the war and the second British possession to receive self-rule in three days. The other dominions are India and Pakistan. Malaya's self-rule was proclaimed Sunday. Burma also has received its independence.

Earl of Derby, Sportsman, Dies His Horses Won Many Races

Lord Derby was Secretary for War under David Lloyd George during World War I and British Ambassador to France.

He was best known for his association with the English Derby, the classic named for his family. In nearly a half century his horses won over 1000 races with nearly $3,340,000 in prizes.

Lord Derby won Derbys with Sansovino in 1924, Hyperion in 1933 and Watling Street in 1942.

Two years ago as head of the Pilgrims, a British-American friendship society, he proposed a memorial to Franklin D. Roosevelt in Grosvenor Square, London.

Born Edward George Villiers Stanley, he was one of Britain's wealthiest men.

William F. Ryder

William Francis Ryder, 46, of 1909 Stratton rd., Montgomery Hills, Md., died at Suburban Hospital Monday of double pneumonia. He had been ill for two days.

A native of Washington, Mr. Ryder was a retired Government clerk. He had made his home in Silver Spring for the past eight years.

Mr. Ryder was educated at the Immaculate Conception School and Central High School in the District. He was a bachelor.

He leaves five sisters, Mrs. M. M. Chauncey of the Stratton rd. address, Mrs. E. A. Ayers of Alexandria, Mrs. J. A. Murray of Washington, Mrs. R. S. Mead and Mrs. Edward McFadden, both of N. Beach, Md., and one brother, P. J. Ryder of Silver Spring.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Friday at the Warner Pumphrey funeral home in Silver Spring. Requiem mass will be said at 11 a. m. at St. John's Church in Forest Glen, Md. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Harvey B. Apperson

Salem, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Final rites for Harvey B. Apperson, Attorney General of Virginia, who died Monday in Richmond following a heart attack, were conducted this afternoon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Salem.

Friends of Apperson, including State dignitaries, overflowed the small church for the service. Gov. William M. Tuck headed an official party which came by plane from the State capital to attend the funeral.

After the Episcopal funeral service at the church the body was taken to East Hill Cemetery for interment.

Rev. S. A. Alexander

London, Feb. 4 (AP).—The Rev. Sidney Arthur Alexander, 82, canon and treasurer of St. Paul's Cathedral since 1909, died today. He was a noted theological writer and poet.

Col. Frank Keller

In Memoriam

CORBIN, MRS. MARY. Sacred to the memory of my dear mother, MARY CORBIN, on this, her birthday, February 5, who passed away December 13, 1947.
There was never a mother more perfect,
There was never a friend more true;
There was never a person in all the world
That could equal, dear mother, you.

Two years may lie thickly before us,
And the way not always a song,
The task will be lighter, the burden brighter,
For you have shown us how to be strong.

Your life was a symbol of courage,
Full of gentleness, sacrifice and love,
And we'll always be true, dear mother, to you
Till we meet there in heaven above.
MR. AND MRS. EDWARD CORBIN.

Friends Follow Custom At Double Birthday Fete

By Marie McNair

ROYCE POWELL and Jack Logan have been celebrating their birthdays together since 1935.

And while Royce admits those 13 years have brought him to the age of 45, Jack Logan's figures are strictly "off the record."

Yesterday was "the day" again and guests plowed through snow and slush to get to the Powell's Georgetown house at cocktail time. There was a bar set up, twin birthday cakes for the honor guests, and to give a seasonal touch there was a snowman in the front garden built by the three Powell youngsters—Lissa, Judy and Kaevie, with the help of Donita, small daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Richard Cutts. The Cutts family is here for the week from their country home at The Plains, Va., to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Powell, and brought along a fine rosy ham from the farm for the party.

Among the guests Louise and Royce Powell had asked in to celebrate the occasion were Senator and Mrs. George Malone, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Dunne, Mrs. Harold Walker who came with her son Aldace; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blake, the Peter Ansberrys, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Ken Watson without his wife, who's on the the sick list; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Gen. and Mrs. Clayton Adams, Emil and Gudrun Hurja, Mrs. George Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Constantine de Stackelberg, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hurd, the Robert Sherrods, just back from China; Mr. and Mrs. William Herron, Ralph Forster and Don Baruch.

TOWN TOPICS:

Here for the remainder of the winter season is Mrs. J. Ramsey Speer, who has closed Bruff Island Farm at Easton, Md., and has taken an apartment at Wardman Park.

Mrs. Speer will meet some of her old friends and make new ones at the cocktail party in her honor to be given by Mrs. Edward McK. Hunt on February 14. Mrs. Hunt's daughter, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Schuyler is Mrs. Speer's daughter-in-law. Mrs. Schuyler, now in New York, will be down next week for the party and also coming down from New Jersey is her brother, Bridgford Hunt.

Two honor guests, and three hosts is the setup for the cocktail party on February 17 at the home of Mrs. Martin Vogel.

The visitors to be feted are Miss Verbena Hibbard of California, and George Sandor, Hungarian pianist, who will play the next evening with the National Symphony at Constitution Hall.

Entertaining with Mrs. Vogel will be her nephew and niece, Gen. and Mrs. Clayton Adams, who knew Miss Hibbard when they lived in California last year.

Tea Launches Drive For Navy-Marine Group

MRS. JOHN L. SULLIVAN, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, was among the guests at the musical-tea given yesterday by Mrs. Delmar S. Fahrney, to launch the Navy-Marine Corps committee's drive for the sustaining fund campaign for the National Symphony Orchestra. Mrs. Fahrney is chairman of the unit.

Since the Army and Navy have merged under National Defense, the Navy had requested that Capt. Hugh Curry, director of the Army Band at Fort Myer, open the Navy tea with an invocation. As a result the Navy-Marine Corps drive was initiated by Staff Sergt. Delmar S. Fahrney, jr., 20-year-old son of the hostess and Captain Fahrney, director of pilotless aircraft, Bureau of Aeronautics.

Sergeant Fahrney, who is baritone soloist with the Fort Myer band, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Blind Ploughman." He made his debut at the Watergate symphonies last June. Following the organization meeting Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Louis Denfeld, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations, presided at the tea table.

The guests, representing the various departments of the Navy and Marine Corps, included Mrs. Clifton B. Cates, wife of the Commandant of the Marine Corps; Mrs. L. C. Shepherd, chairman of the Marine Corps group; Mrs. Cato D. Glover, vice-chairman of the Navy-Marine Corps committee; Mrs. Earl W. Mills, treasurer; Mrs. Donald Curtis, secretary.

Adm., Mrs. Denfield To Be Feted

Foster—Edmonds

Last evening at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, Miss Mary Ellen Edmonds and William Hecker Foster, both of Washington, were married. Mrs. Foster is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Edmonds of Miami, Fla., and Mr. Foster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Foster of this city.

Dr. Oscar L. Blackwelder officiated and Mr. Edmonds escorted his daughter. Mr. Foster had his father as best man.

The bride wore ivory slipper satin made with a square neckline and a lace collar. Her veil fell from a Mary Stuart cap trimmed with lace and seed pearls and she carried a white Bible topped with white camellias and stephanotis.

Mrs. Errett Straley, jr., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor and Mrs. Wallace L. Reese, also a cousin of the bride, and Miss Erma Stough were bridesmaids. They wore taffeta frocks with pleated berthas and half hats trimmed in ostrich plumes. Mrs. Straley wore fuchsia, Mrs. Reese, raisin, and Miss Stough, dusty rose.

The ushers were Kenneth Foster of Indianapolis and Charles E. Foster, brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception was held in the Fireside Room at the church. The couple will reside in Washington when they return from their wedding trip.

The bride attended Wilson Teachers College and University of Miami and was graduated from Capital City School of Nursing. She served two years in the European theater in the Army Nurse Corps. The bridegroom attended George Washington University. He served during the war with the Merchant Marine.

Tuohy—Bell

Miss Ellen Louise Bell became the bride of Dr. John Hugh Tuohy at 10 a. m. yesterday at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church at Bethesda, Md. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bradford Bell, sr., of Bethesda and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Tuohy, also of Bethesda.

The Rev. Thomas E. O'Connell, uncle of the bride, of Richmond, Va., officiated and Mr. Bell gave his daughter in marriage. She wore white satin with a yoke of marquisette. Her veil fell from a coronet of rose point lace from her mother's wedding gown and she carried white camellias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Leslie Bradford Bell, jr., of Bethesda, was matron of honor in gold faille and carrying a bouquet of ivy. She wore a headdress of ivy and white carnations. Miss Patricia Murnane of Bethesda was maid of honor wearing American beauty faille. She also carried ivy with a matching headdress for her hair.

The bridesmaids were Misses Ellen Tuohy, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Margaret Ann Badger of Bethesda, Miss Rosemary Hein and Miss Mary Therese Dwyer of Washington. They wore pale green faille gowns and had ivy bouquets and headpieces.

Edgar J. Jenkins of Washington was best man and the ushers were Leslie Bradford Bell, jr., and Hugh Brown of Bethesda and Dr. William Kellow of Chicago and Dr. John Dowling Relfe of San Francisco.

A reception was held at Kenwood Country Club. After a Southern wedding trip the couple will live at Little Rock, Ark., where the bridegroom is with the U. S. Public Health Service.

Binswanger—Cheek

The marriage of Miss Lindalee Cheek and William B. Binswanger took place January 30 in St. Andrews' Episcopal Church, College Park, Md. Performing the ceremony was the Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton, assisted by the Rev. D. Hobart Evans. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland H. Cheek of College Park and Mr. Binswanger is son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest L. Binswanger of Washington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white velveteen. Her veil was held with a headband of the same material and she carried a bouquet of white roses. Mrs. Joseph B. Hollon, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore dusty pink velveteen and Miss Phyllis Cheek, maid of honor for her sister, was costumed in blue. Bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Ballinger, Miss Lois Betterly, Miss Nancy Houch and Miss Jeanne Snider. Their costumes were of deep purple velveteen. Miss Carolyn Cheek, junior bridesmaid for her sister, wore blue. All the attendants carried velveteen muffs to which white roses were pinned. George Royce Mutimer served as best man and ushering were Charles R. Barley, Myron A. Gowan, jr., Joseph W. McCary and Warren L. Cheek.

Forrestal Tells of 'Peace Strategy'

By Genevieve Reynolds

Universal Military Training, the United Nations, and the European Recovery Program are all parts of the grand strategy for peace. So declared Secretary of Defense James Forrestal when he appeared as guest of honor and speaker at the Women's National Press Club's luncheon yesterday in the Statler Hotel.

"ERP is an essential part of an adequate defense," he explained. "The world community is so closely interrelated that what happens here has immediate reaction in other parts of the world. And what occurs in other parts of the world is felt here."

The Secretary stressed the importance of restoring political balance and of reviving normal social and economic conditions that affect world trade. To illustrate America's dependence on world trade, he remarked: "Oil reserves in the Middle East may be as important to the United States as they formerly were to Europe," adding that the Middle East has 41 per cent of the world's crude oil reserves.

Mr. Forrestal called upon his listeners not to lose faith in the U. N. "Don't be overoptimistic," he cautioned. "But don't ruin faith i nthe organization by cynicism and pessimism."

"It would be a miracle if 57 nations in three short years could produce world peace," said the Secretary.

He said that we in our lifetime may not see the time when people in Europe can travel freely from country to country and shop without too many customs barriers, but that we must continue to work toward that end.

Reiterating his oft-repeated warning that the United States must have strong armed forces to back up a strong international policy, he said that UMT is not a threat to world peace . . . that it is not designed to start wars but to lead the world to peace.

High ranking members of the armed services were special guests at the luncheon, including the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, Undersecretary of the Air Forces and Mrs. Arthur S. Barrows.

President, too, were the incoming Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, and Mrs. Bradley; Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Commandant of the Marine Corps; Col. Mary Hallaren, director of the WAC, and Capt. Joy Bright Hancock, director of the WAVES.

Mrs. Forrestal, wife of the Secretary of Defense, was there, as were the chiefs of the armed services information sections and their wives, including Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Floyd L. Parks; Capt. Ernest M. Eller of the Navy, Brig. Gen. W. E. Riley of the Marine Corps, and Mrs. Riley; Col. W. E Nuckols of the Air Force and Mrs. Nuckols.

Club Leaders Appear At Congressional Hearing

National and local club leaders overcame obstacles of stalled street-cars and buses stuck in the snow yesterday and turned up at an early morning hearing on Bill H. R. 5137, being conducted by the Subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

The bill, introduced on January 26 by Representative John Lesinski of Mich., proposes to amend immigration laws so as to end discriminations against American women married to aliens. The bill, in short would equalize immigration privileges between American in short, would equalize immigration law stands today, alien wives of American husbands are permitted to enter the country on a nonquota basis, but alien husbands of American wives are not given the same privilege.

Testifying in favor of the bill were Miss Anna Lord Strauss, president National League of Women Voters; Miss Geneva McQuatters of the National Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.; Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, representative of the National Council of Jewish Women, and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, legislative chairman of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs.

Miss Frieda S. Miller, director of the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, was another presenting evidence in support of the bill.

Your Question On Homemaking

How can I make bright again the baby's plate that has an aluminum outside? I left it in some water containing a household cleaning product and neither scouring powder or silver polish brightens its dullness. M. R. E.

Alkaline cleansers, including some scouring powders, are likely to darken aluminum. Such dark film can usually be removed by boiling the utensil in a cream of tartar solution (2 teaspoons cream of tartar to each quart of water) or in vinegar. If the plate is lined with china, it may not stand such boiling, however. In this case, you might use steel wool pads impregnated with a special soap. (Some of the aluminum companies make these and they are sold in housewares sections of department stores.)

Our baby is soon to be baptized in a Protestant (Presbyterian) church of which none of our family is a member. Is it customary to send a gift to the minister as an expression of appreciation for his services? M. H. B.

Though such gifts are acceptable and appreciated, they are not usually given in the case of a baptism, I am advised. No fee or gift is required and nine out of ten couples do not send a present to the minister.

How can I prevent a tubular chromium kitchen set from rusting? The seats and backs seem to be some kind of red plastic. How can I keep them from getting stained? M. E. L.

A coating of clear lacquer painted on the chrome furniture will give it extra protection against rusting. The plastic should be easy to keep in good condition. A well-rubbed thin coat of wax may be used as a finish if desired and will make it easier to dust. Wash occasionally with mild lukewarm soapsuds. When the lacquer on the chromium part gets old and starts to peel, it can be removed entirely with denatured alcohol and a new coating applied.

Attention H. T. M.: Another reader has offered to give you some instruction in covering lamp shades. She has been making her own successfully for 20 years. If you'll call this office, we'll be glad to help you get in touch with her.

I am interested in duplicating my original monogram and other designs on various linens for subsequent embroidering or painting. I would prefer that method of transferring by design to a material which would retain a clean, sharp outline. I understand that a prewar ink called "Tracink," when used to draw a design in reverse on tracing paper, then placed face down on the linen and ironed, left the pattern right side up and ready for embroidering and painting? Is it possible to ascertain both the name and the location of the manufacturer of "Tracink" and whether this ink is still being produced? If this ink is no longer available I would appreciate it if you could inform me of any other method that would bring satisfactory results. R. M. S.

A check at art-supply stores, art departments in department stores and embroidery shops fails to find anyone who sells or has heard of "Tracink." Also, none of these establishments knew of a similar product. A stationery store on 13th st. sells a pencil carbon paper which comes in large sheets and which some people find satisfactory for such transfer work. For further information about it, call Metropolitan 0252.

My husband brought me some beautiful white silk from Japan. I would like to make scarfs out of some of the material. I want to do some hand-painting on them, but I don't know what sort of paint or dye to use. I want the design to appear on both sides of the silk. How can this be accomplished? A. B.

Textile paints which can be bought at many paint and artist supply stores would be suitable for painting the design on your silk. Very complete directions come with these paints. Thumb tack the material to a bread board with a padding of toweling or absorbent material under it to absorb paint which soaks through to the other side. Allow to dry and if the design isn't perfect on the reverse side, turn over and touch it up with paint.

Report From Sunny Isle

Lolling on Bermuda Strand Our Correspondent Muses On Blizzards and Such

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

BERMUDA—The sun is out, the temperature's 70-plus, and this department lolling on a terrace, long drink at elbow, reads with smug satisfaction about mainland blizzards, petty annoyances like fuel shortages. By now we are equipped in authentic Bermudiana—a pink cashmere sweater softer than a bunny's nose, a New Look flannel skirt, a giddy scarf printed with a blue, pink, green, yellow map of Bermuda. For sheer swank, in one of those handbags with a carved Bermuda cedar frame we've tucked a pair of doeskin gloves.

Tour of the Bistros

DESPITE weather hazards during the past 36 hours, we've folded ourselves innumerable times into Bermuda's baby Vauxhall taxis in a feverish attempt to make a Baedekerish survey of the island's hot spots. First we stopped at Bermuda's notable aquarium. There, surprisingly intact, were penguins and Galapagos tortoises, brought back by Vincent Astor on one of the Nourmahal cruises. The tortoises, now monster beasts, were hatched quite parentless on the Astor yacht. Also, apparently unchastened by wartime years was Brinkley, a particularly unappetizing monkey, retrieved from South American jungles by Astor.

Next we dropped in for a bite at Tom Moore's Tavern, downed a squizzle, selected a particularly dynamic lobster as our entree choice, then took a peek at the Plantation where morose crustaceans idled in a convenient pool. Back in Hamilton, we were gratified to find that Bermuda's "21" was still open for drinks, anything from a Zombie to a complicated Alexander cocktail.

We dined on curried shrimps followed by steak as a chaser at "The Ace of Spades," that small upstairs bistro on Front st. Then the following day went to Bermuda's newest spot, "The Reefs," a small club-like restaurant surrounded by a cluster of cabanas out Southampton way at Christian Bay. The food's excellent, the tiny bar is more than complete, and if you feel the urge you can dip right into the Atlantic.

Just as Good as Prewar

OLD TIMERS will remember Claudia Darrell and her Water Lot Inn at Riddell's Bay. Claudia, a member of one of Bermuda's oldest families, has parlayed the family home into a profitable business. Today she looks a trifle more like W. C. Fields than in prewar days, but seems to be doing nicely. Other places to go when hotel elegance pales are Eagles' Nest, which features a good Negro chorus on Sunday evenings, or a trip to St. George's on the other end of the island where they set a nice Sabbath eve buffet. Real toffs might try a whirl at the Mid Ocean Club or swim at Coral Beach where you can still eat hearty cafeteria style. But whatever suits the fancy can be pleasured in Bermuda. It's just as good as prewar days.

First Lady and Miss Truman Attend Ship's Launching

Now in sunny New Orleans, Mrs. Harry Truman plans an early return to the city, and on Monday she will be hostess at two large teas. Approximately 200 will attend each tea. Cookies made with just enough flour to hold them together will be served, according to Mrs. James Helm, Mrs. Truman's secretary.

Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman left Washington for New Orleans yesterday to attend the launching of a ship named Harry Truman, for which Miss Truman was named sponsor.

On Thursday the 12th, the First Lady will accompany the President to the commemorating exercises to be held at the Lincoln Memorial at 12:30 by the District of Columbia Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion.

The following Monday Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman will attend Jeanette MacDonald's concert at Constitution Hall, and on Tuesday, the 17th, Mrs. Truman will greet a group of home economists. Coming from Southern and North Atlantic regions, the economists will attend a meeting in Washington arranged by the Home Economics Education Service of the United States Office of Education. There will be approximately 250.

Delegates attending the national conference of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor will be received by Mrs. Truman on the 18th, and on Thursday the 19th, at 4, Mrs. Truman will receive women attending the Jackson Jefferson anniversary dinner.

Miss Vallarino Is Entertained

Teen-Age Boy and His Friends Shun Home Since Grandma, Who Always Makes Love to Dad, Moved In; Wife Pleads Their Case and Dad Explodes

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have lived with my problem for 18 years, ever since I married John, an only child, whom I dearly loved and still do, although I knew from the first that he was spoiled. He is now 42.

The problem is his mother, who has always made a public fuss over John. We've always lived near her so she's seen him every day, and now she lives with us. In visiting our home she always made it a point to sit by John or on the arm of his chair, to hug and kiss him and tell him how sweet he is.

She has done this a number of times in the presence of friends of ours (strangers to her) in our home; and while I have been privately disgusted and socially embarrassed by her performance, I always professed to ignore it until now—when our children have begun to protest.

We have two fine children, a boy 16 and a girl 14, who are well mannered, popular and hospitable. We love them dearly and are proud of them, as they know, though I don't use "demonstrations" to prove it. Of recent years they have become uncomfortably aware of grandmother's "smudging," as Don (our son) calls it—and several times he has refused to stay home when he knew she was coming to visit.

"Get Out." Dad Roars at Wife

THREE MONTHS ago she came to live with us and I was resolved to make the best of it, but she has disrupted our whole life. The children have become irritable and no longer invite their friends to our home.

Last night the blow fell. I had asked some of Don's friends to dinner, and after dinner they went to the living room to entertain themselves while I did the dishes. John and his mother were there, and immediately she started her kissing-hugging-cooing act.

Don and his friends left at once and later he telephoned me to express his feelings and said he never intended to be in grandmother's company again as long as she stayed with us. I was upset; John sensed something was wrong, and for the first time in 18 years I unburdened myself to him about it.

He flew into a rage and said, "She is my mother and this is my house. If you and these children don't like what she does—GET OUT." What must I do? The children and I have never wanted or intended to hurt John in any way. Please advise. D. B.

Morbid Display Is Unpardonable

DEAR D. B.: You were perfectly right and fully justified in unburdening yourself to John about his mother's disgusting behavior, now that your children and their friends are in shuddering flight from the spectacle.

You don't owe them any apology for ending the long-time conspiracy of silence about their noxious love-play; and they may as well realize that the mother's pseudo-candid staging of it—always in view of audience—doesn't fool anybody (except themselves) that it isn't a morbid display.

As for John's rage, it was the neurotic's typical trigger-reaction of hostility to someone who treads on his guilt-feelings when he himself doesn't want to face them or their causative-content.

John, may heaven help him, is a victim—on the unconscious level—of pathological attachment to his vampire-mother, a form of enslavement assiduously fostered by her, and a not uncommon life-situation, as emphasized by Dr. Edward A. Strecker in his book, "Their Mothers' Sons."

Sons of such mothers, when thus wooed and smothered by "mom" to adult age, have no independent psychological selfhood thereafter. They can't stand against or repudiate her, who dominates their nature as an amoeba governs its own protrusions; and sensing their helplessness in that respect, they develop concomitant tensions of anxiety and resentment about it, even while accepting or ostensibly enjoying their fate.

Serious Crisis, But Stand Firm

THAT'S MORE or less how it is with John and why he blew his top as he did, shouting a crazy-sounding ultimatum in defense of his mother, allegedly, when you lodged a family-protest against her "demonstrations."

What to do now? There is no easy answer. But don't back down. The storm had to break, the issue had to be stated, sooner or later, with the mother living there. It may be John's house but it's your home—so don't move out, whatever happens.

This is a pretty devasting proposition that has been gathering velocity and coming to a head for 18 years, and now that it's out in the open it may break up the marriage; and maybe his mother has been aiming all along to reclaim him fully in her declining years.

The correct solution, of course, would be for John to side with you in providing other housing for his mother. And these remarks are intended to persuade him of the majority's rights on the matter. M. H.

Cigarette Tax Bill Hearing Planned

Cash Found In Wrong Deposit Box

Highland Park, Ill., Feb. 4 (U.P.).—A six-year mystery involving the late Walter Hauk's missing $10,500 was solved today with disclosure that Mrs. Karl Meyer, wife of a surgeon, had put the money in her deposit box by mistake.

Officials said there was no indication of any crime—only a mistake.

In 1941 Hauk asked the First National Bank to get for him 21 $500 bills. He intended to buy a farm.

Hauk placed the bills in his safe deposit box, or thought he did. But when he opened the box a year later the money was gone.

Three weeks ago, Mrs. Meyer came in to deposit $6000 in $500 bills. The serial numbers were those of the missing bills. Mrs. Meyer said the money had been in her deposit box for years. She said she shared the box with her mother, now dead, and had believed the money was her mother's.

Two days after Hauk reported the loss, Mrs. Meyer was in the same bank vault booth which Hauk had used. It was believed Hauk must have dropped the money, which was in an envelope. Mrs. Meyer apparently scooped up the envelope while sorting through her mother's papers.

Cost of Voting List Purge Put at $19,000

Card classification of Arlington County's 32,000 registered voters and removal from registration lists of persons who have died or left the county will cost $19,000, Bankhead Davies, the county's electoral board secretary, estimated yesterday.

Davies yesterday said the proposed card classification system and cleanup of the registration lists should eliminate the confusion and delay in obtaining returns which marked last November's elections. Last November, many precincts were jammed with voters for hours after closing time and results were not known for more than 30 hours after polls closed.

Davies' plane call for a master registration index in card files, located at the County Court House, with separate card files in each precinct. The project, scheduled to be handled by the Remington Rand Corp., must be completed by June 22, he said.

The "purging" of registration lists aims at removing names of deceased voters or those who have left the county. To bring lists up to date, names will be checked against those who have paid poll taxes between 1941 and 1946, Davies said.

Because the system is "not a cureall," Davies said lists of purged voters will be posted throughout the county to allow precinct registrars to receive complaints and rectify errors.

The card index system of classifying names will "greatly speed" election procedures, Davies felt, since each voter's name will be in alphabetical sequence. Present lists are not so arranged.

Police Deny Investigating Wallace Men

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, yesterday emphatically denied a report that a special detective squad plans to investigate District supporters of Henry A. Wallace for President.

Barrett said the police have not probed and do not plan to probe political activities of Wallace adherents "in any way, shape or form."

A local afternoon newspaper stated yesterday that the special investigation squad under Lieut. Harry C. Blackman would investigate the "political leanings" of all persons attending recent organizing meetings of Wallace supporters, and that the squad has been gathering names of persons attending meetings to protest high cost of living and race discrimination. These names, the report added, were being placed on the police "Red" list.

Major Barrett declared the report is false. He called in his top aides: Inspector Floyd Truscott, acting executive; Capt. Robert S. Bryant, acting chief of detectives, and Lieutenant Blackman and each also denied the report.

"This report is a surprise to us," said Barrett. "We have no 'Red' list."

He said Lieutenant Blackman's squad, among other duties before and during the war, had kept an eye on suspected subversives.

"We still maintain an index on subversives," Barrett said, "but we keep it strictly to ourselves. It's available to the FBI when asked for."

As to the newspaper's report that "such groups as the Georgetown Progressive Citizens Association" were the targets of investigation, Major Barrett responded the police were definitely not probing citizens organizations.

Fenwick Measure Would Provide Aid For Va. Hospitals

The Arlington Senator said he would ask the Senate Finance Committee to hold such a hearing to determine public reaction to his bill, Senate Bill 90, which would tax cigarettes 1 cent a pack to finance State aid to a hospital building program.

Assembly in Recess

Under two bills already introduced to the Assembly, the town of Falls Church, Va., stands to receive about $50,000 more annually in State funds.

One of the measures, now before the House committee on counties, cities and towns, would permit fast-growing communities to use special census counts to determine their proper shares in State funds.

Falls Church Gains Cited

Roy F. Dunn of Falls Church, has pointed out that a special 1945 census shows Falls Church had a population of 4341, as compared to the 1940 census of 2576. He estimated the town's share of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board profits would increase from $10,000 to $15,000 annually with the new population basis.

The second measure, Senate Bill 93, would grant areas with more than 3500 population $10,000 for each mile of State highway in their jurisdiction, instead of the present $4000. Falls Church, said Dunn, has more than four miles of State highway, now cared for by the State because the town is officially listed as under 3500 population.

'Commie' Tag Ruled Libel in Pearson Suit

Charles Town, W. Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—To call a man "a Commie" is libel on the face of it, Circuit Judge Decatur H. Rodgers ruled today.

Judge Rodgers' ruling was the latest in a series of court opinions that have held that calling a man a Communist is libelous per se.

Libel Until Proved

The Seventh Federal Circuit Court of Appeals held last year in Illinois that to speak of a person as a Communist or as a Communist sympathizer is libel, unless it can be proved true.

The New York State Court of Appeals also ruled last year that the false characterization of a person as a Communist or Communist sympathizer constitutes a basis for a libel suit.

After delivering his ruling, Judge Rodgers advised the 11 lawyers representing both sides that he would restrict further testimony to "mitigation of damages."

The defense thus has an opportunity to attempt to show that statements made in the paper about Pearson actually did him no damage.

Damage Is Charged

Pearson is suing the weekly's publishers and R. J. Funkhouser, wealthy West Virginia industrialist, who is editor. Pearson charges he was damaged by the weekly's comments on a lecture he gave at Charleston, W. Va., in 1946. He cited paragraphs in which the "Pink, 'Commie' commentator" was used.

Judge Rodgers has ruled that the jury may take into consideration the entire newspaper column dealing with Pearson's lecture.

Defense attorneys said the paper had not called Pearson a Communist but acknowledged he had been referred to as "leftist" and "radical."

Wheeler Hasn't Accepted as AFL Political Director

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4 (AP).—The AFL today delayed selection of a director for its political campaign at least until tomorrow, pending talks with former Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, the unanimous choice of the 15-man executive council.

Wheeler was flying from Washington to Miami to consult with the union leaders who had been under the impression he had accepted the $20,000 post as director of "Labor's League for Political Education."

Wheeler was quoted as saying he had not made up his mind.

The AFL is setting up the league to bring about repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, if possible. It plans to raise about seven million dollars for the purpose.

Operating Net Of City Bank Rises in Year

By S. Oliver Goodman

Reflecting a substantial increase in loans, the City Bank of Washington showed an upturn in net operating earnings for 1947.

Burton

President C. F. Burton yesterday reported net operating earnings totaled $222,224 last year, equal to $8.88 a share on capital stock. This compared with $200,000 in the previous year, or $8 a share.

Burton said, however, that securities dealings resulted in a net loss of $31,000 during the year, or $1.24 a share, as compared with a net profit of $1.76 a share from this source in 1946.

Commenting on the outlook, he said there is a tendency toward higher interest rates "which should maintain gross earnings." He anticipated further increases in operating expenses and pointed out that the bank has more employes now than ever before in its 41-year history.

CAFFREY ADVICE: Investment bankers need a good press agent. At least, James J. Caffrey, former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, thinks so. He says they should tell the public their good points and suggests an advertising program like the one the New York Stock Exchanges uses.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: When it comes to ideas, William G. Hills bubbles over with them. He's managing director of the Electric Institute of Washington with offices in Potomac Electric Power Building. As head of the nonprofit organization, he helps conceive and carry out ideas to make it easier for you to see and decide what electric appliances to buy. He reports that the institute's showrooms in main lobby of Pepco Building are attracting increased attendance these days now that appliances are more plentiful and buyers can "shop the market." In trade association work for more than two decades, Hills is a graduate of Ohio State and Northwestern Universities. He's been in his present post since 1945 and previously was assistant managing director. Last year he served as president of International Association of Electrical Leagues, also he's vice president of the American Trade Association Executives, composed of some 1200 members.

Prices Up 9.5% On Redesigned Cadillac Cars

Detroit, Feb. 4 (AP).—Showing its completely redesigned 1948 model cars to Detroit area distributers and dealers today, Cadillac motor car division of General Motors announced price increases of about 9.5 per cent over comparable 1947 vehicles.

The new prices, at the factory, range from $2,510 for the model 61 coupe to $3,506 for the model 60 sedan. To these figures, of course, must be added the cost of optional equipment, transportation, taxes, license fees and other items.

Don E. Ahrens, Cadillac general sales manager, said today that although his company produced 61,926 cars in 1947, only slightly under its highest annual output, unfilled orders increased more than 50 per cent during the same period.

"It is quite possible," Ahrens added, "that with favorable circumstances, we will be able to produce at least 10 per cent more cars in 1948."

Kaiser Stock Sales Fizzles; Has Henry Lost His Touch?

By J. A. Livingston

THE LUCK of Henry J. Kaiser ran out this week. Or perhaps it might be better to say that the confidence of the investing public in Kaiser, the wonder man, ebbed a bit. Or maybe it might be better to say, "What a stock market!" Kaiser-Frazer Corp.'s sale of 1,500,000 shares didn't come off—as planned.

Livingston

Investors, who couldn't buy enough Kaiser-Frazer common at $10 a share when it was first offered in September, 1945, and again at $20.25 in January, 1946, fought shy of it at $13 at this time. So much so that Kaiser-Frazer Corp. had to try to prop the market. Usually that's a job for the underwriters. But Kaiser has broad shoulders. He took the job for a day.

A week ago, coincident with the releasc of its breath-taking 1947 annual report, the company announced the offering. But the market was weak, and the sale was called off. Then the $134,000,000 Gulf Oil stock sale went over big, and the Kaiser-Frazer underwriters decided to take a chance. That was Tuesday morning.

Immediately, Kaiser-Frazer Corp. began buying stock at tthe market price of 13½. By 1:15 p.m. Tuesday, the corporation was the unhappy possessor of 103,500 shares of common. And before the 3 p.m. closing gong sounded on the New York Curb, the company had acquired there and elsewhere 186,200 shares, laying out, in cold cash $2,514,000.

OLD-TIMERS at the Securities and Exchange Commission cannot remember when a company ever had to take such a wad of stock in a one-day stabilizing operation. And even that was not enough. The underwriters took over the stabilizing yesterday at 13, the offering price. But by noon, the stock was down to 12, hardly an augury of a successful sale. By 2 p. m. it had sold at 11¼, and the underwriters—Otis & Co., Cleveland; First California Co., San Francisco; Allen & Co., New York—announced that no more orders were being taken, that the syndicate had been dissolved. The stock closed at 11¾.

Kaiser-Frazer's in this fix. Not only has it lost 1¾ points per share on its 186,200 shares, but also it doesn't know what it's netting on the deal. The underwriters were not bound to purchase all the 1,500,000 shares. They were committed to only 900,000 shares—at 11½. So the company can be sure of only $10,350,000, from which must be subtracted the $2,514,000 "invested" in stabilizing the stock.

The underwriters took the other 600,000 shares on a "best efforts" basis. The company gets the money only if the underwriters move the stock. In Kaiser-Frazer's previous offerings the underwriters weren't so timid. They committed themselves to the entire amounts. In those instances the stock was oversubscribed.

WHAT A TURN in the Wall Street state of mind! At the beginning of 1946, Kaiser-Frazer sold 36 million dollars' worth of stock with ease. Yet the company was barely in production. Total sales that year came to only $11,500,000. The company lost 19 millions. This year Kaiser-Fraser is the fourth largest passenger car manufacturer, and it just reported earnings of 19½ million dollars, more than the amount of the stock offering.

The 1947 showing—$4.11 a share—was remarkable, considering that (a) many persons doubted the company would ever get into production and (b) the odds against its showing a profit in its third year.

Here is a company that has "arrived," that has made its postwar entry into the automobile industry, yet investors now shy away from it. Two years ago, when it was still to make its mark, they were all for it. Then people were peace-happy. Times were going to be good, profits large. The stock market was anticipating better times.

Now better times are here. But not for Kaiser's stock. Or for most other stocks, for that matter. Bangor & Aroostook R. R., Wheeling Steel, and Mullins Mfg. common shares are selling at only three times '47 earnings; Northern Pacific, Jones & Laughlin, Ward Baking, and Republic Steel at less than five times; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, Atlantic Refining, Savage Arms, and Western Auto Supply at seven times earnings. What more do people want for their investment dollars? Obviously something. And something that even glamour-man Kaiser can't offer. But what?

Army Seeks Ban on Leave Promotions

The Army asked Congress yesterday for legislation to prohibit "terminal leave" promotions of officers slated for retirement.

T House Armed Services Subcommittee said an estimated $500,000 of taxpayers' funds is going into extra retirement pay for officers who never served one day in the rank at which they were retired.

Maj. Gen. John E. Daniquist, Army's personnel chief, told the subcommittee that the determination to give such terminal leave promotions had been made during the war by General George C. Marshall in order to maintain the morale of reserve officers.

Army Wants Law

But the Army, doesn't want to stop this practice by another administrative decision; it wants Congress to pass a law prohibiting it.

Chairman Charles Elston (R., Ohio) of the subcommittee, said questionaires sent to officers who are on disability retirement pay showed that there are 305 in the "terminal leave promotion" category. This mostly, he and Dahlquist said, applies to jumps from lieutenant colonel to colonel. There is a $412 a year difference in the pensions paid lieutenant colonels and colonels.

General Dahlwuist said a combined "chain grocery store" and new Veterans Administration would be needed to give former reserve officers and enlisted men the same reirement benefits allowed regular officers.

He and Rear Admiral Thomas L. Sprague, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Personnel, testified at a House Subcommittee hearing into complaints of "favoritism" to retired Army and Navy officers of high rank.

Special Privileges Conceded

Dahlquist conceded that retired officers get a better break through such special privileges as the right to buy groceries at service commissaries and the right to take their families to military hospitals. But he said that nothing much could be done about it because it would be far too costly to pass around such benefits generally.

Sprague complained that the public has been given an "unjust impression" about high-ranking officers who were retired for disability with lifetime, tax-free pensions. It has been led to believe, he said, that many officers "have improperly claimed a nonexistent disability in order to gain a lifetime pension."

Sprague said that of all the admirals retired for disability since the end of World War II, only four had less than 30 years of active service—the minimum required for a length-of-service retirement. The four in question, he said, had served for 29 years.

He said the fact that disability pensions are tax-free, in contrast to taxable length-of-service retirement pay, was none of the Navy's doing. He said the Treasury has ruled disability pensions to be tax-free and that it applies to other pensioners as well as to retired officers.

Diesels to Power Major Passenger Trains of Pennsy

Philadelphia, Feb. 4 (AP). — All major East-West passenger trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad will be powered by Diesel-electric locomotives within four months, bringing a virtual end to the company's era of steam engines.

And by August of this year, President M. W. Clement said, there will be 51 Diesel-electrics to pull important freight trains between Harrisburg, Pa., Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Detroit.

New York, Feb. 4 (AP).—Wholesale butter prices advanced from one to two and three-quarter cents a pound today on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Rizley Gas Rate Bill Called Billion-Dollar Raid on People

Anne X. Halpern, who is city solicitor of Pittsburgh, said she could prove it. She told the Senate Commerce Subcommittee, headed by Senator Moore (R., Okla.), that a high priced, high pressure utility lobby was behind the Rizley measure.

For 10 years the Federal Power Commission fixed rates on gas piped from one State to another on the basis of a fair return to the companies. Representative Ross Rizley (R., Okla.) would end FPC control of gas production and make the market price of gas in the field a base for rates.

Would Mean End, She Says

Mrs. Halpern said that would be the end of gas rate control, because utility interests can set the field prices. Adding just 5 cents a 1000 feet to the field price, she said, would put two billion dollars in the coffers of the 25 big companies that own most of our gas fields.

The two billion, she said, would come out of the pockets of people who use gas, over about 25 years. This estimate was not far from the FPC thinks the Rizley bill would add to tthe Nation's gas bills.

Two big firms pipe gas to Pittsburgh. Mrs. Halpern told the Senators that a fair return rate gave them a surplus of $600,000 a year, but the field price base would run up gas bills in Pittsburgh $1,600,000 a year.

Denies Harm to Users

John Jirgal, a Chicago rate expert, told the Senators the bill would be a great help to the gas industry and would harm the gas users hardly at all.

Jirgal figured the average rise in the cost of gas, under the Rizley bill, would be only 1.17 cents a 1000 feet, instead of the 6.38 a 1000 foreseen by the FPC.

Jirgal said he was hired to study the case by the Independent Natural Gas Association. He was, he told Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), getting a flat fee for the job, which took him several months.

Mrs. Halpern said Jirgal's report was based on a fictitious picture, while hers was based on real cases.

Urges Some Control Means

John Denton, of counsel for the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, urged the Senators to put in the bill—if they passed t—a clause saying that the power to regulate taken from the FPC may be used by the States. Otherwise, he said, there might be no control at all of gas rates.

The bill rode through the House in two hours last summer, but was turned down, 6 to 5, by the Senate Commerce Committee.

After 16 Years

Irish Vote Seen Blow To DeValera

Dublin, Feb. 4 (AP).—The Irish voted today for a new Parliament. The issue was whether to oust Prime Minister Eamon de Valera after 16 years.

Many politicians saw in the unusually heavy vote a sign the Fianna Fail leader may lose his majority. De Valera has declared he will resign if his party fails to secure 74 seats necessary for a majority.

Conclusive results are not expected before Friday. The complicated count under the proportional representation system will start tomorrow.

The chief threat to De Valera is Sean MacBride's year-old Clann Na Poblachta (Republican Party).

High Court Is Baffled By Legal Tilt

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court—which has seen practically everything—saw something new yesterday.

Lawyers get mixed up at the high bar every day. But when two attorneys for the State of Arkansas argued against each other instead of against their opponent, it was the justices who went round in circles.

With the greatest good humor, but in sober earnest, Arkansas' Assistant Attorney General Oscar E. Ellis and Special Counsel Shields M. Goodwin took exactly opposite stands and asked the court to do exactly opposite things.

This little rift in the Arkansas legal staff probably means there will be no clear cut test of the State law aimed at strike violence, which was before the court.

Section 1 of the law makes it a crime to use force or threats to keep anybody from a lawful job. Section 2 makes it a crime for two or more persons to get together at or near the scene of a labor dispute and violate Section 1.

The day after Christmas, 1945, four strikers in a North Little Rock plant met five nonstrikers. A nonstriker named Otha Williams got in a fight with a striker named Walter Ted Campbell, and killed him with a pocket knife.

Two of the dead man's friends—Roy Cole and Louis Jones—were tried and given a year in jail for violating Section 2. The Arkansas Supreme Court said they were guilty of violating Section 1, but that Section 2 was not in the case, and upheld the jail terms.

CIO Attorneys David Rein and Joseph Forer told the Supreme Court yesterday it was against the Constitution to send a man to jail for one crime and then turn down his appeal on the theory he really was guilty of another. They asked the court, too, to throw out the whole law.

Assistant Attorney General Ellis then told the court he thought the men were tried under Section 1, even though neither they nor the judge nor the jury knew it. He wanted the jail terms upheld.

But Special Counsel Goodwin said he didn't want that. He said he had talked the case over with Ellis, coming up here on the train, and he had made up his mind that the Assistant Attorney General was wrong.

At this point, the lawyers were in a fog, the justices were astounded, and even the newspaper reporters were a little hazy.

"We are at loggerheads," Goodwin ended.

Goodwin said the justices ought to send the case back, with orders to take it up under Section 2.

"We can't do that," Justice Frankfurter said with horror. "We can't tell the Arkansas Supreme Court how to apply its own laws!"

"But you can, Mr. Shields, after we reverse it," Justice Jackson broke in.

"That's half and half, too," Mr. Vinson remarked. "Maybe after that you won't be in the employ of the State."

Senate Rejects House Veteran Pay Ceilings

By the United Press

The Senate yesterday rejected House amendments to a bill raising the income ceilings at which veterans become ineligible for subsistence allowances under the GI educational and job-training programs.

Under the present setup, GI job trainees, students and farm trainees cannot collect government subsistence allowances if their monthly incomes are $175 or more for a single veteran and $200 or more for those with dependents.

Bill Would Pension World War Vets at 62

By The Associated Press

Establishment of a uniform pension system under which all veterans 65 years of age would receive $90 a month would save money and ease administration of veterans affairs, Representative Van Zant (R., Pa.) has told the House.

Van Zandt, former national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has introduced a bill to establish such a system.

In an explanation in yesterday's Congressional Record he says this would extend to veterans of World War I and II the benefits provided for veterans of all of America's wars.

The pensions would be based on age and on injuries or infirmities that did not result from service in the armed forces. The bill would work this way:

A World War I veteran who reaches the age of 62 would be given a pension of $43.20 a month. When 65 he would be presumed to be permanently and totally disabled and would receive $90 a month. This is the amount Spanish-American war veterans receive when they reach 65.

A sliding scale of payments would be provided for World War I veterans who have not reached 62 but who are partially disabled.

The same would apply to veterans of World War II when they qualify.

Police to Probe Loss of Man's Traffic Record

Police investigation was ordered yesterday into the disappearance of specific traffic records involving a 39-year-old Washington salesman.

The defendant, Allen Fisher, of 1336 I st. nw., was tried nevertheless and fined a total of $325 on six traffic charges by Judge Aubrey Fennell, in Municipal Court.

The records, involving suspension of Fisher's license after a traffic accident last August 7, were found missing from both police traffic files and files of the Bureau of Suspension and Revocation of Licenses, it was testified.

Torn Out "Manually"

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King, prosecuting the case, told the court the records from flat files of the bureau were "apparently torn out manually." He said, however, he had sufficient evidence from the bureau's system of cross-indexing to proceed with the case.

Traffic Officer H. C. Wright testified he studied the records, last Friday at the bureau, but found them missing Saturday when he returned. He said he then checked the traffic police files and found the suspension records missing there, too.

Mrs. Mary Silver, member of the bureau board, testified that only bureau staff members and policemen have access to bureau files. Any staff member, she said, would know about the cross-indexing.

Knows No Policeman Well

Fisher, under questioning by King, said he knew no policemen "well enough to call by their first names." In defense of the traffic charges, he said he understood his license was suspended but thought that suspension was automatically lifted with settlement in December of judgment against him.

He was found guilty and paid fines on the following charges: Driving with revoked license tags, $100; driving an uninspected automobile, $10; speeding January 29 on Rhode Island ave. ne., $10, and parking in a restricted zone on 15th st. nw., $5.

Symphony Gifts To Be Registered On 'Musicometer'

Gifts to the National Symphony during the first two days of its sustaining fund drive for $165,000 will be graphically acknowledged today by Prima Ballerina Alexandra Danilova.

At noon, in campaign headquarters, 1727 K st. nw., Mme. Danilova will register contributions on a "musicometer"—a giant thermometer in the shape of a bull fiddle.

Today the Navy-Marine Corps committee launched its part of the campaign with a musical tea at the home of its chairman Mrs. Delmer S. Fahrney, 2148 Wyoming ave. nw.

Some 70 persons attended, including Mrs. John L. Sullivan, wife of the Secretary of Navy for Air, and Mrs. Louis E. Denfeld, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations.

5 Years Adventure Nets 4 Wives, Autos, $3000

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 4 (AP).—A young West Virginia told detectives here today his five years of "adventure" netted him four wives, five motorcycles, about a dozen automobiles and $300 in cash.

Police identified the man as William H. McGee, 22, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. and said the FBI file showed he is wanted in Kentucky and Virginia.

Woman Found Dead In Water-Filled Tub

Mrs. Firetta May Clarke, 59, was found dead about 3 a.m. yesterday in a water-filled bathtub at her home, 1440 Meridian pl. nw. Her body was discovered by the janitor, Ralph Jefferson, in investigating a water leak through the floor of Mrs. Clarke's bathroom.

Coroner A. Mrgruder MacDonald issued a temporary certificate ascribing death to a heart condition.

Lane Leaves Desk, Fearing Wall Collapse

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4 (AP).—Governor Lane and his staff were forced to vacate the executive offices for a time today because workmen overhauling the ancient State House dome thought a wall might tumble over.

The dome was built in 1792 and there is no record of any general repair work since then. Governor Lane has made its reinforcement something of a personal project.

So the Governor and his helpers moved into other rooms. Albert Backhaus, structural engineer for the department of public improvements, came down from Baltimore and looked the situation over. He decided the executive offices were safe, so the Governor and his staff moved back after an hour and a half.

Senate Hearings On D. C. Judges To Begin Feb. 18

10 a. m.—James M. Proctor, now associate justice of District Court, nominated to be associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District.

10:15 a. m.—Harold M. Stephens, associate justice of the Appeals Court, nominated to head that court suceeding Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner, who is retiring. Proctor would fill Stephens' present place.

10:30 a. m.—Edward A. Tamm, No. 3 man in the FBI, nominated to succeed Proctor as associate justice of District Court.

Fairfax Joins In Asking More State Beetle Funds

The Fairfax board of supervisors voted to ask funds for a permanent beetle extermination program after hearing County Agent Joseph E. Beard say beetles had cut county crop yields up to 30 per cent.

The Fairfax board yesterday also voted to ask the State Department of highways to install traffic lights at Tyson's Corner and at the intersection of Route No. 236 and Telegraph rd. and that studies be made to see if lights were needed at Bailey's Crossroads, Annandale and at the intersection of Lee blvd. and the Falls Church-Annandale rd.

Weeks, Sowers Pay $5000 and $3000 Bank Case Fines

Richmond, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Kyle M. Weeks and Joseph A. Sowers today paid fines imposed on them last Friday by District Judge Johnson J. Hayes after their pleas of nolo contendere to charges of aiding in the misapplication of funds from a Fredericksburg bank.

Weeks, Floyd County lawyer and former member of the Virginia General Assembly, paid a fine of $5000 in the clerk's office of Federal District Court here. Sowers, cashier of the Floyd County Bank, paid a $3000 fine.

Joseph E. Proffit, law partner of Weeks and president of the Floyd bank, was acquitted on charges that he participated—along with his partner and bank cashier and others—in a widespread check-kiting scheme that led to the collapse of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Fredericksburg.

Welfare Expenditures Increase 30% in '47

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 4 (Spl.).—Public welfare expenditures reached an all-time high of $43,019.43 in 1947, Mrs. Alis L. Bailey, superintendent of that department of the city government, revealed in her annual report today. The city's contribution was $9748 and the rest of the money came from State and Federal Governments.

Assistance payments increased 30.3 per cent last year over 1946, while administrative costs went up only 8 per cent.

Chesapeake Ice Idles 5000 Seafood Workers

Salisbury, Md., Feb. 4 (AP).—At least 5000 seafood workers have been idled by ice on Chesapeake Bay, a survey showed today.

The freeze has sealed up oyster beds along the bay and many of its tributaries, holding dredgers and tongers to their moorings and forcing houses to close down.

Synod Elects Mauney

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—The Rev. J. Luther Mauney of Marion was elected president of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia today, succeeding Dr. J. J. Scherer, jr., of Richmond, president for the past 22 years.

Meadows Names Aide

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Governor Meadows announced today that he had appointed Charles H. Green of Bluefield as his executive assistant, succeeding Okey L. Patteson, who resigned February 1.

End of Fruit Pact Urged By Revercomb

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Senator Revercomb (R., W. Va.) called tonight for cancellation of foreign trade agreements on fruits.

"It is apparent," he said, "that fruit production here is threatened with injury through lessening of markets abroad.

"I hope that the cancellation clause of the trade agreements may be invoked and new provisions having some regard for our own people may replace them."

Speaking before some 300 growers from the Appalachian fruit belt attending the 55th annual session of the West Virginia Horticultural Society, Revercomb said that the "makers" of the reciprocal trade agreements "were believers in a philosophy that can but lower the great basic production of our country."

"It seems," he added, "that nothing is ever done any more between this government and any other but that an unfair share of the cost and the burdens of obligations must be placed upon us."

Earlier, Dr. J. R. Magness, United States Department of Agriculture, said apple growers will have to do something about getting their product to the market in better condition or they won't be able to compete with the expanding citrus fruit production.

Dr. Magness addressed some 300 growers from the four-State Appalachian fruit belt attending the fifty-fifth annual session of the West Virginia Horticulture Society.

The major problem of the apple grower today, he said, is to get the apples into the consumer's hand in proper condition.

Asked "shall we plant?" Magness said many old orchards are in need of replanting but that he would not urge expanded planting generally.

Asked what the prospects are for export business, Magness said he could see little promise in that outlet for another decade.

Ed Gould, State extensionist, reported favorably on experiments with a new type of spray called "parathione." He said it is the most promising of any yet used for controlling all insects and mites.

J. Howard Rannell of Romney is president of the organization, which has members in Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland.

Amendments Offered on Va. Poll Tax

Richmond, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Virginians will have a long ballot to scan next November if constitutional amendments to abolish the poll tax pass this session of the General Assembly.

The amendments would:

1. Abolish the payment of a poll tax as a prerequisite to voting.

2. Enable the Virginia General Assembly, if it so desires, to impose a head tax for school purposes of not more than $3 per year.

3. Enable the localities of the State, if they so desire, to impose an additional head tax for school purposes of not more than $1 a year.

4. Provide for a new registration of voters and leave to the Virginia General Assembly the method of providing for annual registration. It also would enable the assembly to prescribe literacy tests.

They are the principal provisions. However, the Campbell suffrage commission, which proposed the amendments, proposed three methods of annual registration, as follows:

1. By applying each year to the local electoral board, 120 days in advance of the election, and registering without reference to taxes.

2. By voting one year, which automatically would register the voter for the following year.

3. By the payment of all personal taxes (or all taxes except real estate levies) before the penalty deadline, which would automatically renew the registration.

If the constitutional amendments are approved, it would be up to the next session of the General Assembly to accept one of these three methods of registration, or any other. These methods are not provided for in the amendments.

The amendments also reinforce the legality of the present State Board of Elections and increases its powers, adding the power to appoint members of local election boards. They require that all election boards be "bipartisan."

The amendment and other reforms were offered by the commission appointed by a joint resolution of a special 1945 session. They passed the 1946 sessions and must pass the 1948 session to go before the people.

A resolution to pass the amendments now is before the House Committee on Privileges and Elections. Another constitutional amendment may be voted on in November: one to permit two or more counties and towns to consolidate into one school district.

Fredericksburg Scene Takes Print Club Prize

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 4 (AP). First prize at the Print Club of Philadelphia's annual woodcut and engraving show has been awarded to Miss Dorothy Duggan, head of the art department at Mary Washington College here.

Miss Duggan's winning wood engraving was "Morning Light," a Fredericksburg scene. It will become the property of the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Group Favors Abolition of Orphan Courts

Baltimore, Feb. 4 (AP).—The Judiciary Committee of the State Legislative Council approved today a proposal for abolition of Maryland's Orphan Courts.

The committee will report its decision to the council, which is not certain to accept it. A similar measure was defeated at the last regular session of the General Assembly.

Elimination of the courts—which handle estates, wills and related matters—would require an amendment to the Maryland constitution. There are three such courts in each county.

Meantime, the committee on finance and budget tdiscussed at length a proposal, not new to Maryland legislators, for an over-all State board of vocational licensing.

Another project receiving attention from the group was one to set up State automobile inspection stations. Again, the committee postponed final action.

A bill providing the State motor vehicle inspection system has been approved by a previous legislative council but failed of passage in the General Assembly.

The finance committee approved aproposal to bring employes of the income tax and alcoholic beverages divisions of the State comptroller's office under the merit system.

The entire council may probe more deeply into the problem at a hearing tomorrow on the merit system.

Navy to Increase Free Anchorage in Annapolis Harbor

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4 (AP).—The battle over Annapolis harbor appeared due for a peaceful settlement today.

Arnold Gay, one of the boat-yard operators who had bitterly attacked a Navy request for new restrictions on anchoring craft in the Severn River and adjacent waters, said an agreement had been worked out with officers of the Severn River naval command.

He said the Navy would increase the now unrestricted inner anchorage at the mouth of Spa Creek and almost double the "south" anchorage.

Although the Severn River, between the Ritchie Highway Bridge and the Engineering Experiment Station, will be considered a Navy drill area, an unrestricted anchorage will be marked out off the Ferry Farms shore.

B. & O. Station, Relay Landmark, To Be Demolished

Relay, Md., Feb. 4 (AP).—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's 76-year-old station, reminder of bygone days when through passengers stopped for the night, is coming down.

In the era when travelers considered night rail trips hazardous, the station was a combination hotel, summer resort and eastern terminus of the main line to the West. Since 1938 the staton, which sits on a rocky ledge overlooking the Patapsco River canyon, has been tightly boarded up.

But the Thomas viaduct at one corner of the station, built across the Patapsco gorge in 1830, is still bearing up as well under the weight of giant locoomotives and streamlined trains as it did under the horsecarts and puffng six-ton engines of more than a century ago.

Recreation Plans Need Publicity, Miss Rowe Says

Telling the public of the value of recreational programs was stressed by Miss Helen Rowe at the monthly Recreation Workers' Conference of the Council of Social Agencies yesterday. Miss Rowe is assistant director of the National Campfire Girls.

Next meeting is scheduled for March 10, when creative art will be demonstrated.

Recount Hampers Poll Supervisors

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 4 (AP).—Anne Arundel County election supervisors are hampered in their work by an inquiry into the 1946 Maryland senatorial contest.

Records of the race between Senator O'Conor and D. John Markey, a Republican, are still being held in Washington, Frank T. Stockett, president of the county supervisors, reported today.

Stockett said he has asked the subcommittee to return his registration books several times without result.

He commented, "On the face of things, therefore, it seems clearly evident that the investigators working for the subcommittee heedless of the taxpayers' money involved, are merely trying to prolong their stay on the Federal payroll by stringing out the investigation as long as possible."

Staples to Represent Tuck at Conference

Richmond, Va., Feb. 4 (AP).—Justice Abram P. Staples will represent Governor Tuck officially at the southern governor's conference this weekend, the chief executive's office announced today.

The conference is scheduled for Friday and Saturday in Tallahassee, Fla.

G. Tyler Miller, state superintendent of public instruction, will accompany Justice Staples to the meeting.

STEVE CANYON

IT'S TOO BAD WE DON'T GET ALONG, DR. WILDERNESS! IT WOULD SIMPLIFY MATTERS FOR CAPTAIN CANYON!
OH, I CAN BE VERY CLINICAL ABOUT THIS... A WOMAN DOCTOR HAS LIVED TOO LONG WITH DISCIPLINE TO COMPETE EVENLY WITH A GAL LIKE YOU...
THERE ARE OTHER KINDS OF DISCIPLINE BESIDES MEDICAL STUDY, DOCTOR... DO YOU THINK IT'S EASY FOR ME TO REMEMBER THAT I'M JUST A HIRED HAND IN STEVE CANYON'S LIFE?
OH, WHY DIDN'T YOU USE YOUR OBVIOUS CHARMS TO MARRY STEVE LONG AGO? — OR DO YOU ENJOY SEEING MUSHY-EYED FEMALES LIKE ME KNOCKING THEMSELVES OUT AGAINST YOUR ODDLY SECURE POSITION?
ACTUALLY — I THINK MR. C. HATES ME!

JOE PALOOKA

WHAT IS IT, KNOBBY? THEY SAID YOU CALLED ME SEVERAL TIMES.
WHEW! I SURE GOT NEWS, JIM... I'LL GIVE YA SOME DOPE'LL KNOCK YER HAT OFF! LET'S GO FER A WALK.
SHE DENIED SHE KNEW ANYTHING... WONDER WHY SHE TOLD YOU THIS...
I KNOW TH' KID'S TELLIN' TH' TRUTH, JIM... YA'LL BE THERE, WONT'CHA... THIS'LL CLEAR ME...
I INTENDED TO BE THERE, KNOBBY. I'LL BE IN YOUR DRESSING ROOM! DON'T SAY A WORD TO ANYONE... IT'S BETTER JOE DOESN'T KNOW TILL AFTER THE FIGHT...

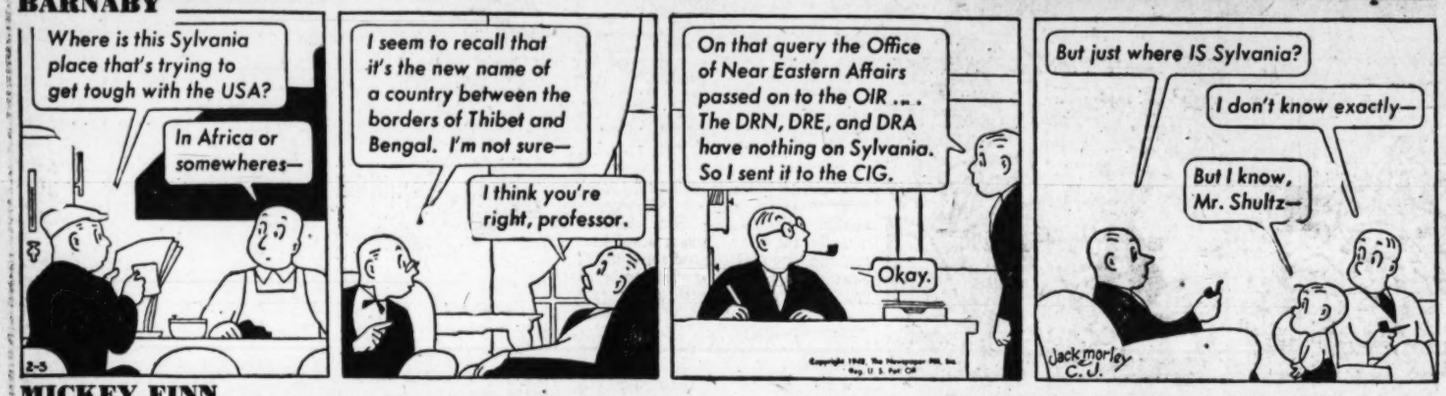
BARNABY



Where is this Sylvania place that's trying to get tough with the USA?
In Africa or somewheres—
I seem to recall that it's the new name of a country between the borders of Thibet and Bengal. I'm not sure—
I think you're right, professor.
On that query the Office of Near Eastern Affairs passed on to the OIR... The DRN, DRE, and DRA have nothing on Sylvania. So I sent it to the CIG.
Okay.
But just where IS Sylvania?
I don't know exactly—
But I know, Mr. Shultz—
Jack Morley C.U.

MICKEY FINN

I'M GLAD THAT PHILIP CALLED MRS. CASEY, FLOSSIE—I'M SURE SHE WOULD HAVE RESENTED IT, IF HE HADN'T!
YEAH! AND SHE COULD RUIN HIM OUT THERE IF SHE WANTED TO! HE WOULDN'T BE A BIG SHOT VERY LONG!
YOU WANT TO KEEP ON THE RIGHT SIDE OF HER, PHIL—HOW DID SHE SOUND OVER THE PHONE?
FRIENDLY ENOUGH! I GAVE HER PLENTY OF THE OLD OIL, CLANCY, AND I REALLY THINK SHE'LL MIND HER OWN BUSINESS!
SO PHIL FINN FINALLY CALLED UP AND EXTENDED HIS CONGRATULATIONS, EH, CORA?
YES—BUT HE DIDN'T FOOL ME ONE BIT! HE WANTS ME OUT THERE ABOUT AS MUCH AS HE WANTS A BROKEN LEG!
YOU SAID IT, CORA! HE'S GOING FOR ONLY ONE REASON—TO SEE THAT MRS. CUTIE AGAIN! I'D BET ON IT!
WE'LL, I'LL BE ABLE TO GIVE YOU A DETAILED REPORT ON HIM WHEN I GET BACK—YOU CAN REST ASSURED OF THAT!

FOR PETE'S SAKE TUNE IN SOME OTHER PROGRAM· THAT'S TERRIBLE!
IT IS AWFUL ISN'T IT, FATHER?
AH... THAT'S A LOT BETTER·
I'M SO GLAD YOU SEE IT THAT WAY TOO, FATHER·
I MEAN, WHEN I DON'T HAVE MY REPORT ON THAT SOIL THING FOR SCIENCE CLASS TOMORROW IT WON'T LOOK AS IF I WAS JUST LAZY OR SOMETHING-

MARY WORTH

GOOD AFTERNOON! I HAVE NO APPOINTMENT AND NO EXPERIENCE AND NO JOB AND I'D LIKE TO SEE MR. TOWERS ABOUT BECOMING A MODEL!
REALLY?... SIT DOWN, PLEASE!
I DON'T LIKE THAT OPTICAL UPSWEEP SHE GAVE ME! IT PROBABLY MEANS I'M GONNA BOUNCE OUT OF HERE ON MY BUSTLE AGAIN!
BOSS, A FAIR MAIDEN WAITS WITHOUT YOUR PORTAL!... SHE COMES IN QUEST OF A CONTRACT!
MR. TOWERS
SPEAK UP, ORACLE OF WISDOM!.. DOES SHE MERIT INSPECTION? HAS SHE FRESHNESS?
BOSS, IF SHE WERE ANY FRESHER, THERE'D BE DEW IN HER EARS!.. BETTER SIGN HER UP SWIFTLY BEFORE YOUR RAVENOUS RIVAL SEES HER!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Bids Fond(?) Farewell to Strange Name Items

It's a tossup whether I get more letters telling me about strange place names, or more telling me that we ought to give the silly names a rest for a while.

Inasmuch as we've already carried hundreds of these names, I think we ought to make this the last of the series.

If we don't, people will start wondering whether The Washington Post has been taken over by Rand McNally.

As a matter of fact, even those who are playing the game are getting tired of it. Julia Rose Wright of Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va., writes:

"Speaking of Curry He Mountain, Georgia has a Currahee which is pronounced the same way. And on the Georgia-South Carolina line you'll find the Toogalow River. Now let's change the subject and get some other items into your column."

Maj. Lyman D. Lynn of 316 14th st., Charlottesville, Va., is from Walla Walla (how'd we miss that one), Wash., and submits: Toppenish, Wenatche, Methow, Tekoa and Snoqualmie.

Another oldie that we all missed was Crab Orchard, Va., supplied by Mrs. L. H. Quillin of the Westchester Apartments. As C. B. Riddle would put it:

"Don't let the oversight Embarrass (Minn.) you. And don't forget that there's a Dimple in Kentucky, Cactus and a Bumble Bee in Arizona and a Sandwich in Illinois."

Mrs. William L. Boyden of 1650 Harvard st. nw. says Boo-Hoo is in Virginia and L. Sheads of 804 Commonwealth ave., Alexandria, Va., says the Old Dominion also contains a place called Come On.

Leonard R. Ansell of 1425 Fort Stevens dr. nw. rings in another of the Great Smoky mountains as he reports a peak called Huggins Hell. Purgatory, on the other hand, is in Maine, according to Pen Stephens of 2115 F st. nw.

Mrs. Richard L. Maschauer of 4208 Rainer ave., Mount Rainier, Md., thinks it's high time we mentioned some South Dakota names—like Igloo.

Esta R. Benson of 5020 2d st. nw. incloses a snapshot to prove that near Casper, Wyo., there's a place called Hell's Half Acre—which boasts a tavern named "The Devil's Inn."

And L. Reed Miller of 1310 New Hampshire ave. nw., suspects the worst because Red Star, Red Jacket, and War are all in nearby West Virginia.

To bring the entire matter of odd place names to a close, consider the tale told by James M. Pickens of 417 Dorset ave., Chevy Chase., Md. It has to do with pronunciations—which are sometimes much stranger than the names.

Jim says that once upon a time some place out West, there was a little town called Eurelia.

"You're a liar. You're a liar."

"You really are. You really are."

And that ends our discussion of place names. Positively. Even if you can top Silent, Cal.; Leaky, Ark.; Dirty, Wash.; Billy, Conn.; Gravely, Ill., or Eightnine, Tenn.

ADD SIGNS

Mark Allen Watson of 1519 Park rd. nw. reports that for some time the Arcade Market sported a sign which said, "Frozen Dog Meat For Sale Here."

Recently, however, the legend was changed to the less confusing version, "For Sale—Frozen Meat For Dogs."

SPELLING QUIZ ANSWER

Here are the six words which were incorrectly spelled in yesterday's trick item on orthography:

"Capitol City" should have been "Capital City." "Dictionery" looks much better as "dictionary," and "mispelled" would be better spelled with an extra "s."

The tough ones were "eeney," "meeney" and "moe." Webster says "eeny," "meeny" and "mo." "Miney" is the one that ends in "ey."

GRID QUESTION

CWO Anthony Fredric of the 702d Air Force Band, Andrews Field, wonders whether Navy's new football coach will leave the Army gridders with a Sauer taste in their mouths next fall.

TOUGH JOB

Hy Raskin of 323 Gallatin st. nw. forwards a sports clipping which says that "Dud DeGroot coached the Redskins in 1045."

Impossible! No man could work for George Preston Marshall that long.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. Ardith Uland, 3511 Davenport st. nw.: I'm glad everything worked out okay in spite of the delay. Unfortunately, I can't always find space for Give-Away items as soon as they're received.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Pat Ross of Agriculture's Farm Credit Administration forwards a clipping from our morning contemporary. It asks:

"Who paid for the broadcast of Princess Elizabeth's wedding to the United States?"

"Princess Elizabeth's wedding to the United States?" I thought she married that fellow Philip.

NEW YORK.—Every night club comic usually is called upon to play many benefits each week, an exhausting grind, and comedian Jan Murray was complaining about it in Lindy's one night. "There's no escape," he lamented. "Even when a comic goes to a vacation spot for a rest, he's called on to play benefits." Someone then suggested that Murray vacation in a place where he's unknown. "I did that last year. Never again," he replied. He went to Mackinac Island in Michigan, for a rest. Nobody paid any attention to him. He sat in the front row of the theater there, went unrecognized. After a week of this persistent and embarrassing anonymity, the comic was seen hailing an Indian and telling him: "I'm a very famous actor."

MEETING: Alexander Ince, who purchased the Theater Arts magazine last week, began his publishing career in Budapest 30 years ago. Ince wanted to make his Hungarian publication a daily, but lack of finances made it impossible for him to publish it more than once a week . . . Ince always was invited to the parties given every day in Budapest—parties at which Ferenc Molnar's presence was the attraction. After many meetings with the publisher of the weekly, Molnar finally told Ince: "Young man, I'd like to see you change your policy: I would like to see your paper published daily, and see you in person weekly."

BUSINESS: The Louis-Foxworth exhibition bout in Chicago last week was a sellout. Louis worked on a percentage basis and accepted no complimentary tickets. He bought 52 tickets himself . . . On the day before the fight Louis was in the office of Harry Mendel, the promoter, and saw him address a telegram to the Mayor of Chicago: "Joe Louis and I would deem it an honor if you and your party would be our guests at the fight" . . . "Wait a minute," Louis interrupted. "You may deem it an honor, but I wouldn't. That means six tickets less we could sell."

Sen. Thomas Defies Colleagues

By Drew Pearson

The fiery ultimatum of Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma that he would not testify regarding his cotton and grain speculations presents the United States Senate with a unique problem. It will be interesting to see whether the Democratic Senator's Republican colleagues take his ultimatum lying down. If so, some historic precedents regarding other Republican Senators will be upset.

Thomas

In recent years, four Republican Senators have been denied their seat or else so severely censured that they resigned. Another Republican was so drastically censured that he was defeated at the following election.

None of the above was given much consideration by their colleagues—not half as much as Senator Thomas has received so far.

For instance, William Lorimer, Illinois Republican, was subjected to a bitter crossfire of investigation over charges that he bought his election to the Senate in 1910. The investigation dragged on for nearly two years, following which he was finally denied his seat.

Again, in 1919, Truman Newberry of Michigan, former GOP Secretary of the Navy, was elected to the Senate from Michigan. He took his seat, but was so severely censured by his colleagues for heavy campaign expenditures that life became too uncomfortable and he resigned.

Smith of Illinois and Vare of Pennsylvania suffered somewhat similar inquisitions, both losing their Senate seats. Hiram Bingham of Connecticut also faced senatorial wrath when he let a Connecticut manufacturers' lobbyist sit in on closed-door sessions while his committee drafted a new tariff act. Bingham had to sit red-faced on the Senate floor while his colleagues passed a stinging resolution of censure.

Only Democrat who has gone through such an ordeal recently was the late Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi.

Brazen Mr. Thomas

Meanwhile, Senator Thomas has acted as if he were doing the Senate a favor by even pretending to give a Senate committee part of his books. Nearly two years ago, when this column first exposed Thomas' speculation, he repeatedly denied that either he or his wife were buying cotton. His answer was that this columnist was a chronic liar. Now, however, Agriculture Department reports show that not only he, but his wife, his secretary, and his two close cronies, Ralph Moore and Dyke Cullum, have been speculating for years.

Furthermore, the record shows that Thomas made speech after speech calculated to influence the cotton market. In other words, he was using the sacred trust given him by the people of Oklahoma as a forum to send the price of cotton up or down.

The Commodity Exchange Act provides that anyone issuing false and misleading or knowingly inaccurate reports that affect the prices of any commodity shall be subject to a fine of $10,000 or one year's imprisonment. Senator Thomas' speeches, including his statement that the United States of America would soon begin a million-bale cotton-buying program for Japan and Germany, certainly bear investigation with a view to possible criminal prosecution.

How important the Federal Power Commission is to the oil and gas industry is graphically illustrated by a bill now before Congress called the Rizley Bill. Senator Ed Moore of Oklahoma, himself a big oilman, is holding hearings on the bill this week, and if it passes it will increase profits to the big gas distributing companies by between 20 and 30 per cent—just at a time when millions of people are especially in need of gas to heat their homes.

One company which will profit most from the Rizley bill is Cities Service. And it so happens that Congressman Rizley's law firm, back in Oklahoma, is listed as representing Cities Service. In fact his law firm is also listed as representing several gas companies which will profit from this bill, including Republic Natural Gas and the Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co.

It is even suspected on Capitol Hill that it was not Congressman Rizley himself but his firm's gas-company clients who really wrote the so-called "gas-company gravy" bill.

The bill, if passed, would permit the gas companies to charge their customers a rate based on their "field price," which in turn is pyramided up by sales from one company to another within a holding company. This pricing system would add a total of $52,500,000 to the gas bill of the American consumer—just at a time when he can afford it least.

Merry Go Round

Most people don't like to be quizzed by Senate committees, but Bernie Baruch was miffed when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee didn't cross-examine him about his 11-point program for world reconstruction. (It was such a good program the Senators couldn't find any fault with it.) . . . Irving Kauffman, the new lobbyist-prober, pays tribute to the efficient cooperation he's getting from J. Edgar Hoover and his G-men . . . "Speechitis" is the word coined by A. A. Davis of Barnesville, Ohio, for those afflicted with an overdose of long-windedness . . . Rural Missouri counties, which never voted for Harry Truman because they didn't like the Pendergast machine, now will go for him. Reason: $5 corn and wheat. (Nobody wants to kill Santa Claus. Sounds like the same kind of support that re-elected Cal Coolidge. Hope the repercussions won't be the same.)

Charge account

By James J. Metcalfe

Some people say a charge account . . . Is not the thing to get . . . Because it merely is a way . . . Of going into debt . . . And that may apply to those . . . Who do not care to pay . . . Whatever obligations they . . . Incur from day to day . . . But charge accounts are handy for . . . The honest folks who buy . . . Especially when cash on hand . . . Is not exactly high . . . And in addition they support . . . The credit rating good . . . That speaks respectability . . . Throughout the neighborhood . . . The value of a charge account . . . Depends upon its use . . . It thrives on proper handling and . . . It withers with abuse.
